Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Susan Stephens with Exodus Ministries. Recaps what they do at Exodus Ministries – they try to help women who were previously in prison reunite with their children (Courtney’s story Roll-In). Staff members develop a treatment plan for the women, then walk with them through their plan, cry with them when they fall and rejoice in their triumphs. (Testimonies/volunteer thank you Roll-In). We rely a lot on volunteers. We have classes every evening that the women attend so they can get some new tools in their tool belt. All the women get jobs plus budgeting and finance training. They learn how to find the difference between a want and a need. The rules are humorous but give the women lots of structure. We have a curfew every evening which means they develop family time and bedtime routines which they may not have had before. We own an apartment complex east of Downtown Dallas.

CBN News Reporter Caitlin Burke Reports: Disruptive innovation: While you may not recognize the term, it's affecting life and business as we know it. It happens when new ideas and technology shake up old markets by creating new ones. We've seen it in transportation, hospitality and now with banking. It's being called Wall Street's "Uber moment." Rob Morgan, vice president of Emerging Technologies at the American Bankers Association, says customers expect to have the same type of digital access to banking as they do to other important services. Think about it. You can get your mail through a smart phone, order dinner, even hail a cab, all just by pulling up an app. Now thanks to financial technology, you can also access your money. Apple, Google, Amazon are the tech giants all on board with financial technology. Most of them are starting off with digital payment apps. While they may be a little late to the party, major banks have entered this new reality. Banks are competing in this space, but it seems they face an uphill battle. According to Harris Research firm, 77 percent of consumers have a positive impression of the tech industry, compared to 35 percent who feel good about the financial industry. Those skirmishes seem to be taking the shape of regulations. The tech industry wants breathing room for young startups, while the banking industry believes its new competitors should follow the same rules it does. Security is a major concern of consumers when it comes to digital financial services. Brian Peters, with Financial Innovation Now, an organization that represents Apple, Amazon, Google, Intuit and PayPal, says your cell phone will eventually provide better protection of your information than a debit or credit card. Some of the popular services include Venmo, Google Wallet and Apple Pay. They allow you to transfer money and buy products without ever stepping into a bank or pulling out your credit card. This especially appeals to the millennial generation. According to Viacom Media, 73 percent of Millennials prefer using digital services than going to a bank. But it's not Millennials who stand to gain the most from this technology. Despite battles on Capitol Hill, both the banks and the tech industry agree that, ultimately, the consumer will be the winner.

CBN News Reporter Heather Sells Reports: President Donald Trump wants to budget an extra $20 million for school choice but the big question is—does it work? CBN News decided to visit a state where, after years of trial and error, school choice has begun to make a real difference in the lives of students and their families. At 8 o'clock every morning, the K-8 students at Paideia Academics, a public charter school in South Phoenix, recite their mission statement and sing about their education. A few miles away, students at the Arizona School for the Arts, another public charter school, work intently on their ballet technique in preparation for an upcoming school recital. And, at the Espiritu Schools, students are tackling math and getting ready for their next community service project. Service is a major value for the school. Executive Director Adrian Ruiz says Espiritu is very intentional about encouraging and teaching students to give back. Charter schools are a big part of the choice landscape in Arizona. More than 500 serve students across the state. In the 1990's, Arizona lawmaker Lisa Graham Keegan sponsored the original charter school bill and went on to become the state superintendent of public instruction from 1995 to 2001. Arizona, she says, has always been open to new ideas. The state started with open enrollment which allows students to choose their public school regardless of their address. Next came tuition-free charter schools and other strategic educational choice tools. A state voucher-type program, known as Empowerment Scholarship Accounts, provide money for educational accounts for parents ranging from $4,000 - $30,000 a year. Its goal is to help students with disabilities and those in low-performing public or charter schools to pay for an alternative private education. Tax credits are also available for those who contribute to private school scholarships. It's all part of a mix, according to Keegan, that not only helps children and their families but teachers as well. Dr. Brian Winsor, the principal at Paideia, greets his students every morning by name and with a handshake as they run onto the playground. After previously working in the state's public schools, he loves the freedom of running a charter. While the State Board for Charter Schools grades its schools and can ultimately shut them down if they fail to meet academic standards, Winsor says he has a great deal of flexibility. He recently switched the school's math curriculum within a matter of months when data showed it wasn't working well. He can also hire and fire as needed. Joanna De'Shay chose Paideia for its philosophy of using moral principles to educate the whole child. It especially helps in a low-income area like South Phoenix she says. As a bonus, an on-site family resource center at the