

Issues-Program List, April - June, 2017

From the News Department

1. Drought and cattle sales -- 6/16/17 2:19 Todd McDonald
2. Oil production stays over 1 million barrels -- 6/13/17 3:45 Dave Thompson
3. Drug courts -- 4/12/17 5:05 Meg Luther Lindholm
4. Clean coal research -- 6-19-17 4:34 Amy Sisk
5. Governor v. Legislature court case pending -- 6/26/17 4:46 Dave Thompson

From Main Street

April 5

3:06 p.m.

24 minutes

Dr. Kelvin Lim at the University of Minnesota is studying the brain to better understand the conditions that create addiction and lead to relapse after addiction treatment.

April 17

3:06 p.m.

18 minutes

Writer and former fraud investigator Nick Sconce joins us to discuss waste, fraud and abuse in the health insurance industry, and he suggests some ways to help address the crisis in the cost of healthcare coverage.

May 8

3:11 p.m.

15 minutes

Our recent "Journeys Through Justice" series of from producer Meg Luther Lindholm looked at the issue of prison overcrowding and strategies that could help. Continuing that theme, we visit with Ellen Condliffe Lagemann, who makes the case that education is a key strategy that can reduce recidivism and violence, while ultimately saving money. She's the author of "Liberating Minds: the Case for College in Prison."

May 26

3:06 p.m.

20 minutes

Sean Brotherson, NDSU Extension family science specialist joins us to discuss talking with children about terrorism.

June 7

3:06 p.m.

24 minutes

Divorce happens to more than 2 million people a year in America. Child psychiatrist Mark Banschick advocates an approach that can keep the needs of the children paramount as parents navigate the complexities of ending a marriage. He joins us to discuss "The Intelligent Divorce Course."

June 23

3:06 p.m.

20 minutes

Christopher Jones took the reins earlier this year at the North Dakota Department of Human Services when he was appointed by Governor Burgum as the agency's executive director. He joins us to discuss the many responsibilities of the agency and the challenges posed by this tough budget period.