

Issue	Specific Issue	Date	Duration	Air Time	Story	Content	Reporter
Politics	elections	3/1/2019 0:00	05:41	5-9am	Can Jay Inslee talk a good game on	It can be tough being governor in the upper left corner of the country. Reporter Austin Jenkins says Gov. Jay Inslee has a signature issue, along with some big hurdles in running for president.	Angela King, Austin Jenkins
Arts & Life	psychology	3/1/2019 0:00	18:28	12pm	How do you handle your fears? Do you run the other way or face them head on?	How do you handle your fears? Do you run the other way or face them head on? What are you afraid of? Do you really know?	Bill Radke, Alison Bruzek
Arts & Life	news review	3/1/2019 0:00	51:27	12pm	This week there is a green new presidential candidate	Bill Radke reviews the weeks news with the C is for Crank writer Erica Barnett, Seattle Channels Civic Cocktail host Joni Balter and columnist for Crosscut Knute Berger.	Bill Radke

Environm ent	politics	3/1/2019 0:00	04:10	3-6:30pm	Gov. Jay Inslee says he's the climate candidate. So let's look at his record	In a Washington Post op-ed, Inslee called for an end to carbon pollution by mid-century, but in the Washington that he actually leads, he has only worked to cut pollution in half by that time.	John Ryan
Politics	elections	3/4/2019 0:00	08:28	5-9am	Washington Gov. Jay Inslee is rolling himself out to the nation this week as a 2020 presidential hopeful. But can he make it as a single-issue candidate?	Washington Gov. Jay Inslee is rolling himself out to the nation this week as a 2020 presidential hopeful. But can he make it as a single-issue candidate?	Angela King, Jason Pagano
Arts & Life	Full Record	3/4/2019 0:00	52:02	12pm	Will Paine Field make the friendly skies a little more convenient?	Sometimes good things can come in smaller airport packages. Shrimp are sucking oyster farms into the mud; controversial new legislation would change that. The indelible leopard continues to captivate our minds. And we talk about the rise of fentanyl.	Bill Radke

Politics	government	3/5/2019 0:00	04:28	5-9am	Money and TV ads tag along with Inslee in Iowa	Money and TV ads are following Washington Governor Jay Inslee on the campaign trail in Iowa.	Angela King, Jason Pagano, Austin Jenkins
Politics	elections	3/5/2019 0:00	04:50	3-6:30pm	Jay Inslee is campaigning in Iowa. But do voters there even know him?	Kim Malcolm talks with Iowa Public Radio reporter Clay Masters about Washington Governor Jay Inslee, and the challenges he's facing in gaining name recognition in Iowa.	Kim Malcolm, Andy Hurst
Arts & Life	race and equity	3/7/2019 0:00	07:00	12pm	'No!' Poet Anastacia-Renee Tolbert wants you to say it more often	No. The word is an exclamation. Its a noun. Its a complete sentence. It's also a luxury, according to poet Anastacia-Renee Tolbert.	Adwoa Gyimah-Brempong, Bill Radke
Education	sexual assault and harassment	3/7/2019 0:00	04:23	5-9am	Should Washington state public schools be required to teach sex-ed?	When Aren Wright was a freshman at Olympia High School, she asked her health teacher about dental dams and safe sex for lesbians.	Ann Dornfeld
Business	economics	3/14/2019 0:00	13:19	noon	Does Capitalism Have A Soul?	He created a way for average people to invest in the stock market, but remained a critic of capitalism until his dying day.	Ross Reynolds

Health	food	3/7/2019 0:00	11:46	noon	Food safety	Is it safe to eat at restaurants that don't have a perfect rating?	Deborah Wang, Ruby de Luna
Health	mental health	3/6/2019 0:00	04:29	5-9am	She called 911 and said she was suicidal. Then she was charged with a crime	After June called five times on St. Patricks Day, saying she was suicidal, she was charged with false reporting, a misdemeanor crime.	Patricia Murphy, Kara McDermott
Environm ent	food	3/11/2019 0:00	04:27	5-9am	A beach reborn and renamed for a clam--and for a 1,000-year tradition	Heading out through the mud to dig clams by hand, Holden was following the footsteps of his ancestors who were doing the same thing in the same spot 1,100 years ago.	John Ryan
Law	law and courts	3/6/2019 0:00	04:33	3-6:30pm	When teens send nude photos to each other, should that be a felony?	Kim Malcolm talks with Crosscut's Melissa Santos about a bill in the Washington state legislature that would change the laws surrounding teen sexting.	Andy Hurst, Kim Malcolm

