	12/31/22	10:00-11:00pm

In Faces of the Carolinas, Queen City News reporter John Le tells stories rich in character, painting a vibrant picture of the towns and communities we call home. John Le introduces viewers to citizens who are the epitome of courage and grace: from the veteran whose business feeds his passion and others, to the man whose near death experience has him working to save lives every day with every single beat he counts, to the little girl diagnosed with a rare, genetic brain disease who finds out her friends include many strangers who have heard her story and just want to help.

Queen City News: Final Disrespects 12/27/22 6:30-7:00pm

Queen City News Chief Investigator Jody Barr give an update on the investigation into the disappearance of property after Hollis Slade's sudden death in January 2021. Security camera footage shows some of Slade's former coworkers and hunting buddies, including Marlboro County Deputy Probate Judge Tammy Bullock, remove items from his home after his death. The footage includes video as well as audio discussions of the search for a will, but also of money and papers taken with the intent of withholding them from Slade's family. The Slade family asked Marlboro County Sheriff Charles Lemon to investigate, and he said he would, but never did. A South Carolina Law Enforcement Division investigation was recently closed and the findings handed over to the South Carolina Attorney Generals. Tammy Bullock resigned as Deputy Probate Judge and a subsequent investigation into Sheriff Lemon resulted in his arrest on unrelated charges.

Queen City News: Manner of Death	12/30/22	6:30-7:00pm
----------------------------------	----------	-------------

A grown man found hanging in his bedroom and the only suspect the mother of his child. The Darlington County (South Carolina) Sheriff's Office assumed it was a suicide, but the Coroner's office stepping in with evidence suggesting someone killed Jason Hoover. Even though two pathologist's reports agree with the coroner, the Sheriff's homicide investigator didn't believe the evidence. Queen City News Chief Investigator Jody Barr talks with Hoover's mother, who insists they Sheriff's office was wrong and has worked for five years to uncover evidence she believes the investigation should have discovered themselves. The Sheriff's office has re-opened the case after Queen City's news stories aired. The investigation is ongoing.

Queen City News: Seize & Destroy 12/30/22 4:00-5:00am

Queen City News Chief Investigator Jody Barr shares the story of one farmer's federal lawsuit alleging that members of South Carolina's top law enforcers, SLED, the State Agriculture Department and the State Attorney General's office conspired to illegally arrest the farmer and destroy millions of dollars of hemp that he had a legal license to grow and of hiding evidence from federal investigators. All charges against the farmer have been dismissed.

Queen City News: The Confession 12/28/22 6:30-7:00pm

Caleb James, a high school senior, died of a single gunshot on girlfriend's floor. His mother was convinced his girlfriend pulled the trigger. The Darlington County, South Carolina's sheriff's office investigated and concluded it was either suicide or an accidental death. After James' mother reached out to Queen City News Chief Investigator Jody Barr for help, his work resulted in the sheriff's office re-opening the investigation and eventually arrested the girlfriend on murder charges and is free on bond with no court hearing set. The original lead investigator with the Darlington County Sheriff's Office on this case has since resigned.

Queen City News: Tarnished Trooper 12/29/22 6:30-7:00pm

Over hundreds of thousands of dollars and a bag of drugs were seized in a roadblock outside of Columbia, SC in July 2021. With a state investigation closed and no charges filed, there are still unanswered questions about what happened to some of the money that went missing. Queen City News Chief Investigator Jody Barr tells the story of the investigation into South Carolina State Troopers involved in the roadblock and subsequent arrest. In the end, one State Trooper was demoted and transferred.

46.1	Politics	6pm	10/19/2022	1:20	Queen City News at 6pm	Republican Ted Budd has widened his lead over Democratic candidate Cheri Beasley in the race for North Carolina's open Senate seat. A new East Carolina University poll shows Budd is leading Beasley 50 to 44% among likely voters. Last month he was leading Beasley by just 3 points. The poll comes after the candidates went head to head during a debate earlier this month.
46.1	Politics	5am	10/20/2022	1:00	Queen City News Now at 5am	Early voting is officially underway now in North Carolina. It's being called one of the most consequential elections for the state and the county, in recent memory. Queen City News visited polling locations across Mecklenburg County to get a sense of day one activity. Experts say they would not be surprised by a huge state turnout.
46.1	Transportation	6pm	10/27/2022	1:00	Queen City News at 6pm	Several weeks ago, railroad workers unions were threatening to strike. The White House stepped in and brokered a tentative deal. But now, two of those rail workers unions have voted against the agreement. That means a nationwide strike has a serious chance of happening, potentially in the middle of November. A railway strike means raw goods wouldn't go anywhere and routes for people using Amtrak would be canceled. The White House and lawmakers are now scrambling to keep this from happening.
46.1	Crime/ Law Enforcement	10pm	10/28/2022	1:41	Queen City News at 10pm	The City of Charlotte was awarded a million dollar grant to work with Cure Violence in three neighborhoods, Southside homes, West Blvd at Remount Rd and Nations Ford Rd at Arrowwood Rd. Community liaisons discussed deploying what they're calling "violence interrupters" to build relationships where there's division, utilize the program's relationship with CMS to target children and families who need help, all in efforts to turn this neighborhood around.

