Law enforcement agencies in Christian County are encouraging residents to be extra aware and take the necessary precautions after a recent string of break ins and car burglaries outside of the Taylorville City Limits. The Taylorville Police Department says that with warmer weather, criminals are looking for easy scores. They offer some tips including making sure cameras are functioning and charged, parking your vehicle as close to your residence as possible and in a well lit area, or even having a motion activated light in the area you park your vehicle. Kia's and Hyundais seem to be the most targeted vehicles that are stolen.

According to studies, there are 810,400 reported car robberies each year with 21,098 cars stolen in Illinois alone every year. This means that every 43 seconds in the United States, a car is stolen. To deter car thefts, use audible and visual deterrent methods such as car alarms, steering locks, and brake locks. Do not leave vehicles unlocked and make sure valuables are kept out of sight.

The Christian County Sheriff's Office encourages you to get into a "9PM Routine" where you go through a checklist at 9 pm every night making sure you remove valuables, lock your door, close the garage door, lock the inner garage door, close and lock all exterior doors, shut and lock all exterior windows, and turn on exterior lights.

If you see anything suspicious please call either the Taylorville Police Department non emergency number at 217-824-2211 or the Christian County Sheriff's Office at 217-824-4961.

The corporate office of a local grocery store that has been shut out, is speaking out. Kroger Company has sent a statement to Regional Radio News concerning the Taylorville Kroger that had been shut down recently due to asbestos. Eric Halvorson, Manager of Corporate Affairs with Kroger released the following statement.

"The company is diligently working with the EPA and expert remediation partners to analyze and address the issue. With safety as one of our core values, we will reopen as soon as the EPA rescinds the order and we are able to do so safely. We apologize for any inconvenience to our customers and community and plan to reopen as quickly as possible."

Halvorson continued by stressing that all 90 associates in Taylorville were offered several options moving forward including working in Decatur. He says some have chosen to leave and some are taking a vacation. Halvorson continued by thanking the many associates of Kroger and the patience of their customers.

A lawsuit has been filed against Taylorville Kroger by the State of Illinois and the Attorney General. Attorney General Kwame Raoul announced a lawsuit against Kroger and SSI Services in relation to alleged improper handling and removal of materials containing asbestos from Kroger.

The lawsuit maintains that Kroger and SSI conducted unsafe renovations by leaving chipped floor tiles that contained asbestos in areas accessible to the public while the store was open. This created a substantial danger to the health of customers and the employees. There is no known safe exposure level to asbestos and inhalation can cause serious and fatal illnesses including malignant lung cancer, mesothelioma, and asbestosis.

Attorney General Kwame Roul blasted both Kroger and SSI in a statement where he said, "Kroger and SSI Services have jeopardized the public's health by exposing shoppers and employees to dangerous materials containing asbestos. The asbestos must be remediated before members of the public are allowed back into this store. I am committed to ensuring that Kroger and SSI Services are held accountable for creating this hazard and for preventing any further harm to the pbulic's health and the environment."

The Attorney General says that the defendants failed to remove tiles and an adhesive known as mastic which both contain asbestos before doing work that would break up or dislodge the materials. Additionally, the complaint says the defendants failed to ensure that all materials containing asbestos remained wet until collected and contained or treated in preparation for disposal. Kroger and SSI also failed to dispose of all material that contained asbestos.

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency issued a seal order on July 29th to protect public health and Attorney General Raoul says that remediation must be met before the store is reopened. IEPA Director John J. Kim says, " The Illinois EPA referred this case to the Attorney General's Office to ensure Kroger and SSI are held responsible for the improper removal of asbestos in the store, resulting in an unacceptable risk to the store's customers and employees. We are committed to ensuring thestore is properly remediated prior to reopening for the safety of the employees and customers."

