Program: Politica Ya with Tsi-tsi-ki Félix / Show # 149
/ Segment # 1

When: July 4th. 2021 (Sunday 5:00 pm) Length: 16' 00"

Description of program

Former President Trump visited an unfinished portion of the wall on the Mexican border on Wednesday; the trip with Texas Governor Greg Abbott near Weslaco in South Texas is Trump's second public appearance in a week. Republicans have pointed out that migration will be a central theme in their campaign to retake control of Congress next year, but a Reuters / IPSOS poll indicates that Trump's attacks are having little effect.

Meanwhile, more than 270 thousand migrants have been found in the sector of the Rio Grande valley by the border patrol so far this year.

To talk about this and more, we welcomed Daniel Garza, executive director of the free initiative.

Description of program

We are also talking about the other pandemic that we are experiencing, that of violence with firearms. According to the Gun Violence Archive organization in the middle of this 2021, more than 10,000 deaths, 19,400 injuries and 300 mass shootings have been registered in the country well. In total 500 children have died! The situation is definitely out of control. In Chicago for example every weekend the number of shootings is brutal and does not stop. We discussed the issue with Rafael Yañez Ibarra who is President of the Union Impact Center.

When: July 25th 2021 (Sunday 4:00 pm) Length: 03' 00"

Description of program

President Biden called for advancing federal legislation that would protect voting access from what the White House sees as `` authoritarian and anti-American. ' ' Biden's speech comes after 17 Republican states passed 28 new laws that they say make it difficult. vote by requiring voters to identify themselves or send their ballots directly and not through third parties. Activists have had their sights set on Texas, where Republican lawmakers are pushing a series of measures that include changes such as banning voting from their car and early voting 24 hours before Election Day.

In an attempt to obstruct the legislative process, more than 50 Democratic legislators from Texas came to the nation's capital to absent themselves from the special session in their state and call for Congress to take action at the federal level.

Meanwhile, the "For the people" and "John Lewis voting rights advancement" bills have stalled in Washington amid Republican obstruction.

Description of program

President Biden's approval fell to 50% this month, his lowest rating to date, according to the Gallup company. According to Gallup, in the months of January and April Biden had an approval of 57%, the highest so far. Inflation and the situation of a third or fourth wave of covid-19 and the situation on the border are some of the factors impacting the administration with just 6 months in power. Undoubtedly the price of fuel impacts us all in such a way that we do not stop thinking about a word

"energy". Exclusively at Politica Ya, we had United States Secretary of Energy Jennifer Granholm.

Description of program

Joe Biden, Kamala Harris and 12 Latino leaders met at the White House to speak among other issues of infrastructure and immigration reform through reconciliation. The first part of the $ 1 trillion project focuses on physical infrastructure. The second part of 3.5 trillion dollars in what they call "human infrastructure". However, this unprecedented expense is expected to generate the odd benefit at least in the short term. But how does this directly impact us Latinos? We exclusively interviewed Martin Walsh, US Secretary of Labor.

Program: Politica Ya with Tsi-tsi-ki Félix / Show # 155 / Segment # 2

When: August 15th. 2021 (Sunday 3:00 pm) Length: 08' 53"

Description of program

The crisis at the border continues, and each figure is a new record, for example in July 2020 the border patrol had 40,929 encounters with undocumented persons who crossed the border, last month they reported 210,000 encounters! The worst thing is that more than 18 percent of the families that entered the country tested positive for COVID-19 according to a report from federal authorities. Also, 20 percent of the minors who arrived alone and who were in border patrol custody tested positive for the virus. Some cities like Laredo in Texas are spending their own resources to pay for buses and literally get rid of migrants by sending them to Austin and Houston to go to other cities from there. Alma Ferrara gave us more details.

When: August 22 nd 2021 (Sunday 3:00 pm) Length: 13' 17"

Description of program

We started this edition with a news that will impact, we hope in a positive way the future of all Latinos living in this country that with or without papers we have made ours. The 2020 census reveals that we are more than 62 million!!! Maybe even more! The impact on budget and political redistribution for us will certainly be undeniable. To discuss this we have from Los Angeles, California Arturo Vargas, Executive Director, of the National Association of Latino Elected and Designated Officials (NALEO.

