Producer: Martin Clancy; Support: Gail rosenberg; Jen Senan

PART I

Barbara Walters interviewed Vladimir Putin, former KGB agent and now President of Russia. Putin has joined with the U.S. to combat terrorism and was the very first world leader to contact Bush after the attacks on September 11th. He likes the way Bush takes action and believes it's a good thing that he is President of the United States. He has made efforts to be closer with the U.S. and claims to want nothing in return for his support. However, he will not return troops to Afghanistan, but has shared intelligence with the U.S. about other terrorist groups.

PART II

President Vladimir Putin is the youngest Russian President. He claims that the media's image of him does not depict who he really is but that it is slowly changing. He describes himself as calm. He grew-up poor but with lots of love and always wanted to work in intelligence.

MURDER MEMORABILIA

Producers: Candace Hewitt; Support: Erin Biddle

Correspondent Arnold Diaz reports on people profiting from selling memorabilia related to murder. David Berkowitz, the Son of Sam, says that many people are drawn to the sick horror of murder. The convicts cannot sell memorabilia directly, they must find someone to sell it for them. Coroner Rick Stanton collects and sells things from murderers. He makes 33% off of the sales and the rest goes to a bank account in the murderer's name. Andy Cann says that it is repulsive that people would make money off of a killer!

COMFORT ZONE

Producers: Steve Schnee; Karen Saunders; Support: Frank Silverstein

As a result of the attacks on the United States of September 11th, Americans are living for the moment! Bob Brown interviews various citizens regarding how the attacks have "pushed" Americans into either purchasing items they were holding off on or just taking chances they were afraid to take before. ie: plastic surgery, joining a dating service, looking for a romantic commitment. Psychologist Elizabeth Mills claims this is due to the loss of so many lives, people are now trying to live life!

GMAB -- CRAWLS

Producers: Frank Mastropolo; Support: Susan Welsh

John Stossel reports on the "crawls" that have been running across the bottom of television screens since the attacks on September 11th. The two men had hoped they could somehow land the helicopters on the roofs of the Twin Towers. Unfortunately, the winds and the heat from the fire were too intense and they were unable to land.

SUICIDE BOMBER

Producers: Joan Martelli; Tom Berman; Support: Marcia Biggs

President Bush warned that terrorists are trying to obtain briefcase sized nuclear weapons. John Quinones interviews various experts regarding Osama Bin Laden's attempt to find nuclear weapons. Dr. Graham Allison says the briefcase sized weapons are not the threat, the components of nuclear weapons that can be bought on the black market are! Dr. Joel Steinheilsler says that a dirty bomb is more of a threat, it can contaminate everything and everywhere!

IDAHO STANDOFF 2 PTS

Producer: Kate Harrington; Support: Jason Potts

PART I

In Idaho last spring a family of children between the ages of eight and sixteen held an entire county of sheriff's at bay. Arina McGuckin turned her mother in for child neglect. Joanne and Michael McGuckin started a normal family life together. Michael came from a family financially well off but decided to turn his back on it all and live the simpler life. Michael suffered from Scoliosis and deteriorated quickly. Thus as a result, the family deteriorated as well. Joann stopped caring for the children or the home. She kept them away from civilization in order to care for their father. Michael eventually died and Arina turned her mother in to save herself as well as her siblings.

PART II

The police lured Joanne McGuckin into town in a peaceful attempt to arrest her. As a result of her arrest, a sheriff's deputy was sent to the McGuckin house to pick-up the children. The children were scared and they scattered. The deputy was able to catch 15 year-old Ben until dogs ran the deputy off. A few days later authorities returned to the house and spoke to the children. Eventually the charges were dropped against Joanne McGuckin but she can not have her children returned until she undergoes therapy.

Thursday, November 15, 2001

FAA

Producer: Jill Rackmill; Support: Simon Surowicz

On September 11th there were various terrorist attacks on the United States. One of the attacks occurred on Flight 93. Flight 93 was 35,000 feet over Cleveland. The pilots, Jason Doll and Leroy Homer checked in with air traffic control. Three minutes later, the air traffic controllers heard screaming from the cockpit. The hijackers then mistakenly radioed the controller rather than addressing the passengers, they claimed to have a bomb. The plane turned from its Western course to the East. The transponder was then turned off and the air controller was unable to get a response. The plane crashed into a field in the Pennsylvania countryside.

NIKKI TAYLOR 2 PTS.

Producer: Jackie Payson; Support: Tom Goldstone; Lisa Ort

PART I:

Niki Taylor lived half of her life as a supermodel, until last spring. On April 29th Niki was a passenger in her boyfriend Chad Renniger’s car. While driving home from a club at 3:00 AM, Renniger lost control of his car and slammed into a utility pole. Niki got out of the car and curled up on the lawn. Upon arrival at the hospital, Doctor Jeffery Nicholas decided that they had to operate. She had three operations that night, had lost 80% of her blood, half of her liver, had internal bleeding and was in a coma for a month and a half. Yet she lived. The accident has changed her life and her activities are limited. But she is happy to be alive.