Arts & Life	Full Record	3/6/2019 0:00	51:28	12pm	NFL combine: understandable, or exploitative?	Young men on display: not Chippendales, but the NFL combine. Washington might ban single use plastic bags, but how should we think about the specific outcomes of our actions on creatures like orcas? And the club of people cured of HIV/AIDS seems to have just doubled in size.	Bill Radke
Arts & Life	Full Record	3/6/2019 0:00	51:51	12pm	But does it spark joy?	In the battle for our consumerist souls: between Amazon and Marie Kondo, who will triumph? Mandatory housing affordability is not without its critics. And when you picture an environmentalist: who do you see?	Bill Radke
Politics	environment	3/7/2019 0:00	04:34	5-9am	Can Inslee and the Democrats beat the win the battle to define the Green New Deal	You'd think Democrats would be ecstatic that Senate Republican leader Mitch McConnell wants to bring the Green New Deal up for a vote.	Angela King, Jason Pagano

Business	politics	3/7/2019 0:00	56:04	10pm	First (amendment) for a reason: fake news, press freedom and the business of journalism now	Journalist Jill Abramson on newsmaking and truth-telling in a fact-challenged society.	John O'Brien
Arts & Life	public art	3/12/2019 0:00	04:37	5-9am	What's with these bronze footprints in the sidewalk?	More than 40 years ago Seattle adopted a pioneering ordinance to fund art in public spaces. You'll find that art everywhere: in the streets, at public utility stations, even on the sidewalks.	Marcie Sillman
Politics	Week in Review	3/8/2019 0:00	51:37	12pm	This week we're asking do tech companies have too much power?	Bill Radke reviews the weeks news with KUOW's web editor Sydney Brownstone, co-chair of the Washington Independents Chris Vance and Crosscuts politics reporter Melissa Santos.	Bill Radke, Amina Al-Sadi

	Full Record	3/11/2019 0:00	51:11	12pm	Heather Anderson's thirst to be the best	Go big (across the entire country) or go home. Boeings latest 737 Max 8 crash is raising serious safety and training questions. How do you recover from addiction? And the queer community you might be overlooking in so-called flyover states.	Bill Radke
Arts & Life	hiking	3/12/2019 0:00	13:00	12pm	This 'reformed couch potato' is a legendary hiker	Three-time Triple Crown backpacker Heather Anderson of Seattle discusses thru-hiking with Bill Radke.	Bill Radke, Alison Bruzek
Education	law and courts	3/11/2019 0:00	01:21	11pm	Hearing and telling trauma stories: A journalist's how-to	The #MeToo movement has opened a door to more and better reporting on rape and sexual assault issues.	John O'Brien
Environment	environment	3/28/2019 0:00	07:16	5-9am	An asphalt plant next to the Cedar River? Why?	Neighbors are up in arms over a proposal to build an asphalt plant across the street from critical salmon habitat.	Anna Boiko-Weyrauch

Arts & Life	Full Record	3/12/2019 0:00	51:33	12pm	As you can imagine, it's a complex decision' Mike O'Brien on tapping out	Councilmember Mike OBrien gives us an exit interview. The Not In My Backyard Olympics have come to Magnolia. And a new law could reverse decades of Native disenfranchisement in Washington State.	Bill Radke
Arts & Life	Full Record	3/12/2019 0:00	52:30	12pm	Are we prejudiced against our future selves?	Embrace that rocking chair. The argument on nuclear power isnt as cut and dried as it seems. And following this weekends crash, Boeing 737 Max 8s have been grounded in countries around the world - but not here.	Bill Radke
Politics	transportation	3/13/2019 0:00	03:51	5-9am	No drivers test, no speedometer, no problem?	A pedestrian in Seattle wants to know why bicyclists aren't stopping at crosswalks. Do cyclists even know they have to?	Casey Martin
Technology	military	3/14/2019 0:00	14:00	12pm	What responsibility does Microsoft have if their 'HoloLens' is used in war?	Bill Radke spoke with a former creative director for HoloLens Monte Michaelis and Wendell Wallach, scholar at the Yale Interdisciplinary Center for Bioethics, about how the technology could be used in war, and what Microsofts responsibility is.	Bill Radke, Jennie Cecil Moore

