Monday: The issue on this broadcast was the formation and operation of the “Lighthouse Chapel.” It’s a ministry in Windsor, Connecticut and a member of Lighthouse Chapel International. The Reverend George Obeng described the local congregation, the outreach it conducts and future plans. The host was Anissa Porticelli.

Tuesday & Wednesday: The issue on these programs was the relationship and trust students have with their teacher at school. Deborah JA Miller described her book, “Teacher, Do You Love Me?” Miller explained students have a need to know the teacher is vitally interested in them as people and concerned for their welfare, in and out of school. Paul Kretschmer hosted.

Thursday & Friday: The issue on these programs was a sports ministry to athletes founded and headed up by Jason Romano, former ESPN commentator. Romano explained how he reaches out to athletes and connects fans with Faith in Jesus Christ as Savior, using sports as a contact point. Gerry Williams hosted.

Saturday: The issue on this broadcast was “The Apologetics of Isaiah,” a book by guest Andy Knight. He explained how the foretelling of Jesus Christ hundreds of years before His incarnation could be explained by Isaiah and provided concrete evidence of Salvation through Jesus. The host was Gerry Williams.