The crisis at the border, as every week, worsens because unfortunately and without the high temperatures or the covid-19 stopping them, more and more migrants arrive daily, not only from Central America or Mexico but from countries as remote as Africa or the Middle East. Those who have been detained and are facing deportation may now have legal information and services as the government will implement an alternative program of which our correspondent in the White House Rafael Sánchez-cruz tells us all about it.

The Taliban seized power in Afghanistan two weeks before the Biden administration completed its troop withdrawal after a war that cost us "a trillion dollars over the twenty years it lasted. Images of Afghans at the airport in Kabul, trying to take the last planes that took off from there, went around the world. Will we now witness the resurgence of the curfew? Will we again see a terrorist attack on North American territory just 20 years after the attack on September 9? We talked about this and more with conservative political analyst Adolfo Franco.

Description of program

Dr. Anthony Fauci said Thursday that schools should be "fully open" and welcoming children five days a week by the fall. The week started well at least on the issue of the fight against covid-19. On Monday afternoon, the FDA approved Pfizer's vaccine in full and President Biden called on the private sector to require vaccination of its employees. However, although pediatric hospitalization rates for COVID-19 are lower than those for adults, infections in children continue to rise. To talk about this we invited from Memphis Tennessee Dr. Diego Hijano, specialist in pediatric infectious diseases from the prestigious Saint Jude Children's Research Hospital ".

While the division continues between those who doubt the effectiveness of vaccines against covid-19 and those who are even anxious to have the third booster injection, the truth is that there are those who fall ill even close to death. Our correspondent in Tampa Bay, Florida David Perez-Hansen next tells us about a couple who miraculously escaped death.

Description of program

The House of Representatives on Tuesday approved President Biden's $ 3.5 trillion economic package that could allow for sweeping changes in immigration, healthcare, education and more tax collection.

The chamber voted 220-212, also agreeing to the $ 1.2 trillion bipartisan infrastructure bill passed by the Senate the night before. We talked about this and more with economist Stan Veuger.

This week with the lowest approval rating in his presidency and in yet another defeat to the Biden administration according to conservatives, the president confirmed the withdrawal of Americans, permanent residents and Afghans with visas by the last day of this month of August. . Following the refusal of the Taliban to extend the date.

On the other hand, Republican Senator from Florida Marco Rubio sent a letter to Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security Alejandro Mayorkas, demanding a full explanation of the measures taken by the department to ensure that terrorists who have been released by the Taliban cannot enter the country from the southern border with Mexico. We discussed this with Michael McCarthy professor at the University of Washington.

Description of program

With great fanfare, and denying any mistakes, President Biden spoke to the nation about ending the war in Afghanistan. The departure of the last troops and diplomats and Afghans who worked for the US embassy, was fulfilled one day before the August 31 deadline as demanded by the Taliban who took the country on the 15th. Our White House correspondent Rafael Sanchez-Cruz chronicled the last day of the longest war in the modern history of the North American empire.

Just on the official day of the withdrawal from Afghanistan, the White House said that that country, "is no longer a fertile land for terrorism and there is no extremist group there with the capacity to harm the United States."

We discussed this controversial issue from Miami, Florida with Republican National Committee spokesperson Jaime Florez.

Biden told Isis-k "We are not done with you yet," after he claimed responsibility for the August 26 bombing at the Kabul airport that left dozens injured and 13 soldiers dead. 4 of these Latino sailors whose families this week held vigils and prayed rosaries in the company of family, friends and neighbors. Jennifer Sanguano from Lawrence, Massachusetts tells us about the only woman in the group who gave her life for this country.

Description of program

The forecasts of the Federal Reserve or (FED) point to an economic growth of 7%, which would be the highest annual rate since the 1980s. However, an interesting phenomenon is occurring since on the one hand there are 8.4 million people without work but on the other there are 10.5 million jobs available. 19 months after the pandemic, only 235,000 jobs were created last month, well below the 728,000 predicted by economists. Almost 8 million unemployed also this week stopped receiving federal unemployment insurance benefits that has cost us taxpayers $ 800 billion. We exclusively interviewed United States Secretary of Labor Marty Walsh.