46.1	Minority Issues	4pm	10/31/2022	1:26	Queen City News at 4pm	The Supreme Court is hearing a case today regarding race as a factor in college admissions for both private and public universities. A coalition of Asian-American students is suing Chapel Hill and Harvard University, arguing the schools' admissions criteria unfairly singles them out, compared to black and Hispanic students.
46.1	Women's Issues	5pm	10/31/2022	1:23	Queen City News at 5pm	Joy Hoover, CEO of ESOES Cosmetics is using her passions of social work and cosmetology to come up with an every day device that could change women's lives. She has a line of lipsticks that have test strips in the base that can detect if a drink has been tampered with. The lipstick also comes with a panic button synced up with the ESOES app on your phone that can alert friends and authorities if you are in trouble.
46.1	Health/Health-care	12pm	11/1/2022	1:45	Queen City News at Noon	Across all of the Novant Health hospitals, doctors are seeing increased numbers of hospitalizations due to Respiratory Syncytial Virus, with significant impact to the number of available hospital beds for children. RSV can be severe in kids, older people and those with chronic conditions. Doctors believe some of the increase could be due to the COVID pandemic because not as many kids were around each other for the past couple of years. There is no vaccine for RSV, but Pfizer and its competitor GSK plan to submit their applications for a vaccine by the end of 2022.

46.1	Health/ Health-care	4am	11/4/2022	2:23	Queen City News Now at 4am	According to the CDC, suicide rates climbed for years before a 3% drop from 2019 to 2020, yet that same rate among police officers and firefighters hasn't declined. Ruderman Family Foundation published research showing officers and fire fighters are more likely to die by suicide than in the line of duty. Charlotte Fire and the Mecklenburg County Sheriff's Office have hired mental health professionals in the last few months. Many in law enforcement would say it's the perception of seeking mental health help that keeps them from picking up the phone. Now, having counseling separate from a first responder's health insurance and medical history has more feeling comfortable seeking the help they so desperately need.
46.1	Consumer Issues	4pm	11/9/2022	1:09	Queen City News at 4pm	AirBnB is unveiling new features to make pricing more transparent for hosts and users next month. In a tweet, the company's CEO said he's heard it loud and clear - that guests feel like prices aren't transparent and checkout tasks are a pain. CEO Brian Chesky plans on addressing the complaints with four changes: seeing total prices upfront, prioritizing total price search algorithm over nightly price, launching new pricing and discount tools, and cutting down on unreasonable checkout requests.

46.1	Government (Local)	12pm	11/10/2022	1:53	Queen City News at Noon	Since 2020, the city of Salisbury has been awarded four different grants from two different organizations. Salisbury Police used their first Duke Energy grant in 2020 to implement bias training for all officers. Last year's grant money was used for a series of community conversations with citizens. Now, they plan to use their next round of money towards bias training for all city staff. With their $800k grant from the Bureau of Justice Assistance, they're looking to transform the West End neighborhood, an area plagued by crime. Though the grant was awarded in January, they won't receive the money until they submit a detailed action plan to the BJA. They've spent this year doing a lot of behind the scenes work - canvassing neighborhoods and documenting problems at each property. Next year, they'll plan meetings for community feedback.
46.1	Business & Industry	12pm	11/10/2022	1:00	Queen City News at Noon	Retailers are pushing smaller and less expensive toys this holiday season. They're trying to keep prices down as parent struggle with inflation. MGA Entertainment is launching more than 200 new toys that are priced at or below $10. Retailers like Walmart and Target are also marking down toy prices in an effort to increase sales.
46.1	Crime/Law Enforcement	4am	11/11/2022	1:43	Queen City News at 4am	The latest jobs data for North Carolina shows the vacancy rate across state government climbed to 22.5% late this summer, up from 21.3% in spring. However, those rates are even higher in many public safety agencies, like prisons, where 40% of correctional officer positions are open. Public Safety Secretary Eddie Buffaloe says the state can't match the pay of local agencies. Deputy Secretary Billy Lassiter who oversees Juvenile Justice said he had 177 people turn down jobs at one facility, due to pay. While lawmakers have approved raises, state officials say salaries are still not competitive. They also want more workers to have annual raises built in and to boost pay in more expensive regions of the state. The state is also making Adult Corrections its own cabinet agency, separate from Public Safety.

