

Philanthropic Supporters

The stories shared, the growth achieved and the meaningful changes made as a result of NPR's reporting in 2018 would not have been possible without the support and generosity of all of our Member stations, donors and corporate sponsors. Our deepest thanks to all of the following people and institutions who power NPR.

Gifts made between October 1, 2017 - September 30, 2018

Joan B. Krooc Legacy Society

In 2003, philanthropist Joan Krooc left the largest bequest in public radio history to NPR, marking a transformational moment for the network. To honor her enduring generosity, NPR created the Joan B. Krooc Legacy Society to celebrate enthusiastic supporters who make their mark on the future of public media by establishing charitable annuities, life income agreements, bequest intentions or other planned gifts to benefit NPR.

We are incredibly grateful to all members of the Joan B. Krooc Legacy Society, without whom we could not continue our important work.

The late Joan B. Krooc. Travis Geell, courtesy Joan B. Krooc Institute for International Peace Studies