Nearly 8 million unemployed lost their federal benefits this week, and the likelihood that they will be extended is highly unlikely. One of the solutions, as the secretary of labor explained to us, is the employment centers located in all states so that the unemployed can find a job or even change careers by receiving the proper training. Our White House correspondent Rafael Sanchez-Cruz prepared a report on the matter.

This after being known that those not vaccinated against covid-19 are eleven times more likely to die than those who have received it. Meanwhile, cases in children continue to increase. We exclusively had Dr. Anthony Fauci, director of the National Institute of Allergies and Infectious Diseases and Chief Medical Advisor to the President of the United States.

Since 2016, high-level dialogues such as the one held between Vice President Harris, Cabinet members, the new

United States Ambassador to Mexico, Mr. Ken Salazar and Mexican officials. Precisely to talk about the bilateral relationship between Mexico and the United States during this post-pandemic, in the midst of an inflation and migration crisis with 200 thousand immigrants arriving each month to request asylum, is with us the special assistant to President Joe Biden and senior director of the White House National Security Council for the Western Hemisphere.

This week Gavin Newsom, governor of California, survived the impeachment and will remain in office. The cost of staying in office was $ 70 million for the campaign in the state with the highest taxes in the country, the highest number of homeless on the streets, cities like Los Angeles with the highest number of gang members in the world and an endless trouble. Also in the middle of this week it was announced that after 10 months of increases in the inflation rate, the consumer price index registered its first decrease compared to the previous month, from 5.4% in July to 5.3% in August. What has increased the most by 24% has been energy. Gasoline was one of the products with the highest increase for the consumer in a year. It went up 42.7%. Annual inflation in July and June remained at 5.4% and was the highest price increase in the last 13 years. We discussed economics in an easy-to-understand way with Manuel Ramos from Los Angeles, California.

Description of program

The situation at the border continues to be chaotic. September is not over yet, but it is estimated that the number of illegal immigrants crossing the southern border will again exceed more than 20 thousand encounters, the highest number in 21 years. This week the Paso Times reported that border patrol agents participated in acts of violence against Haitian migrants seeking asylum, associate press photographers reported images that we could only imagine in a western movie where agents on horseback with whips in hand they faced the Haitians. Pro-immigrant organizations condemned the events while at least 10,000 of them were crowded on the Texas River Bridge. The secretary of national security Alejandro Mayorkas precisely visited the area on Monday and emphatically said: "the borders are not open, do not try." For his part, the governor of Texas, greg abbott, requested this Monday from the president of the United States, Joe Biden, a declaration of emergency for the state due to the immigration crisis on the border with Mexico. 26 governors of the country asked to meet as soon as possible with the president to discuss the matter. But the biggest setback to the immigration issue would come from the same congress. Elizabeth Macdonough, the Senate's top MP, said Democrats cannot use their $ 3.5 trillion package that boosts social and climate programs to give millions of migrants the opportunity to become US permanent and naturalized. Our correspondent in the white house Rafael Sánchez Cruz made a report on the matter.

Following the recommendation to include a path to permanent legal residence for dreamers, holders of temporary protected status (TPS), and agricultural workers and essential workers, it went beyond a budget consideration according to detractors who have said for months that the legalization of the undocumented it will increase spending on federal programs such as food stamps, child tax credits, and health insurance programs. Now the ace up the Democrats' sleeve is reviving Ronald Reagan's Republican-era law. According to a recent report by the American immigration council (AIC) which states that the registry law "allows certain non-citizens who have lived in the United States for a long time, but who are undocumented or are present in the country under some type of temporary immigration status , 'register' to receive legal permanent resident status. We talked about this with Vanessa Cardenas who is a consultant for the organization america's voice.