school links families in need with social services and counseling. De'Shay, a school board member, says parents who come and tour the school often cannot believe that it's tuition-free. Cynthia Moraga is an Espiritu parent who discovered the school after an intensive search to help her daughter who was struggling at her public school after suffering from a concussion. School choice made all the difference she says. Ultimately she chose Espiritu for its charter board "A" rating, attentiveness to her daughter and community service focus. Phoenix-based educational entrepreneur Jaime Martinez founded Schola Solutions to help parents like Moraga who are searching for the best school for their child. Accessibility is a downside of school choice that even Education Secretary Betsy DeVos, an ardent advocate for school choice, has noted. Martinez has developed a search engine to help parents explore and navigate their options. He believes that despite the current political climate, the timing is right for education reform. Martinez says that millennial parents are realizing that traditional educational models don't always work for their kids and are looking for and demanding options. In Arizona, after decades of work, school choice is on the rise. Keegan notes that in the last five years, 100,000 families have moved their children from low to high-performing schools. She credits a mix of educational options and the state's strategy of closing charter schools that don't perform and encouraging the ones that do to replicate themselves. In South Phoenix, the strategy has paid off. Keegan calls it a "golden corridor" – which in Arizona education circles means an area that was previously known for its under-performing schools – transformed into an area known for its high educational offerings. That kind of scenario, she says, is the goal and hope, of school choice.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Amy Ford with Embrace Grace. Cheri welcomes audience and throws to video - Spoken Word Intro. How we get people involved -- we partner with local pregnancy centers. Starts talking about how they get them into the churches, then talks about Love in a Box. The heart for Embrace Grace - Amy had an unplanned pregnancy when she was 19. She almost aborted, but thank goodness she didn't. She felt alone and unwelcome in the church. The church has either responded in a way they shouldn't, or it's the girl's own inner shame. I was at Pink Impact, a women's conference, and God birthed this idea in me. We wanted every girl to feel loved, so we launched a 'Pro-Love' movement. There is power in that baby inside of that Mom. But sometimes those girls don't feel that way at first. They feel like it was a mistake. The baby is not a sin. The baby is a miracle. We want to celebrate them for choosing life, and celebrate the baby. We throw a baby shower for all of the women. Cheri pitches a video with great imagery that conveys the hopeless feeling the women have. A lot of girls said it felt like they were drowning and couldn't catch their breath. So it was amazing to see someone pull her up and help her breathe again. Just because she got pregnant doesn't mean her life is over. We want to make sure they don't feel alone or feel hopeless. How the groups help the girls - a lot of them come and feel so overwhelmed. They think their situation is the worst and no one understands. Sometimes they come for the free stuff. But when they walk in, it's like Jesus just totally captures their hearts. We don't all have an unplanned pregnancy story, but we all have an embrace grace story where we've had to embrace grace. Cheri pitches a testimony video. With every video my heart is just wrecked and put back together again within a few minutes. Partnerships – small groups within local churches and local pregnancy centers. We're in over 300 churches around the nation, in 43 states and 5 countries. How we get the girls to come – by word of mouth and through pregnancy centers. Once a girl has a positive pregnancy test, we give each girl a Love in a Box welcome package. The center then lets her know where there's an Embrace Grace group they can go to.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Bill C. Dotson with Abiding Fathers. Cheri welcomes audience. Abiding Fathers trains and encourages fathers to fulfill their role in their homes. Understanding the role is key, and then they can fulfill it. (One Defining Time roll-in). Some kids don't even know what a father is. We are seeing many, many men fully grasping the weight of what their role is. (I Hated My Dad Roll-In). We have a curriculum. We believe that when most men really see a dad, they will fulfill that role. I spent about 25 years teaching the boys in prisons, and I just kept seeing the lack of a father influence and even the lack of understanding what a father was about. There were about 3 or 4 that had had a father in the home. Each morning there were 23-24 men in attendance. To come and see that is just the next generation of kids that are going to be in prison. This is happening in our community. This is in our neighborhoods, this is in our cities. In response to our ministry, we're focusing on the Dallas metroplex. In churches, schools and prisons, we are seeing many that are grasping the true understanding of what their role is. Before, they just didn't understand it. 90% of the people in the prisons are there because of lack of discipline and teaching by a father. Cheri pitches roll-in. People sometimes don't know what a father is supposed to look or act like. But they know what it's not supposed to look and act like. They've got to see their need. Once you can focus on the need, then they want what you have. What I see mostly in the prisons is the brokenness there, more than in a higher-income level. What we see are men wanting to fulfill their role, but they just don't know how. Baby girls grow up wanting to be like their moms. But boys are different. They get to the point where they become dads and they become lost. We have a curriculum that I wrote and it teaches about going from absent to abiding. It's more than just raising your child -- it's about raising them for the discipleship of Jesus Christ. Once you teach them that, the men start seeing the roadmap. I believe that most men, if they really see the picture of a dad, they'll fulfill that role. If you're interested in their basic needs, you can visit their website.