Date	Issues	Synopsis	Duration
9/1/2019	Health / Public Safety	Tannis Maxwell - South Central Public Health District: News recently broke about the rise in vaping and e-cigarette related illness across the nation and in Idaho and the Magic Valley region. Several people within the state had been admitted to the hospital for serious illnesses that may have been linked to the use of these devices. Local health officials at the South Central Public Health District were quick to alert the public about what was going on and explained the issued on the radio. Also, as advocates of no smoking and the use of tobacco products, they explained the benefits of not inhaling anything into people's lungs. The issue of vaping still has a lot of mystery and unknowns.	28:00

7/14/2019	Jerome Economy / Jerome Government	John Crosier, county commissioner Jerome County may not be as big a Twin Falls County, but holds its own in terms of economic growth. The county has some of the highest concentration of animal feed lots and dairy farms around with much of it going to local factories to make dairy products like milk and cheese. Commissioner Crosier spoke about recent economic developments in the county along with the growth in residential neighborhoods. Related to that growth is the need for a possible third bridge across the Snake River Canyon between Jerome and Twin Falls counties. With the new economic growth and expected future growth in population talk, again, has come up about the need for another crossing to move people and goods from one side of the canyon to the other. Crosier also mentioned the addition of several parks that have been either updated or newly built for the community.	32:00
7/28/2019	Education / Filer Economy / Filer government	Filer School Bond Failure Julie Coyle The Filer School District has tried for about a year, or more, to get a bond approved by voters. Every time elections had come and gone without the needed approval. Now, Julie Coyle spoke to the listening audience after the bond measure failed again. The district is also planning for future growth and had intended for new building, new school, and updates to existing ones. The particular bond needed a supermajority vote to pass, and every time the bond did receive a majority approval, but not the needed supermajority. Now school and concerned parents are looking to reformulate a plan to move forward.	27:00

8/12/2019	Twin Falls Economy / Twin Falls Government	Twin Falls City Budget, Major Shawn Barrigar, One indication of growth to the city of Twin Falls is the budget that seems to increase every year. On a regular basis, especially before the budget is passed, the public is invited to participate in the budget process. The formulation of the city budget is a yearlong event, but the fine tuning is done over a 12-week period at city council meetings, where the public can participate, in addition to other special meetings held throughout the year. City Mayor Shawn Barrigar shared the 12-week experience and how the budget was shaping out to be as it headed to final approval by the council.	28:00
8/18/2019	Education / Racism	Teton Mascot Name Change Doug Wilson, concerned parent A very hot button issue, locally in Idaho and across the nation, was the efforts by many school districts and concerned citizens to change the names of high school mascots that used American tribal imagery, such as native headdress, terms like “Indians” “chiefs” and especially controversial “redskins.” Many, called for the removal and changing of these names at high schools, sometimes it was from outside groups, others from within the school in the student body. A small school district in eastern Idaho dealt with the same problem and had to decide to change the name or not. Not everyone was for changing the name, including parent Doug Wilson, who spoke about the issue and followed the decision by the school district. Ultimately, the district decided to change the name, but that may have turned out to be harder and more costly than originally thought.	26:00

New Jail Facility for Twin Falls
Twin Falls County Prosecutor

29:00

The current jail facility for Twin Falls County has gotten too small for the growth in the area and area officials were trying to figure out how to move forward. Usually with growth there is an increase in crime which results in more people ending up behind bars. The current facility can only handle so many prisoners at one time, once all the beds are filled jail staff start putting up cots and temporary sleeping areas. Then, as the jail population grows more people are sent to other jails, either in the area or in other communities that can accommodate them, which costs the county more money. Twin Falls Prosecutor Grant Loeb said in addition to the jail facility, the judicial building is in need of updating to accommodate the increase in caseloads. Now community leaders and citizens are trying to seek a voter approved funding to build new facilities.