Arts & Life	culture	3/13/2019 0:00	13:34	Podcast	RadoActive hits the road	Teens from the Yakima Valley, Seattle Indian Health Board and the Coalition for Refugees from Burma share their thoughts on tortillas, English K-pop.	RadioActive Youth Media
Arts & Life	transportation	3/14/2019 0:00	11:44	Podcast	There's no drivers' test for bicycling. So does anybody really know how to ride?	Does Seattle give bicyclists a free ride on following the rules of the road? SoundQs takes a look at what happens when the paths of pedestrians and cyclists cross.	Deborah Wang, Casey Martin
Arts & Life	Full Record	3/13/2019 0:00	51:42	12pm	Investigation exposes bribery and fraud in college admissions	How did you get into college? We look at the scandal that federal authorities are calling the biggest college admissions scam ever prosecuted by the U.S. Justice Department. We also look at why King County has halted its inquests, and what that means for those awaiting justice. And we replay our interview with author Lindy West, whose new Hulu show Shrii, is out this week, based on her book.	Bill Radke

Politics	homeless	3/14/2019 0:00	06:11	3-6:30pm	Inside the threat of eviction	Thousands of people face evictions in Washington state every year. Housing advocates say the process happens fast, disproportionately impacts people of color, and can land people on the streets. State lawmakers want to change eviction laws to help tackle one piece of the homelessness crisis.	Kate Walters
Business	Boeing, business, politics	3/14/2019 0:00	05:42	3-6:30pm	Boeing's political relationships come under scrutiny	Boeing's CEO reportedly called President Trump this week to advise him on what to do, showing just how connected the aviation giant is in our nation's Capitol.	Andy Hurst, Kim Malcolm

Arts & Life	Full Record	3/14/2019 0:00	49:39	12pm	Do we worry too much?	What do you worry about? Plane crashes? GMOs? Climate change? We speak to two researchers who have investigated some of life's most common concerns. And we hear from the Seattle Times' Heidi Groover about the transit bills that have died in Olympia. Plus: an investigation by BuzzFeed News reveals a dark side to the World Wildlife Fund. And Marketplace Tech host Molly Wood talks about automated airplanes and where automation is headed.	Bill Radke
Arts & Life	food	3/15/2019 0:00	03:39	3-6:30pm	Bill will preserve Korean drinking tradition	Every culture has its own drinking customs. But sometimes those traditions clash with regulations.	Ruby de Luna
Business	politics	3/14/2019 0:00	59:53	11pm	Free press matters: The state of journalism today	News reporting is a crucial and costly endeavor. Here, veteran journalists discuss what it takes	John O'Brien

Environment	schools and education	3/15/2019 0:00	02:23	5-9am	Fifth-grader leading climate change strike in Tacoma to adults on climate change: 'You need to clean up your act'	When you're 11 years old, the future can look limitless -unless you fear your planet is dying. Theo Sullivan of Tacoma got worried about climate change and helped organize a school strike to focus attention on the issue.	Angela King, Jason Pagano
Politics	government	3/15/2019 0:00	05:23	5-9am	700 bills and counting	Halfway through this legislative session, nearly 700 bills have been passed by the Washington House or Senate. Which bills will survive?	Angela King, Jason Pagano, Austin Jenkins
Politics	Week in Review	3/15/2019 0:00	51:33	12pm	This week we're wondering about safety and ethics	Bill Radke reviews the weeks news with Seattle Channels Civic Cocktail host Joni Balter, former Washington State representative Jessyn Farrell and former Washington State attorney general Rob McKenna.	Amina Al-Sadi, Bill Radke
Arts & Life	journalism, business, economy	3/18/2019 0:00	07:42	3-6:30pm	Ten years ago, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer printed its final edition	Kim Malcolm talks with journalist Robert McClure about the legacy of the Seattle P-I, and how the end of the paper's print edition impacted the journalism landscape in the Puget Sound region.	Kim Malcolm, Andy Hurst

