Economy & Taxation	1/1/2010	2:05	9:00 PM	Many people in Texoma spent their New Year's Day heading out to the mall and shopping centers to try to catch some good deals. And that's exactly what local retailers were hoping for since nearly all of them need to make up for sales they lost during last week's Christmas Eve blizzard. From locally-owned gift shops to national chains that have stores in Wichita Falls, owners and managers say they believe shoppers will spend money as long as stores continue to provide discounted prices. Kohl's store manager says sales have been steady in 2009, and the store expects sales to hold steady in 2010. The owner of Finishing Touch in Wichita Falls says the snow storm caused his store to miss out on sales for its biggest shopping days in December. We interviewed James Weatherbee, Owner, Finishing Touch, Kristy Boyd, Kohl's Store Manager, Bob Caillet, Kohl's Shopper and Harriet Morrison, Finishing Touch Shopper

But the increase in oil prices is also driving up what it cost to fill up at the pump. A barrel of oil is now around $82. This time last year it was going for $30 a barrel. The local President of the Texas Alliance of Energy Producers says economic activity in the oil and gas industry has been in a state of rapid decline for the past 13 months since many producers pulled back. But he says there are signs the industry could be bouncing back. Mills says another indication the industry is doing better is the number of drilling permits and drilling rigs have started to go up. ## ECONOMY AND TAXATION

Economy & Taxation	2/4/2010	3:11	9:00 PM	Every 10 years the Government needs to get a head count of how many people are living in the United States and they do this through the Census. Next month you'll start to see the 2010 Census form show up in your mailbox. It consists of ten questions you should be able to answer in about 10 minutes. But not everyone participates in this crucial questionnaire. How many seats our state has in congress, and how many Federal dollars come to Wichita Falls for things such as schools and transportation. According to the United States Census Bureau, around 400 billion dollars in federal funding is allocated to states and communities is based on Census data. We interviewed Yeager Edwards, Ben Franklin 5th grader; Jenna Steormann Arnold, U.S. Census Bureau; Janice Hunter, Iowa Park resident and Congressman Mac Thornberry (R) 13th District.
Economy & Taxation	2/11/2010	2:01	9:00 PM	Name, Age, and Date of Birth are some of the questions you'll be asked to answer on the Census form when it arrives. But it's the personal nature of this questionnaire that keeps many Texomans from filling it out. However, representatives from the U.S. Census Bureau say your information is not shared with anyone, including government agencies. They say Census workers are sworn for life to protect your information. We interviewed Kim Murphy, U.S. Census Bureau.
Economy & Taxation	2/18/2010	1:44	9:00 PM	The Better Business Bureau and the Census Bureau want to make sure you don't get scammed when you give out your personal information for the Census. A form should arrive in the mail next month, and if you don't fill it out and send it back you'll get a knock on your door from a Census worker. But how do you know who that person really is? You have to pay attention to the credentials they provide, for example a Census worker's badge will not have a picture on it. Also the nature of the questions could be a give away. A Census worker will not ask for your social security number or your credit card number. The President of the Better Business Bureau says scam artists usually have a game plan. We interviewed Monica Horton, President BBB.

It's the American Community Survey which is sent to one in 480 households every month. Workers from the U.S. Census Bureau say this survey started in 2004 to give them a better understanding of the needs within communities all year round.