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Scott Sheppard with 6 Stones. (6 Stones Platform Roll-in). (How 6 Stones came to be, 2 Roll-ins). 6 Stones began because our community was in transition. Many times church staff doesn't really understand how to handle that. It was our pastor that came to me and said we needed to build a coalition. I was hesitant at first. But what really got me was he said "kingdom." We need a kingdom-minded group to do things like this. We've learned it's really not about what we want or what we want to accomplish. Jesus said we came to serve. When you go to these people, you ask what THEIR need is. Let them tell you what the real issues are in the community and serve where needed. For a local church to get involved, they can go to their website to take a look at what they're doing. We do a thing called Backstage. You can see if you can replicate this in your community. Just come!

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Michelle Conner who comes in from ReJoyn. She talks about the origin of Grace Like Rain Ministries. God planted the passion in my heart. I was diagnosed with ovarian cancer and God worked in me through that experience. We moved to Texas afterward, and working with the community, we birthed the idea for Grace Like Rain Ministries. We wanted to know how we could work alongside them and be God's hands and feet. The families that we're able to minister to really can be any family, but we mostly deal with the homeless. We had a support system and a family that rallied around us, and now we do that for others. How do we help them? Through our coaching and building relationships, they're learning to rely on people and ask for help. The relationship piece of it is key, and if you're not willing to work on that with us, it's probably not going to work. Most of our families come in and are homeless and that's a huge hurdle to jump. Most of them don't have a car so it's hard to maintain a job. We've found that many of them struggle with childcare. We provide help with applying for jobs, interviewing and getting clothes for an interview. We often think "oh just go get a job," but we don't always understand why it's difficult for them to do that. Who's going to take care of the children and what are they going to wear? We let people get to know us through our relationships. They put the need out there and ask. Many times the hardest part is the asking. We help them learn how to ask. Every single house has furniture. The furniture has poured in and groceries have poured in -- we just put out the ask, and people have been answering. We started a program in May where we are trying to network through some different churches. We are letting them know who we are, and through that those relationships are being built. I'm a firm believer that God's going to bring us the right people at the right time. We've gone from 3 people on our team to 10, and a staff of 7. We have about 50 volunteers. I don't know how it happens -- it just happens! We have many success stories and each one is different. But what I see as success is that relationship, that piece watching a family's members pour into each other. We do birthday parties at the homes.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Lynn Anderson with Refuge for Women North Texas. (Intro Roll-In). Lynn talks about the origin of their organization. It's a pretty strict program. (History Roll-In and Carrie Miller Roll-In). It doesn't take long with the helpful volunteers for them to rebuild that trust. (Deanna Testimony and Shantel Testimony Roll-In). Our success rate is 94% of women in our program have not gone back into the industry. They're able to get a renewal of spirit when they're here. A lot of the gals got into it through family members. (Came out of Intro Roll-in and pitched to History Roll-in). We've got a problem -- right now porn is the fastest-growing addiction in the U.S. It's the supply and demand industry. Nationally, there are more slaves in the U.S. than there have ever been before in history. Sex trafficking is a huge number that makes up the slave industry. We're not used to hearing the word slave in our vocabulary anymore. We're glad you're here to bring light to this topic. D/FW is the #1 strip club capita in the U.S. Texas is #2 in the nation for sex trafficking. Houston is #1 in the nation for a city that's had the most calls for people reporting trafficking. We've got a huge problem. Girls are prostituting themselves to pay for school, and Moms are running brothels out of their homes. The story of the woman who was 6 months pregnant and goes and dances at a strip club. It makes you ask, "What happened?" It's so confusing and heart-breaking. For a lot of these women, that lifestyle is normal. They were raised in broken homes, maybe not in a good part of town and/or they've seen other family members live this lifestyle. That is their normal. That's why our program is a long-term program. It takes a while to come away from that lifestyle and realize that it's not ok. Cheri pitches Carrie Miller video. Jesus is the key component. Is there push-back when women hear about unconditional love? Trust is a big issue for them, but it doesn't take long with the outpouring of love. The staff and volunteers come from everywhere. It's a passion and God-calling. Cheri pitches Deanna testimony video. It's the supply and demand, and the demand is driving the supply. But Deanna is a story of hope. Cheri pitches Chantelle testimony video. These stories show such great success for Refuge for Women. We are blessed. We've got an amazing program, curriculum and group of women. Our success rate is 94% of women in our program have not gone back to the industry. We're so happy we've been able to touch so many lives and help transform them through Christ. It's all because of the Lord. They're able to get a whole experience of mind, body and spirit healing. They don't choose this life. As they all said, a lot of the gals got into it through family members. They were sold as children, and their parents made them do porn. But that's not always the case. We've had girls come in from all kinds of homes. There's brokenness and they're trying to fill a hole in their heart that only the Lord can fill.