46.1	Education	5pm	11/17/20 22	2:20	Queen City News at 5pm	According to this year's educator supply and demand report, 1 out of every 7 teachers in South Carolina did not return to teaching in the same South Carolina public school district this fall. This new data comes from the Center for Educator Recruitment and Retention and Advancement (CERRA). They say more than 8,300 educators left their jobs this summer, about 2,000 of them transferred to another school district in the state. But educator groups say the most startling number this year is the amount of vacant positions. At the start of the school year, school districts reported 1,400 vacant teaching positions, the most ever recorded by CERRA. This is despite school districts having about 500 fewer educator positions compared to last year. CERRA says school districts made 8,000 new hires before the start of the school year - 17% of those hires were graduates from South Carolina education programs, the lowest they've seen in 15 years. The South Carolina Education Association says policy makers need to make improvements to working conditions in the state's classrooms.

Quarterly Issues and Program List

46.1	Transportation	5am	11/17/2022	1:59	Queen City News Now at 5am	It's not a question of if, but when, traffic will become too congested along I-77 in South Charlotte. Data suggests that by 2050, the corridor would essentially become impassable. That's why the Charlotte Regional Transportation Planning Organization is here trying to find a solution. Earlier this year, CINTRA, a private developer, proposed adding a 9.4 toll corridor south of the city to connect with South Carolina. It's the same group behind toll lanes in northern Mecklenburg County. The proposal has been met with protests and lawsuits. There is also the question of financing the project. The organization could move forward with a public/private partnership contract, which could prove to be the quickest, but not the cheapest solution.
46.1	Business & Industry	7am	11/21/2022	1:00	Queen City News Now at 7am	If there is a rail industry strike, trucks would be the main way to get this shipped. But there are already not enough trucks available to carry all the loads. Officials with the Association of American Railroads Trade Groups estimated that 467,000 additional trucks a day would be needed to handle everything railroads deliver.
46.1	Transportation	10pm	11/27/2022	1:00	Queen City News at 10pm	Transportation officials with the Charlotte Douglas International Airport say they'll be fielding over 822,000 passengers to and from the airport, from Friday through tomorrow. The airport added an extra lane in checkpoint C ahead of construction set to begin in the new year, something travelers are hoping will help out with holiday congestion.

46.1	Health/ Healthcare	5am	11/28/20 22	1:07	Queen City News Now at 5am	Health officials are sounding the alarm about a possible spike in respiratory viruses as people gather this holiday season. This comes as the number of both flue and RSV cases continue to climb. Those at the highest risk include the immunocompromised and older adults. Young children face the highest risk for RSV. While COVID numbers remain relatively low, health experts are anticipating that will change because of new subvariants. They're suggesting to take precautions and take COVID tests before holiday gatherings. About half of new COVID cases are due to the new BQ Omicron subvariants.
46.1	Health/ Healthcare	4am	11/29/20 22	1:02	Queen City News Now at 4am	November is Alzheimer's Awareness Month and more than 160,000 people in North Carolina are living with dementia or Alzheimer's. State Health officials expect that number to double by the year 2030. One of the most common signs is memory loss that disrupts daily life. Neurologist Dr. Michael Vernes at Novant Health says it's beyond tasks like forgetting your keys, it's more like forgetting a family member's name or asking help from family members for things they used to handle on their own.

