ABC NEWS SPECIALS– Third Quarter, 2008

HOPKINS (Six Part Series)

Thursday, July 3, 2008

In the second installment of "Hopkins," time is running out for a woman with an obscure lung disease, and a young surgeon is part of the effort to save her, even as he continues to deal with his own marital problems. The "Hopkins" series captures astounding scenes of medical crisis with young doctors forced to make life and death decisions on the fly. The result is a stunningly intimate portrait of the men and women who call this hospital home.

Thursday, July 10, 2008

In the third episode of "Hopkins" a woman from rural West Virginia finds an inner city Emergency Room to be an eye-opener, while a high spirited heart transplant patient plays hooky the day of his surgery and gambles with his life.

Thursday, July 17, 2008

In the fourth hour of Hopkins, a seemingly healthy toddler is rushed to Hopkins where his parents learn he may have a fatal heart ailment, while an unorthodox surgeon interrogates his residents about their romantic lives, as he himself approaches marriage for the third time.

Thursday, July 24, 2008

From a plastic surgeon who was told he wouldn't pass muster but now is performing miracles to three medical students whose patients sometimes feel like guinea pigs, the fifth hour of "Hopkins" documents what it takes to make it as a caregiver at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Thursday, July 31, 2008

In the sixth episode of Hopkins, a first year surgical resident makes a potentially career-ending mistake, while a pioneering surgeon tries the first bicoastal three-way kidney transplant in history.

Thursday, August 7, 2008

On the season finale of "Hopkins," doctors are perplexed by the heart of a young girl from China, and an ER doctor from earlier episodes asks a colleague to help her find a date.