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Teri Petty with Family Promise of Irving. (Cheri intros Roll-In). Sometimes, people find themselves in emergency situations and are homeless. Church volunteers provide support for families in this situation. We are an emergency service, not an immediate placement for families. There is an interview process. We are a short term solution for families living paycheck to paycheck. The beauty of what we do is that the family gets to stay together. (Roll-In). Family Promise gives a person the chance to live out their faith. They can provide a meal to a needy family and visit with them while they eat. Every congregation hosts only about 4 or 5 times a year. That makes it an easy thing to volunteer for. It provides a way to address a major social issue and make a huge impact in the lives of families right within the walls of their own church. (Family Promise of Irving Roll-In 2). The teachers and counselors in the local schools are the way we know about what is going on with the families in need. Other non-profits may refer guests to our services as well. They must complete a background check, drug screening, etc. We do an interview, and budgeting and financial counseling as well. (Family Promise of Irving Roll-In 3). Some churches convert a Sunday school room into a bedroom for the families with roll away beds and lamps and stuff. It is a home-like environment for the families. Volunteers from that church provide a night-time hot meal, and hang out with the family. They do homework, crafts, play games or just hang out. The first night the families are apprehensive about what to expect. But after that you can just see the tension release from their bodies. You give them a sense of hope and safety. And they can actually think about what it is they need to do next. This gives them a chance to relax. You can then get a chance to show them the love of Christ.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Dave Woodyard with Catholic Charities of Dallas. (Catholic Charities Roll-In 1). Started 125 years ago with an orphanage and then grew into varied ways of serving the community, and then to serving the surrounding communities. We stretch out to Corsicana, Greenville, and all those other areas. For 125 years, Catholic Charities has been serving our community. Currently it's all about poverty -- it touches so many different people. We have a wonderful highway system but that also insulates us from what is really going on. We really need to serve our community. We're very rushed as a society and many don't take the time to notice. Catholic Charities is taking the time to notice the needs. We don't care about your gender, your faith, where you came from, where you're going to. If you need help and we can help we're going to do just that. (Catholic Charities Roll-In 2). A lot of times we can lose ourselves but it's so great that you're letting them express themselves. Our greatest need is awareness. We seem to get a little more proud, a little more stoic and we don't let people know that we have a need. These are our elders who taught us and now it's our turn to give them care, comfort and love. (Catholic Charities Roll-In 3). It's in our faith to welcome the stranger -- that's why we serve the needs of the vulnerable.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Wil McCall with The Dallas Leadership Foundation. (Cheri pitches video). At its core, The Dallas Leadership Foundation is about building community leaders. There's good in each person, and we go out and find it. We serve them and love them -- that's what we teach leaders to do. There are a lot of problems out there, but the one issue that is in every problem is the lack of local leadership. We're in 11 different neighborhoods to connect leaders to make housing better and safer and to connect residents. It isn't up to us to fix everything, but it is up to us to get involved. We started in 1995 as a Christian leadership organization focused on developing local leaders. Our mission is to identify, affirm and develop leaders to transform communities. Our J13 leaders get their cue from John 13 where Jesus took up the towel and washed feet -- if you don't have humility, you can't serve. Not only did He have humility, He had intimacy. We teach others to do the same. We're not just talking about ministering to our "bestie" but also to our Judas. We'll only go where we are invited in. One of our sayings is that we won't work any harder on your problem than you will. Local neighborhood leaders have their assets and gifts, and Dallas Leadership Foundation has its assets and gifts. We marry them together and get to work. So we are usually invited in. Theory of change is that if we have a critical mass of resource network-equipped local leaders, than we will have transformation that will persist in any community. When their culture can move back to Christ, that's when change happens. But you need local people, people from the community leading that change, and not someone from the outside.