46.1	Education	4am	12/1/2022	1:19	Queen City News Now at 4am	Durham Police and other law enforcement agencies around North Carolina rushed to local area high schools after prank calls of active shooters earlier this week. In Charlotte, four high schools, Olympic High School, Mallard Creek High School, West Charlotte High School and Northwest School of the Arts received prank calls as well. Eight other schools in the state received similar calls with reports of students shot. Authorities in every situation found nothing. FBI Charlotte posted this message to their social media: "Hoax threats are a crime where a person can face state, local, and even federal charges."
46.1	Legal Matters	5pm	12/6/2022	1:41	Queen City News at 5pm	Becky Harper works in real estate and is on the board of Common Cause North Carolina. They sued Republicans in the North Carolina legislature over how they drew the state's legislative districts. Democrats on the State Supreme Court found the Republicans illegally drew North Carolina's 14 Congressional districts, designed to make it easier for Republicans to win seats. The Court ultimately adopted its own map of those districts. There ended up being a 7-7 split between the two parties in the election. Republicans say the court went too far and appealed the case to the U.S. Supreme Court. They are arguing what's known as the 'independent state legislature theory', saying state legislatures have the sole authority to regular federal elections in their states. Critics of the theory say the case could have implications for voting rights and legislatures accepting election results.

46.1	Minority Issues	10pm	12/8/2022	1:36	Queen City News at 10pm	In a landmark victory in the decades long fight for nationwide recognition of same sex and interracial marriages, the U.S. House on Thursday passed the Respect for Marriage Act, ensuring all states acknowledge every marriage is legal regardless of sex, race, ethnicity or national origin. 39 Republicans crossed the aisle to back the bipartisan legislation, protecting the hundreds of thousands of couple who tied the knot after the Supreme Court's 2015 decision legalizing same sex unions nationwide. The vote comes a week after the Senate passed the bill with support from 12 Republicans. Still, a majority of GOP lawmakers were not on board, some citing the impact on religious rights. Supporters of the bill have been trying to codify marriage rights since the Supreme Court's Dobbs decision in July, which overturned federal abortion rights and also included an opinion from Justice Clarence Thomas suggesting same-sex marriage should be reconsidered.
46.1	Business & Industry	9am	12/8/2022	1:23	Queen City News Now at 9am	Wholesale prices of used vehicles reached their lowest level in more than a year last month. Rising interest rates is sending car prices down as well as housing prices. The Manheim Used Vehicle sold at its U.S. wholesale auctions, has declined about 16% from record levels in January. New car prices are stabilizing as well.
46.1	Government (National)	10pm	12/13/2022	1:06	Queen City News at 10pm	A historic day for the LGBTQ community as President Biden signed the Respect for Marriage Act into law. Back in 2015, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that same-sex marriage was legal. But a future court could repeal that decision, similar to what the high court overturned its previous decision to legalize abortion. Because Congress and the President enacted this new law, the Supreme Court can't overturn it.

46.1	Transportation	5pm	12/19/2022	1:06	Queen City News at 5pm	The TSA said that as of Friday, their agents stopped 6,301 guns at checkpoints this year alone, and 88% of them were loaded. That's compared to about 6,000 firearms found in 2021. To discourage people from bringing weapons through checkpoints, TSA has now increased the civil penalty to nearly $15,000.
46.1	Business & Industry	9am	12/22/2022	1:39	Queen City News Now at 9am	U.S. gas prices will end the year with on a steady decline. AAA says the national average cost for a gallon of gas fell to $3.14, 12 cents less than last week. Gas prices have now dipped below $3 in about 20 states. Right now in North Carolina, the average price is $2.92 a gallon.
46.1	Business & Industry	6am	12/22/2022	1:20	Queen City News Now at 6am	Egg prices are hitting records, driven by an avian-influenza outbreak that has killed tens of millions of chickens and turkeys this year across nearly all 50 states. Egg prices have increased more than any other supermarket item so far this year, climbing more than 30% from January to early December. Grocers said they have been sacrificing some profits on eggs to keep prices for consumers competitive.
46.1	Business & Industry	4pm	12/27/2022	1:21	Queen City News at 4pm	The company behind the lab-grown meat product cleared by the FDA is taking the necessary steps to get its brand in stores. Before the company, Upside Foods, can bring its products to the market, its facility must meet USDA and FDA requirements. The company was founded by a Minnesota cardiologist with the aim of growing sustainable meat.

46.1	Crime/Law Enforcement	8am	12/29/2022	1:04	Queen City News Now at 8am	Greensboro Police are working to find the person behind a PayPal fraud scam that swindled a nonprofit out of $40,000. The crime was committed against Alternative Resources of the Triad, which organizes the Greensboro Pride Festival. Leaders say they discovered the theft after calling a phone number associated with a money request on their PayPal account. That number turned out to be a fake, giving the scammers access to the group's account. They're starting a Go Fund Me to help recover those funds.