The Illinois EPA is announcing the issuance of over 250 million dollars in water infrastructure loans to local governments and sanitary districts for the fourth quarter of the 2022 Fiscal Year. The Illinois EPA State Revolving Fund Program provides low-interest loans which fund wastewater, stormwater, and drinking water projects. In total for the entire year, the Illinois EPA issued over 557 million dollars in wastewater, stormwater, and drinking water loans.

The City of Pana received a loan to upgrade the existing water treatment plant with a new Powdered Activated Carbon feed system and a new building to house the system. The EPA says the current building is past its useful life. The project will relocate the PAC feed system and storage to a dedicated building designed to meet current standards for hazardous environments.

The Village of Butler in Montgomery County will construct a 73,000 gallon water standpipe, install a watermain, demolish the existing standpipe, and install other related equipment. These projects the EPA says, will improve the Village's water distribution system infrastructure. Butler also received a $550,000 DCEO construction grant.

Schram City also in Montgomery County will install watermain, water meter reconnections, storm sewers, water services reconnections, sidewalk replacement, and other equipment.

The Illinois Department of Agriculture and Labor remind all farm workers to stay safe, especially during the busy harvest season. Governor JB Pritzker has declared the week of September 18-24th as National Farm Safety and Health Week in Illinois. The theme will be “Protecting Agriculture’s Future.”

The latest data from the US Bureau of Labor Statistics shows the ag sector is one of the most dangerous in America with over 500 fatalities nationwide every year. Jerry Costello, Director of the Illinois Department of Agriculture says that it is important to bring awareness to physical dangers of farming but also the emotional toll it takes as well. Most farmworker injuries and deaths are caused by tractor overturns according to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. These incidences result in about 130 deaths each year nationwide.

Each day during National Farm Safety and Health Week, the IDOA will highlight emerging issues and important topics on Facebook and Twitter. On Monday, September 20th will be Tractor Safety and Rural Roadway Safety. On Tuesday, September 21st, will be Overall Farmer Health. Wednesday, September 22nd, will highlight Safety & Health for Youth in Agriculture. Thursday, September 23rd is Confined Spaces Day. The week will wrap up with Friday, September 24th, Safety & Health for Women in Agriculture.

Doctors are concerned over a recent decline in pediatric immunizations. According to studies from the CDC, national vaccine coverage among kindergarten children during the 2020-2021 school year dropped from 95% to lower than 94%. While that might not seem like much, that means 35,000 children more were not vaccinated this year. Dr. Rebecca Sierra is an OSF HealthCare pediatrician in Bloomington, Illinois. She says the downward trend is most likely a side effect of the pandemic.

SIERRA1 KEY: LENGT: 21

Dr. Sierra says while her office has not seen a decline in the demand for routine vaccinations. A decrease in vaccination rates could result in fewer communities maintaining herd immunity for preventable diseases like measles mumps and whooping coughs.

Dr. Sierra says the key to bucking this trend is for parents to keep up with yearly visits. These visits are important for keeping up with immunizations. This allows pediatricians to remind parents about vaccines and schedules and to address any concerns that parents have.

With almost all Illinoisan students head back to school this week and college students going back this month, the Illinois Emergency Management Agency is reminding all families to review their own emergency preparedness plans and school safety plans. Whether your children are in school, on a bus, at music practice, or with their youth sports teams, planning and sharing information with each other can be critical.

IEMA Deputy Director Scott Swinford says that severe weather and other emergencies can strike at any time. Knowing where to go and what to do for both you and your children can go a long way towards keeping them alive.

With the upcoming school year, IEMA has some tips for your family. Teach children with cell phones about “text first, talk later.” Sending a “Im OK” text message gets through way easier than a phone call. Explain the basics of weather preparedness for tornadoes, thunderstorms, fire, flood, and other disasters. Make a family communications plan. Update your emergency contact info at school. Consider adding a relative to the school’s information file for picking up your kids in case of an emergency.

Other tips include filling out a backpack emergency card. Learn more about school plans for disaster reunification. Encourage young students to take drills seriously. Encourage college students to make disaster preparedness kits. Speak to college students about signing up for weather alerts.