The organization Human Rights Watch denounced this Tuesday that the number of detainees in the protests that took place in Cuba "exceeded 160" and demanded that the violations of human rights on the island cease. This after the protests and confrontations after the Cuban president, Miguel Díaz-Canel, provoked on television his supporters to go out to confront the protesters. Florida Federal Senator Marco Rubio spoke about it. For its part, the Biden administration urged the Cuban regime to "respect the voice of the Cuban people" by restoring access to the internet and other media, while calling for the release of those detained during the "peaceful demonstrations." Throughout the week thousands of Cubans and Latinos from other countries demonstrated in dozens of cities in the United States supporting the protests in Cuba. Filippo Ferretti from Tampa Bay gave us the reactions.

Meanwhile, relatives of detainees in the demonstrations against Communism on the island went to the so-called police stations to ask the whereabouts of their relatives. At the same time, the Secretary General of the Organization of American States, Luis Almagro, called here in the capital for an end to "repression and persecution" in Cuba. The FDA announced this week that adults 60 and older and healthcare personnel are first on the list for booster doses within 8 months of achieving full immunization. This after Thursday night of last week they authorized that third reinforcement to people with solid organ transplants, HIV and any type of cancer. Just this week this question was rekindled in the minds of mothers and fathers: is it safe for children to go back to school? The debate does not cease, as does the struggle between those who are in favor of vaccines and masks and between those who have fear and ignorance as reasons disguised with the word "freedom." Yamile Arango in the state of Colorado prepared a report.

There is a war between those who are in favor of being able to decide whether to get the vaccine against covid 19 or not; There is the fraternal police order, a national union that represents 356,000 agents, supporting those who choose not to get vaccinated. They say that with local, state and federal officials lobbying companies and individuals with government-issued vaccine mandates, they have decided that "individual and personal choice" remains paramount. To tell us about this from Columbus South Carolina we invited Michael Letts who is Chief Executive Officer [CEO] of the bulletproof vest manufacturer "in-vestusa".

With great fanfare, and denying any mistakes, President Biden spoke to the nation about ending the war in Afghanistan. The departure of the last troops and diplomats and Afghans who worked for the US embassy, was fulfilled one day before the August 31 deadline as demanded by the Taliban who took the country on the 15th. Our White House correspondent Rafael Sanchez-Cruz chronicled the last day of the longest war in the modern history of the North American empire.

Just on the official day of the withdrawal from Afghanistan, the White House said that that country, "is no longer a fertile land for terrorism and there is no extremist group there with the capacity to harm the United States."

We discussed this controversial issue from Miami, Florida with Republican National Committee spokesperson Jaime Florez.

Biden told Isis-k "We are not done with you yet," after he claimed responsibility for the August 26 bombing at the Kabul airport that left dozens injured and 13 soldiers dead. 4 of these Latino sailors whose families this week held vigils and prayed rosaries in the company of family, friends and neighbors. Jennifer Sanguano from Lawrence, Massachusetts tells us about the only woman in the group who gave her life for this country.

Moderna Inc requested the FDA on Wednesday to allow the use of a third booster dose of its vaccine against covid-19. But if you have tested positive for COVID-19, one of the first questions you may have is: what can I do to reduce my risk of getting more ill? The experts' answer is monoclonal antibody treatment. Something that is more common in Florida and Andreina Rosal from Orlando prepared a report for us.

Unfortunately, the covid-19 pandemic does not stop! This week in the country 40 million cases were surpassed that have saturated hospitals in Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, Arkansas, Texas and Florida these 6 states have their intensive care units at capacity limits. Meanwhile 47% of the population remains unvaccinated. Likewise, the cases of Covid in children increase especially after returning to face-to-face classes.

According to the director of the CDC Rachel Walensky, the cases of Covid-19 increased among minors between the beginning of June and until the middle of August, on the other hand, in 14 states there were 10 times more infections among adolescents among adolescents. 12 and 17 years old who did not have a dose over those who had completed their vaccination schedule. We talked about this and more with Dr. Ilan Shapiro from Los Angeles, California.

We are also talking about a controversial substance. It is about Ivermectin, a drug used to combat parasites and that is being included in the treatment plan of patients with covid-19 in several Latin American countries. Here the FDA is far from approving its use in humans but as our correspondent in Tampa Bay, Filippo Ferretti tells us, there are those who travel to Central America to receive this medicine.

