FAMILY	Family Life Blended	Nov 3	6:23 a 4:24 p	60 sec	FM	Ron Deal – Managing Conflict. In 1988, Yellowstone National Park was burned by a massive forest fire that cost $120 million to extinguish. A number of factors contributed to the fire burning out of control. For a long time the forest service would quickly put out small forest fires. What resulted was a huge build-up of debris. A lot of people are like this. When a relational conflict arises, they quickly put it out. Over time, relationship rubble builds up and easily fuels a wildfire. Don't be afraid of conflict. When managed, it removes what is unhealthy and helps your forest to be free of debris.
FAMILY	Family Life Blended	Nov 15	6:23 a 4:24 p	60 sec	FM	Ron Deal - Love the Lord God with all your heart, soul, mind, and strength, and love your neighbor as yourself. Notice the relationship between these two commands of Jesus. You can't care for others unless you're caught up in a love relationship with God. The heavenly relationship empowers the earthly one. But how do you love difficult people? Well, that, too, flows out of our love for and identity in God. You might ask yourself, "How do I love this person out of love for God?" That recalibrates your motives and gets your heart in the right posture. No matter who it is, loving God is the source to loving others.
FAMILY/CHILDREN	Real Family Life	Oct 26	5:24 a 3:24 p	90 sec	FM	Dennis Rainey – I Was Wrong. Saying I was wrong is one of the hardest things for a parent to say to a child. You must realize when you hurt them and ask for forgiveness. Teens have a knack of displaying an attitude of arrogance but we must have a humble and teachable spirit. How we respond to our own mistakes does make a difference. We need to admit when we are wrong and respond properly to our mistakes. When our children see we are truly humble it is easier for them to be receptive to the convictions and values we have.
FAMILY/CHILDREN	Family Life Blended	Oct 28	6:23 a 4:24 p	60 sec	FM	Ron Deal – Guidelines for Good Meetings. Divided or divorced parents need effective business-like meetings in order to raise kids well. Here are some guidelines from the book Two Homes, One Childhood by Robert Emery. Have a regularly scheduled meeting and keep it as often as you can. Save most topics for the meeting; don't text or make extra calls unless you need to. And make sure the kids can't overhear your conversations. They don't need to be burdened by the topics which means pick up and drop off times are not a good time to talk. And keep meetings brief, polite, and to the best of your ability, positive. Good meetings are a gift to your kids.
FAMILY/CHILDREN	Family Life Blended	Nov 10	6:23 a 4:24 p	60 sec	FM	Ron Deal – Distrust Disputes. Writing for Forbes.com, one personal finance contributor noted that about half of his firms disputed probate, estate, and trust cases were between a stepmother and her stepchildren. The writer said distrust was a common factor in the disputes. Say the father died, the children didn't trust their stepmother to manage the estate if she hadn't been married very long to their father or if she was known to financially favor her children. Or if the stepmom and kids didn't have a close relationship, they distrusted each other. So, what's the moral of that story? Close relationships and trust are the most valuable assets you have.
FAMILY/CHILDREN	Real Family Life	Nov 10	5:24 a 3:24 p	90 sec	FM	Dennis Rainey – Provoking to Anger. As a parent you could be the source of your child's anger by putting undue stress on them. Parents sometimes can have dictatorial style providing rules without a relationship. Parents sometime tear down a child through word or tone or they expect children to read their mind and other times they just ignore their child. Every child from time to time gets angry and that's to be expected but consider things from your child's perspective – are you doing things to provoke your child to anger.

FAMILY/CHILDREN	Family Life Blended	Dec 6	6:23 a 4:24 p	60 sec	FM	Ron Deal - Is My Son Bing Manipulative? Six years after Vali's first husband died, she met a man and fell in love. Her son seemed fine with the idea...until he wasn't. Vali wanted to know if his anger was manipulation. My reply? Maybe. First of all, it's common for major family transitions like a wedding to resurrect grief in kids so this mom should at least slow down, listen to her son and moved toward him emotionally. He needs some reassurance. But is he manipulative? Well, if he has a history than yeah, maybe. But if there's no history of that, probably not. Either way, he needs a little TLC.
FAMILY/MARRIAGE	Real Family Life	Oct 4	5:24 a 3:24 p	90 sec	FM	Dennis Rainey – Good Stress. The only people who feel no stress are dead. In addition causing potential health risks stress can make us spend time on things that don't really matter. More importantly can threaten the closeness a husband and wife experience in their marriage. But all stress isn't bad it can help us perform better at work and keep us alert in danger. You must use things as stress as opportunities for growth and find ways to deal with stress turning it from a negative to a positive.
FAMILY/MARRIAGE	Morning Show	Nov 19	5:24 a 3:24 p	90 sec	FM	Dennis Rainey – Walk Like A Man. Why is it some men just don't act like real men? There is need for courage we need men to walk like men and act like a godly man. God is calling men to be the spiritual leader of your family, it is never too late.
FAMILY/MARRIAGE	Morning Show	Nov 30	5:24 a 3:24 p	90 sec	FM	Dennis Rainey – Painful Memories. Does your spouse know your most painful memories? Sometimes by sharing painful memories with your spouse can help you heal. Your mate needs that kind of acceptance everyone enters marriage with fears and hurts and needs your help with that healing.
FAMILY/MARRIAGE	Morning Show	Dec 3	5:24 a 3:24 p	90 sec	FM	Dennis Rainey – Hiding in the Loneliness. What are you doing to build your mates self-esteem? Our background largely determines how we see ourselves. One way you can really get to know your mate is to learn about their childhood; find out how past experiences made them who they are today.
FAMILY/MARRIAGE	Morning Show	Oct 26	6:00a 7:00a 8:00a	90 sec	FM	Estimates are the US could see 2.5 million weddings in 2022 after many postponed plans due to COVID.