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Charles Fisher with Bridges to Life. He became involved as an inmate working with the chaplain at his prison. His chaplain asked him to investigate the various programs available at the prison to find out which was most effective. Bridges to Life was amazing for him because in the small groups they talked about accountability, responsibility, confession, repentance, reconciliation and restitution. At that time in his life he needed that. (Bridges to Life roll-in 1). John Sage founded Bridges to Life in 1998 after his sister was killed. Since then it has grown from one project in one prison to 500 projects in 42 prisons across Texas. The curriculum has also been used in 10 other states and 3 foreign countries. The premise is restorative justice. Hope for the hopeless is the main reason for our success. We give them the perspective of being able to see from a victim's point of view, what crime actually does to the victim and their families, and society in general. Each week the program equips the offender with a different tool to have success in their life. People who wind up in prison have a very selfish attitude. They are often victims themselves, and hurting people hurt others. In this dangerous environment they have to be self-centered in the way they act and the choices they make to survive. They aren't thinking what the next right thing to do is. (Bridges to Life roll-in 2). Tells the story of a woman whose son was killed and she forgave the perpetrator. The importance of forgiveness – first, we ask God for forgiveness. As an offender, that is a humbling experience. For so many years they feel separated from God. Any belief that they may have had, because of the circumstances of their life, they may have fallen away from trusting in God. We measure success by looking for a complete transformation. Families are changed! We have a 14.3% re-offense rate versus the State of Texas general statistics of 35%.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Todd Fields with 2nd Saturday. We engage and empower the poorest communities in Dallas. The common theme throughout these communities is generational poverty. So we're focused on engaging with those folks and loving on them in a Biblical way. It's essential to build that relationship first. Our key focus right now is West and South Dallas. (2nd Saturday roll-in 1). People are in just as much need here as in third world countries. It's not that simple and you don't really know somebody until you know their circumstances. It's huge to build that trust. The most fruitful thing that I have learned is how to read the Bible and apply things to my life and really mean it. (2nd Saturday roll-in 2 - testimonies of people who have helped at a 2nd Saturday and started getting involved). The 2 people in the video are one of the reasons we started this. They begin to learn their purpose and identity in Christ. To help out, go once and God will touch your heart and your mind to give of your time and resources. Words can't express how grateful I am to God for our volunteers. Our volunteers is what makes us go. We have a staff of 5, so we're lean. Our first 2nd Saturday had 9 people. We will intentionally use people that are typically unhireable.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Emily Dock with Hope Mansion. (Hope Mansion roll-in 1). We're here to serve women who are in a crisis pregnancy and feel hopeless. They have nowhere else to turn; they don't have family, they don't have relationships. We're here to be able to be that support and show them who God is and show them some new directions. What's unique is that we really care about seeing the success of the women. Many other organizations don't help them when they have to leave. There's a lot of hopelessness when they come in, but they think they can find something new. And they can. (Hope Mansion roll-in 2 - testimony of a girl who's been through the mansion). All of our resources are through donations. (Hope Mansion roll-in 3 - testimony of another girl who's been through the mansion). God will provide for you. He will do it in His time, not your time. We really have a lot of resources for these women.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Daron Babcock with Bonton Farms. Bonton Farms is an old freeman's community, an impoverished, mostly African American community in South Dallas. We serve the most marginalized people in the most neglected neighborhoods. For the people in the community, it's to realize that they're created unique. We live in a time where we are really divided. Pitches to video. First, when God started speaking to me, I didn't want to hear what He had to say because I knew it was going to require a lot of me. I started volunteering and God knitted my heart to them. In the beginning, I felt bad getting in my car to leave to go home. I came to give, but I felt like I always left with more than I gave. It came to a point where He kind of forced me to make the decision to obey. I didn't go willingly, but it's been the best thing that's ever happened. It's opened the hearts of the community to accept me, because of the sacrifices that I've made. Bonton is one of the most violent areas. But God called me. Pitches another video to see the domino effect. It's so much more than fresh food. It does a beautiful thing in the community. Something about food unites people. Dallas is a city that's one of the most successful, lucrative, and prosperous in the country. And yet we are #1 in childhood poverty, and #3 in overall poverty. We have the body of Christ here to address those issues. We're awakening the church in a way, to be the hands and feet of Christ. So the church will be the answer not the government. On a grand scale, I hope to see that happen. They are created unique -- God that knows them, loves them before they were born, and gave them a unique fingerprint/imprint. It is shocking to know that there are areas of our metropolitan city that are so impoverished. We live in a time where we are really divided. You hear and feel it everywhere. What I've seen in Bonton is that we're just so the same. Christ came and died so there are no more differences between us. We're all His children. If we would start living that out, our world would be a much different and better place.

