Phone: (407) 896-4231 (282)

Date: 5/19/12

Duration: 30:00

Issues:

The Orlando Museum of Art is currently featuring an exhibit, Reflections: Florida Art created between 1865 and 1965. Although the artists themselves were from all over, Florida's people and landscape are the subjects for their paintings and drawings. Goodier-Mojher described many of the pieces and explained the evolution that occurred as more people populated the state. She also invited listeners to enjoy a special event, Storytellers of Central Florida Present Tales of Florida: Past and Present.

Janine Arrowsmith, Volunteer

Phone:

Date: 5/13/12

Duration: 30:00

Issues:

Ricketson invited listeners to the second annual Apopka Military Ball. He said that he organized the first Ball because, although Memorial Day cemetery ceremonies are important, he wanted a way to honor veterans while they are still alive. The community of Apopka embraced the idea and provided a special experience for over 300 veterans. This year they hope to duplicate that success and raise money for veterans who are experiencing financial difficulties. Arrowsmith explained why this event is so important to the community of Apopka.

Date: 6/10/12

Duration: 30:00

Issues: Hodapp is the author of books including Freemasons for Dummies and Solomon's Builders: Freemasons, Founding Fathers and the Secrets of Washington D.C. He described how the history of masonry is so closely intertwined with the history of many U.S. communities like our local Apopka. The reason is because lodges were the center of social life for men in the 19th century, so towns often sprung up around them. Finally, he speculated as to the future of masonry in the United States.

Organization:

Guest(s): Homer Hickam, Author

Phone: Homerhickam.com

Date: 6/23/12

Duration: 30:00

Issues: Hickam's new youth fiction book, Crater, is the first of a trilogy of stories set on the moon. The main character, Crater, is a teenager who works in a Helium 3 mine, Hickam says that this is based in science fact, and that energy experts believe that there will be Helium 3 mines on the moon. Hickam, who trained astronauts for NASA, also commented on the proposed asteroid mining expedition funded by individuals like James Cameron. In his opinion, there isn't even a mining expert on the team, so it's not likely to be successful. Finally, he spoke about politics.

Issues: Miller spoke about the controversy surrounding this year's FCAT results, which were so much lower than last year's. He explained how this kind of standard assessment works and how the results are interpreted. Miller said he thinks that there are some problems with FCAT because changes are being made too quickly, before certain data is being evaluated. As such, he says, comparisons from one year to the next become difficult.

school bus driver in trouble-R- 05 28 2012

A decision could be made this week about a Lake Co school bus driver who made 27 people sick with an insecticide. The district is investigating why 52 year old Pablo Aries (Air-E-S) put a can of insecticide on the bus with children. He told deputies he picked up the canister from someone's trash and planned to take it home. Twenty-seven people had to be decontaminated with soap and water on Friday.

Lake co school board dispute-R-06 05 12

There still no resolution tonight even after the Lake County School board tried last night to work out a dispute over its Valedictorian policy. Last week a brother and sister missed out on the top honor at Mt. Dora High School. A home school student who attended just one class at the school had a slightly better GPA so they ended up being the Valedictorian.

Last night the board decided to meet with faculty to talk about changing the policy but board members would still have to vote to approve any changes.