Arts & Life	Full Record	3/18/2019 0:00	51:36	12pm	Boeing's ultimatum: 'They can't survive it if they don't fix it'	Boeings signature jet may be grounded, but revelations about its most recent crash continue to swirl. At least one presidential hopeful wants to break up Amazon: is that necessary (or realistic)? And one womans story of honesty at long last about her OCD.	Bill Radke
Health	homeless	3/19/2019 0:00	03:51	5-9am	This outreach team is funded by the neighborhood	In a time when debates around homelessness often pit businesses and neighborhoods against people who are homeless, this team is one example of how local residents are trying to help fuel solutions.	Kate Walters
Arts & Life	Full Record	3/19/2019 0:00	50:28	12pm	Has Boeing lost too much trust?	Are we regulating the aviation industry the right way? Forbes reporter Marisa Garcia gives us a deeper look. And Brian Fies tells us about living through the devastating California wildfires of 2017. Plus, Mike Pesca gives us a preview of his March Madness bracket.	Bill Radke

Politics	traffic, transport ation, SoundQs	3/20/2019 0:00	03:12	5-9am	The most dangerous intersections in Seattle for red-light fatalities	Of those top most dangerous intersections, seven were downtown. Lucky number 8 on the list is the parking lot of the VA Puget Sound hospital on Beacon Hill.	David Hyde
Arts & Life	public art	3/21/2019 0:00	12:07	Podcast	Why does Seattle have so much public art?	A KUOW listener asked why there's so much public art in Seattle. Reporter Marcie Sillman travels back in time nearly 50 years to tell the sometimes-fraught story.	Deborah Wang, Marcie Sillman
Arts & Life	politics	3/21/2019 0:00	58:55	11pm	Millennial Mayor Pete .	Tackling a mayorship can be like "changing channels every five minutes between 'The Wire', 'Parks and Recreation', and, occasionally, 'Veep,'" said Pete Buttigieg	Sonya Harris
Arts & Life	Full Record	3/20/2019 0:00	51:11	12pm	Congresswom an Jayapal explains her plan for Medicare for all	Rep. Pramila Jayapal talks about her ideal single-payer health care system. We also get dating advice from Slate's Dear Prudence, Daniel Ortberg. And we ask: Can Governor Inslee delete comments on his Facebook page? Plus: Can local governments stop businesses from threatening to leave or move jobs, unless they get the tax breaks they want?	Bill Radke

Arts & Life	food	3/21/2019 0:00	03:33	3-6:30pm	Cookbook author Andrea Nguyen thinks you can make Vietnamese cooking part of your repertoire	You probably know your way around a Vietnamese menu- there's pho, bahn mi, and rice paper rolls. But have you ever tried making those dishes at home? California-based food writer and cookbook author Andrea Nguyen thinks you can.	Ruby de Luna
Arts & Life	race and equity	3/21/2019 0:00	03:16	3-6:30pm	Indigenous artists lift the sky at a new Seattle gallery	Indigenous artists inaugurate ARTS at King Street Station, Seattle's new cultural hub dedicated to social and racial equity.	Marcie Sillman
Arts & Life	Full Record	3/21/2019 0:00	51:00	12pm	Burned out? Here's some advice.	Millennials: burned out? Not a new phenomenon, with possibly ancient cures. Do you want your airline safety features to be like the after-market upgrades on your car? And: electroconvulsive therapy is the second most controversial medical procedure, other than abortion. Now the legislature might legalize its involuntary application.	Bill Radke

