A federal appellate court on Thursday overturned a $6.25 million settlement of two class-action lawsuits that alleged Chesapeake Energy Corporation cheated thousands of Pennsylvania landowners out of royalties they were owed. In a Times-Tribune report, the ruling from the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in Texas has rejected the deal that would have allowed more than 20,000 leaseholders to share in the settlements despite the fact they lost that right. The decision is a blow to class members who agreed to the terms of the deals but now face further delays in resolving the lawsuits filed in 2013 and 2014.

Researchers in heavily drilled Pennsylvania are adding to a body of evidence suggesting links between the natural gas industry and certain health problems. In the reports released Tuesday evening, University of Pittsburgh researchers found what they called significant associations between gas industry activity and two ailments: asthma, and lymphoma in children, who are relatively rarely diagnosed with this type of cancer. The researchers were unable to say whether the drilling caused the health problems, because the studies weren't designed to do that.

A gas leak this morning from a Bradford County well pad no longer poses a threat to the public. The county's Dept of Public Safety says that shortly after 3am Monday, the Bradford County 911 center was alerted by Repsol Oil and Gas of an uncontrolled gas leak from a well pad off State Route 14 in Troy Township. As a precaution, while air monitoring could be better established, an evacuation order was issued for a 1/2 mile radius of the pad, including the closure of a portion of route 14.

We're learning more about the incident that led to a brief evacuation yesterday in the area around a Bradford County well pad. WPEL's Mark Dorval has the latest...[Repsol] Repsol Oil and Gas says the first sign of trouble came at 9:30pm Sunday with the identification of a potential well control issue at their Cummings Lumber well pad. An investigation was immediately launched, culminating five hours later with confirmation that natural gas was indeed venting to the surface. Upon activation of Repsol's emergency-response plan, all personnel at the Troy Township site were accounted for.

Issue No. 2: Energy Issues (Continued)

On the topic of natural gas drilling in NEPA, a tension exists between the business of energy production and the protection of the environment. I'm David MacFadden. Governmental organizations, including the PA Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) and the US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) have raised concerns about the environmental impact of natural gas drilling in the Marcellus Shale. In NEPA, Cabot Oil & Gas Corporation and Cimarex Energy combined to form Coterra Energy in 2021. George Stark, director for external affairs at Coterra, spoke recently w/ Montrose Broadcasting Corporation president James Baker. George contends that Coterra is committed to responsible and transparent environmental, social and governance practices. [george1] Coterra Energy produces natural gas for the regional market.