PART II:

Niki Taylor was 13 when she began working as a model and she was an instant success! By 18 she was a supermodel and a millionaire. By 19 she was married, had two children and got divorced. Then her sister died. And then came her car accident. She has been through a lifetime and back. She made her first public appearance since her accident last spring at the VH1 Fashion Awards. The doctors say it will be two years before she has her strength back. Taylor says she will never be the same again.

VIRTUAL REALITY WAR GAME

Producer: Kim Skeen; Support: Brian Hale; Michael Pickup

The Pentagon has a new training method. Head researcher at the Army's Training Simulation Instrumentation Command Mike Macedonia says his simulations are so realistic that the soldiers sweat from the pressure. Correspondent Chris Wallace is put in the fire zone where he takes a M-16 rifle and fires at Taliban soldiers. He is then put into an Abrams Tank simulator. He sweats profusely. If the soldiers do it wrong in simulation, they will do it wrong in the field.

MICK JAGGER

Producer: Kristen Strand; Support: Ani Mozian; Jason Potts

Correspondent Elizabeth Vargas interviews the one and only Mick Jagger. Mick Jagger has spent four decades in the public arena. He is notorious for being outrageous and shocking. But there is a whole other side of Mick Jagger. He has seven kids. He does not tell them of all his outlandish experiences but he is not uncomfortable discussing his past with them. He loves people of all ages, respects women and is good friends with his ex Jerry Hall. He once said he would retire before middle age but now he says forget it! INTERVIEW WITH VICE PRESIDENT DICK CHENEY

Producer: Dennis O'Brien. Support: Lisa Ort, Marcia Biggs

Diane Sawyer interviews the recently reclusive Vice President Dick Cheney, posing questions regarding the latest in the situation on the ground in Afghanistan, the Administration's position toward Iraq, and the state of the US economy.

DNA PATERNITY

Producer: David Perozzi, Dennis O'Brien. Support: Iman Hobbs, Sara Holmberg (3 Parts)

Correspondent John Quinones investigates the growing trend confronting private DNA diagnostic labs today: couples who ask the burning question, "who is the father of my child?" Primetime will be there as parents-to-be discover their verdict and enter the realm of emotional confusion and paternity suits.

GROUNDING IN GANDER

Producer: Jude Dratt, David Perozzi. Support: Jason Rovou, LaNeice Collins

Correspondent Jay Schadler profiles the tiny enclave of Gander, Newfoundland on the day the world stopped, Sept 11th. Aircraft rerouted to Gander increased its population by 100% and 38 as opposed to 3 airplanes traveled that day. What ensued was a small-town, heartfelt outpouring for these airline "refugees," a warm occasion during a cold time.

STALKING THE RIPPER (JACK THE RIPPER – 3 PTS.)

Producer: Lee Hoffman; Support: Roje Augustin; Jason Potts; Jack Pyle; Gina Pampinella

It is the greatest unsolved crime in modern history, the legendary slayings of Jack the Ripper: serial killer who brutally murdered five women in London's East End in 1888. This week on Primetime Diane Sawyer takes us into the eerie gloom of Ripper saga and Patricia Cornwell's ardent hunt for the killer's true identity. Cornwell is certain she's found him...but are we?

SUICIDE BOMBER

Producer: Joan Martelli; Support: Marcia Biggs, Faith Jones

Correspondent John Quinones takes us on a journey to Israel where certain men become heroes--even martyrs, revered by their countrymen--when they strap on deadly explosives to become human bombs. Quinones talks to families, friends, and kinsmen of suicide bombers and finds out just what bombers' last days were like, and how life goes on without them.

IT (Q&A)

Producer: Jim DuBreuil

A whimsical Q&A wraps up Primetime this week: Inventor Dean Kamen, recently in the headlines for his one-person, battery-powered scooter, the Segway Human Transporter, claims he will revolutionize transportation with his gadget...and reveals a couple of personal things about himself in the process!

ATTACK SCAMS

Correspondent: Arnold Diaz; Producer: Glenn Ruppel; Support: Deborah Runcie

As if the attacks weren't traumatic enough, some Americans stand accused of stealing from the widows, victims, and families of September tragedies. Arnold Diaz interviews the family of Fireman Carl Lasaro who was robbed by her neighbor after receiving an $8,000 donation, Sandra Miranda's credit card was stolen when a friend pretended to be mourning her death and Charles and Cynthia Gavett filed a false insurance claim.

RUDY II – 2 PTS.

Correspondent: Barbara Walters; Producers: Alan Goldberg;

Support: Eric Strauss; Myrna Toledo

Barbara Walters interviews Rudy Guliani before his departure as Mayor. Rudy believes that the sight where the towers fell should be turned into a memorial first. He has attended numerous funerals since the attacks. He tells children that have lost their parents that no one can ever take who their parents were away from them. Once retired, Rudy will be starting his own business.