Business	transportation	3/21/2019 0:00	05:09	3-6:30pm	What will it take for Boeing to rebuild trust?	Kim Malcolm talks with Harvard professor Sandra Sucher about how Boeing can rebuild trust following two deadly crashes of its 737 Max 8.	Kim Malcolm, Andy Hurst
Politics	elections	3/22/2019 0:00	04:16	5-9am	Governor Inslee vs. Candidate Inslee on the Boeing tax breaks	On the campaign trail, Governor Inslee compares the $8.7B in aerospace tax breaks he pushed for back in 2013 to a corporate mugging. Political commentators Joni Balter and C.R. Douglas talk with KUOW's Angela King about why he's changed his tune.	Angela King
Arts & Life	identity	3/27/2019 0:00	11:59	Podcast	Where are you really from? Why Americans are so nationalistic	People often find ways to identify with and exclude others. We categorize ourselves by using gender, class, race and even age to connect with people like ourselves or separate ourselves from others. As a society, why are we more comfortable questioning our sexuality than our nationality and ethnicity?	Kamil Saad, Jadenne Radoc Cabahug

Health	government	3/22/2019 0:00	14:33	12pm	"70 percent of Americans believe that Medicare for All is a great plan and they support it."	Medicare for All is supported by the majority of Americans, Congresswoman Pramila Jayapal says.	Bill Radke, Alison Bruzek
Business	technology	3/25/2019 0:00	27:25	Podcast	Meet the foot soldiers of the 'wake word war'	As we say in the radio biz - the mic is always on.	Carolyn Adolph, Joshua McNichols
Politics	Week in Review	3/22/2019 0:00	50:46	12pm	This week is Seattle dying?	Bill Radke reviews the week's news with Erica Barnett from the C if for Crank, Founder of the Evergrey, Monica Guzman and Civic editor at Geekwire Monica Nickelsburg.	Amina Al-Sadi, Bill Radke
Law	law and courts	3/26/2019 0:00	04:00	5-9am	King County prosecutors help cut 'breathtaking' prison sentence	King County prosecutors say they're committed to reexamining older cases with long prison sentences in light of newer court rulings and research.	Amy Radil
Politics	government	3/25/2019 0:00	06:10	5-9am	Jayapal calls Barr	Seattle Congresswoman Pramila Jayapal says the Mueller investigation of Russian tampering in the U.S. election may be over, but House Judiciary Committee is just getting started.	Angela King, Jason Pagano

Politics	books	3/25/2019 0:00	02:04	5-9am	Michelle Obama packs a thrilled Tacoma Dome	It was just another book reading... with Sue Bird, Eddie Vedder, and Jimmy Kimmel. With over 18,000 screaming fans, Michelle Obama says Tacoma was the largest stop on her book tour.	Casey Martin
Politics	biking, transportation, Seattle City Council	3/25/2019 0:00	03:41	3-6:30pm	Ugly battle over bike lanes in Northeast Seattle	A battle over bike lanes in Northeast Seattle has been especially ugly, and possibly a sign of things to come in this year's Seattle City Council races.	David Hyde
Arts & Life	relationships	3/25/2019 0:00	00:00	12pm	Dear Prudence advises Seattleite: Use your words	There's something about advice columns: That little taste of socially-accepted voyeurism into other peoples problems.	Bill Radke, Adwoa Gyimah-Brempong
Arts & Life	Full Record	3/25/2019 0:00	49:55	12pm	Seattle University Law professor on the Mueller report: "I'm sure we'll see it eventually."	A law professor says the Mueller report was always just a prelude to a longer political battle. We also look at how kicking buses out of the downtown tunnel is causing Seattle's second period of maximum constraint and how black women use strategic ambiguity to resist racism today. Finally, we ask, should Washington state lower its voting age to 16?	Bill Radke