The first results of the trial studying the effectiveness and safety of the Pfizer and biontech vaccine against covid-19 for children 5 to 11 years of age, showed promising results. His first trial results indicate that the vaccine is safe for children and establishes a strong antibody response against the virus. On the other hand, a new study from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention [cdc] affirms that the modern vaccine is the most effective against hospitalization for covid-19, followed by that of Pfizer and that of Johnson & Johnson. And for their part, the United States Food and Drug Administration (FDA) vaccine advisers unanimously voted to recommend the authorization of emergency use of a booster dose of Pfizer vaccine 6 months after the second dose. in people 65 years of age or older.

A very important issue for our men. In Puerto Rico, the official declaration was made as September first on prostate cancer prevention day. We invite Dr. Alvin Lopez-Pujals principal clinical researcher at the San Juan Bautista school of medicine and the MIR scientific company.

Former President Trump visited an unfinished portion of the wall on the Mexican border on Wednesday, the trip with Texas Governor Greg Abbott near Weslaco in South Texas is Trump's second public appearance in a week . Republicans have pointed out that migration will be a central theme in their campaign to retake control of Congress next year, but a Reuters / IPSOS poll indicates that Trump's attacks are having little effect.

Meanwhile, more than 270 thousand migrants have been found in the sector of the Rio Grande valley by the border patrol so far this year.

To talk about this and more, we welcomed Daniel Garza, executive director of the free initiative.

Climate experts describe as a "pressure cooker", the heat wave that we live in the country. Well, heat records have been broken where Latinos are the most affected because we are 21 percent more likely than non-Hispanic whites to live in the hottest areas of cities. But what about those in the south on the border with Mexico, regardless of the conditions, they embark on the adventure of crossing the border. N Santiago Rodriguez who presented us with a report.

A little more than a week after a federal judge in Texas will revoke DACA and as of July 16, USCIS will not accept new applications from young people to apply for the program, activists affirm that a path to citizenship is the only path for those called "dreamers" against said court decision. Congress in the meantime continues to work on the reconciliation process of the package of more than three trillion dollars for infrastructure where they plan to include funds for 120 billion dollars for immigration. These funds, according to Senator Bob Menéndez, "open the possibility of immigration reform," without having to count on the support of Republicans in Congress. To talk about this, we invited the lawyer Ángel Leal from Miami Florida.

This week, President Biden declared emphatically: "We are keeping promises" and says this half a year after taking power. Our White House correspondent Rafael Sanchez-Cruz explains a little more about the challenges, achievements and promises of the president who has been under scrutiny in this regard.

In other information, customs and border protection announced that in nine months they detained more than a million immigrants at the southern border! In June alone, almost 189 thousand were detained. Meanwhile, 18 national organizations with outreach in all 50 states launched the "ready to stay" campaign to help immigrants access legal services. Especially for dreamers, tepesians and farm workers. While Congress and the White House try to pass immigration reform without the need for a Republican vote, according to Rodrigo Camarena, director of the Network of Immigrant Advocates from Brooklyn, New York.

The crisis at the border continues, and each figure is a new record, for example in July 2020 the border patrol had 40,929 encounters with undocumented persons who crossed the border, last month they reported 210,000 encounters! The worst thing is that more than 18 percent of the families that entered the country tested positive for COVID-19 according to a report from federal authorities. Also, 20 percent of the minors who arrived alone and who were in border patrol custody tested positive for the virus. Some cities like Laredo in Texas are spending their own resources to pay for buses and literally get rid of migrants by sending them to Austin and Houston to go to other cities from there. Alma Ferrara gave us more details.

A Gallup poll on immigration found that Americans remain divided on increasing or decreasing the number of migrants arriving in the country, taking into account the crisis at the border and the exodus of Afghan migrants. According to the survey, 33% of the participants indicated that migration levels should increase, while 31% said they should decrease. And the other 35% said that the number of migrants the country receives should be kept at the usual level. But what has raised alarms for some is to stop making illegal re-entry into the country criminal. Our Las Vegas correspondent Alex Zapata explains more about it.

On more immigration issues, the country's supreme court on Tuesday rejected President Biden's proposal to postpone the reestablishment of the "Stay in Mexico" policy.