LEUKEMIA GIRL

Correspondent: Bob Brown; Producer: Dean Irwin; Support: Jen Fukui

Anthony Careleo is a fireman in Brooklyn. He signed up as a bone marrow donor. Xiovira Mendez is a triplet who was diagnosed with Leukemia. She went through Chemo but had a relapse and desperately needed a bone marrow transplant. Anthony Careleo was called and he saved her life! They were not permitted to know anything about each other until a year later. The Careleo family and Mendez family met for the first time recently. The Mendez family called Anthony their angel.

GMAB-FAT BOY

Correspondent: John Stossel; Producer: Karen Saunders; Support: Donna Hunter

Taylor Bibian is an overweight child. His whole family is overweight and they claim it is due to genetics. He lives a very active life. The state of Florida took Taylor's family to court due to the belief that he was being neglected. The judge threw the case out of court.

MUNS CASE

Correspondent: John Miller; Producer: John Bilotta; Support: Camille Elhassani
Andy Munz disappeared 30 years ago from his Navy ship. The Navy claims he is a deserter and that he stole money from his crew mates. After all of these years his sister was not convinced. She managed to find old crew members and an investigator to re-examine the case. Turned out that Michael Lubron, also in the navy at the time of Andy's disappearance, had strangled Andy and dumped him in an oil tank. The navy ceremonially buried a casket in honor of Andy.

DRINKING GAME – 2 PTS

Correspondent: Dr. Tim; Support: Sylvia Johnson
The editor's of "Men's Health" set up a drinking game for three young men of various sizes. The first one to get drunk loses. They start with gin and tonic, to vodka to beer. They pass sobriety tests but aren't far from the legal limit. They were all surprised to see how they rated legally, versus their friends.

10 KIDS

Friday, November 9, 2001

AFGHAN AID WORKER

Producer: Jeff Diamond; Support: Vivian Ortiz

John Weaver is an American relief worker in Northern Afghanistan and refuses to leave. Originally from North Carolina he is now running a food-for-work program in Afghanistan. The program enables men to earn food while building or rebuilding houses, buildings, roads, etc. He speaks Arabic and wears the native clothing. His parents fear for his life and urge him to return home. However, he loves his work and is content where he is.

NORMAN ROCKWELL PIECE

Producer: Alan Goldberg

A look at a Norman Rockwell exhibit being held at the Guggenheim Museum. A few of Rockwell's paintings on display are "The Four Freedoms" – freedom of speech, freedom of worship, freedom from fear, and freedom from want. As a result of the September 11th attacks on America, The New York Times is paying the Rockwell family estate for the right to alter his paintings, adding a scarred New York skyline to one.

BOOTCAMP REDUX

Producer: Marc Dorian; Support: Deobrah Runcie

20/20 followed six young women as they entered boot camp in the hopes of bettering their lives. The training was tough and some were close to quitting but they stuck it out and are now soldiers. The women say if they had anticipated a war they may have changed their minds about enlisting. Nevertheless, they say they are ready to go.

EVIL

Producer: Kayce Freed; Support: Mike Mendelsohn

Evil is a word that has become redundant since the September 11th attacks on the United States. We simplify things for our children by classifying people/situations into good or evil. In movies, there is the good guy and the evil guy. However, in real life and for adults, it's more complex than that. Professor Jacob Newsner's definition of evil is "when the human condition is corrupted by a person or people with ill-will."

ABED HAMMOUND

Producer: Howie Masters; Support: Deborah Apton

Abet Hammound came to the United States from Lebanon. It took him five years and a few months to become a citizen but he did it. He is now an attorney in Dearborn, Missouri. He recently ran for Mayor but lost to his opponent – partly because of his Middle Eastern background. He loves this country and only wishes he could change the events of September 11th.

QUILTS

Producer: Catherine Upin; Support: Erin Biddle; David Puente

Betsy Nielsen is from a small Iowa farm community. Betsy, like all other Americans was deeply saddened by the events of September 11th and wanted to do something caring for the victims of the WTC attacks. She began by making a quilt and enlisting the rest of the community to participate in making quilts. Their goal is to make at least four thousand quilts, one for each of the victims' families.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS

Producer: Carol Berczuk

Dr. Nancy Snyderman is a journalist as well as a doctor. She gives a personal synopsis of her stay in Pakistan. She visits the hospital where the wounded are taken. Most of the wounded are innocent children caught in the crossfire of war. Other children are suffering from malnutrition. Refugee children have very hard lives, they begin working at age five in carpet shops or as garbage collectors.

THE FIRETRUCK

Producer: Alan Goldberg

As a result of the September 11th attacks on the United States, citizens everywhere want to do their part to contribute. In Holden, LA, the Ferrara Fire Apparatus Company builds fire trucks. The people of Holden are holding a statewide campaign called "Bucks for Fire Trucks" for a new truck to send to a firehouse in Brooklyn. The New York Fire Department had lost over 300 firefighters and 35 fire trucks.
