Congressional leaders have announced an agreement on overall spending levels for the government's current fiscal year. A move that could help avoid a partial government shutdown later this month. The tentative deal does include some spending cuts although not nearly enough for many conservatives. The one-year agreement comes as America faces a long-term problem as the national debt just passed $34 trillion last week. That number is still growing at an alarming rate. The Congressional budget office projects the debt will hit $50 trillion by 2033 and just interest alone on the debt is surpassing spending on the US defense budget.

Pastor Samuel Vicente, Pastor Tim Neal, Bishop Samuel Hampton II, Pastor Artie Kassimis, Pastor Steven Perry. If the scripture says “if you love me, you will keep my commandments” what commandments are we obeying if we are no longer under the law? In Luke chapter 6:46, Jesus says why call me Lord if you don’t do the things I say to do? We are not bound to the ceremonial things of the law, but thinking of the teachings of Jesus as the apostles did. We need to love the Lord, love one another, and follow the salvation plan.

The U.S. Supreme Court takes up a crucial case impacting the 2024 election today. The issue is whether states can keep former president Donald Trump off the ballot. The justices will hear arguments over a Colorado Supreme Court decision. It hinges on a constitutional amendment that prevents former office holders who engaged an insurrection from holding office again. It all has to do with President Trump's role in the January 6th attack on the US capital. The ruling will depend on how the word insurrection is defined whether January fits that definition and if the Justice's rule Trump played a major part.