Politics	Donald Trump, Congress, politics	3/25/2019 0:00	04:25	3-6:30pm	Rep. Denny Heck calls for the full Mueller report to be made public	Kim Malcolm talks with Washington Congressman Denny Heck about the Mueller report, and why he wants Attorney General William Barr to release the full report to the public.	Kim Malcolm, Andy Hurst
Politics	incarceration, youth detention	3/26/2019 0:00	03:53	5-9am	Despite ban, King County still using solitary on young people	Two years ago the King County Council banned the use solitary confinement on young people. But a new report says its still happening.	Patricia Murphy
Health	mental health, suicide, Mental health focus	3/27/2019 0:00	07:03	5-9am	'What now' Parents try to put the pieces together after the suicide of their son	Calvin Clark was diagnosed with a severe form of bipolar disorder when he was a freshman in college. No one would treat him-their practices were full, or they didnt serve that age range or diagnosis, or they didnt call back.	Deborah Wang
Arts & Life	Full Record	3/26/2019 0:00	51:31	12pm	Embrace gender chill	Gender, anarchy, and the pursuit of being chill about it all. Also, Obamacares future might be in doubt again after an ongoing court battle. One of Seattles most pitched battles? Youll be shocked, shocked to hear that its about bike lanes.	Bill Radke

Business	technology	3/27/2019 0:00	04:51	3-6:30pm	We made our own version of Alexa. Here's what we learned.	Virtual assistants like Alexa are dumber than you'd think. And unlikely to go Skynet on us any time soon.	Joshua McNichols, Kim Malcolm, Andy Hurst
Arts & Life	politics	3/28/2019 0:00	54:00	11pm	Colorism and negotiations: Ignite #38 keeps it interesting	Ignite #38 talks ranges from colorism, to uber driver confessions to dating tips from a former Dominatrix.	Sonya Harris
Environment	salmon	3/28/2019 0:00	16:08	Podcast	How a moment of national fame sealed the fate of Ballard's sea lions	Years ago, sea lions treated the Ballard Locks like an all-you-can-eat salmon buffet. But most of those sea lions are gone now. What happened to those sea lions? The SoundQ's team investigates.	Deborah Wang, Matt Martin
Technology	business	4/1/2019 0:00	18:03	Podcast	Are you ready for Amazon to be the brains in your house?	On this episode of Prime(d), we talk with David Choffnes, Assistant Professor in Computer Science at Northeastern University. He helps run a lab studying IoT devices.	Carolyn Adolph, Joshua McNichols
	Full Record	3/27/2019 0:00	51:06	12pm	Should Washington state have a capital gains tax?	We debate whether or not the state should tax on capital gains. Also, is the east-west divide in Washington state growing more divisive? Plus, we could soon have a state dinosaur. But don't we already have one?	Bill Radke

Arts & Life	Full Record	3/29/2019 0:00	51:17	12pm	Doing Justice' to the age of Trump	Preet Bharara on holding the powerful to account. The UW is testing male birth control - scientifically and socially, will it work? And a look at how we use and define the term: radicalized.	Bill Radke
Politics	environment, politics, agriculture, dams	3/29/2019 0:00	12:21	12pm	Is Washington's East-West divide growing more divisive?	One side argues the four dams in southeastern Washington should stay to preserve the area's economy. The other side claims removing the dams will help maintain our local orca population.	Bill Radke, Alison Bruzek
Arts & Life	food	3/29/2019 0:00	03:51	3-6:30pm	There are just a few 24-hour diners left in Seattle. Will they survive?	Remember the cocktail lounge Sorry Charlies? How about Sit and Spin—the downtown laundromat where you could listen to music in between loads?	Ruby de Luna
Health	government	3/29/2019 0:00	03:57	3-6:30pm	Tobacco age will soon be 21 in WA. But will it stop kids from smoking?	Kim Malcolm talks with Washington State Secretary of Health, Dr. John Wiesman about raising the tobacco purchase age to 21.	Kim Malcolm, Andy Hurst

Politics	Week in Review	3/29/2019 0:00	50:30	12pm	This week are we being heard?	Bill Radke reviews the weeks news with former Democratic state representative Jessyn Farrell, Former Republican state representative Chris Vance and former Seattle mayor Mike McGinn.	Bill Radke, Amina Al-Sadi
Arts & Life	arts	3/29/2019 0:00	04:20	3-6:30pm	Your weekend in Seattle-area arts	KUOW's Arts and Culture reporter Marcie Sillman has some suggestions for your weekend's cultural recreation	Marcie Sillman