Today on the Dr. Leaf Show, Dr. Caroline Leaf is joined by Dr. Avery M. Jackson, III, a board-certified neurosurgeon, with complex spine fellowship training, to discuss Osteoporosis. There are two types of Osteoporosis. There's primary osteoporosis and then there's secondary. Primary osteoporosis is specifically when there's a change in menopause, postmenopausal. Secondary osteoporosis is due to diabetes. Inactivity is another. Lifestyle choices such as smoking, and drinking alcoholic beverages, can also cause osteoporosis. There's a whole host of other disease processes that can cause secondary osteoporosis, like thyroid issues. Certain medications are very helpful that are anabolic or that help to build bone. But, likewise, you can really focus on the diet side and exercise. Your diet, your exercise and your water intake are really important pieces.

Today on the Dr. Leaf Show, Dr. Caroline Leaf is joined by Dr. Avery M. Jackson, III, a board-certified neurosurgeon, and a Christian, to discuss how prayer activates your brain and benefits the people you pray for. Ninety-nine percent of his patients are more than happy to pray prior to surgery, and more often than not, when they believe, it had a very calming effect on the patients and the families very much are touched. Dr. Avery explains that prayer is a form of conversation with God in various ways. When we pray and the spiritual energy of God moves from the throne of Grace, it changes whatever it hits and that change physically results in structural change in our brain. Dr. Leaf shared that it has been found that twelve minutes of daily focus prayer over an eight-week period can change the brain to such an extent that it can be measured on a brain scan.

Today on the Dr. Leaf Show, Dr. Caroline Leaf is joined by Dr. Avery M. Jackson, III, a neurosurgeon and spinal surgeon, and Dr. Jeffrey Schwartz, a neuroscientist and psychiatrist, to discuss taking responsibility for our thought lives. Dr. Leaf explains that only a few decades ago scientists considered the brain to be a fixed and hardwired machine. This view saw the damaged brain as incurable and the focus was compensation and not restoration of function. However, research shows that we can change the physical nature of our brain through our thinking and choosing as we consciously direct our thinking. We can wire our toxic patterns of thinking and replace them with healthy new thoughts - and new thought networks grow. We can increase our intelligence and bring healing to our minds and physical bodies. It all starts in the realm of the mind with our ability to think and feel and choose. Not everyone is aware of the power they have because we are so conditioned by society and the media. Dr. Jeffrey recommends taking time for reflection. Learn how to veto some of the onslaught of sensory information, sensory overload that floods your brain. Learn how to make choices and decisions. That is the power of the mind, choices and decisions about what to focus on in consultation with the wise advocate, your Holy Spirit.

Today on the Dr. Leaf Show, Dr. Caroline Leaf explains that she is frequently asked about what happens to the brain and the mind when one suffers a brain injury of some sort. The first part of her answer is that the mind and the brain are separate and that the mind controls the brain. We also know the brain can change and grow with experience and stimulation. However, the human mind works through the substrate of the physical brain, and therefore, if there is brain damage from trauma of some sort, this will affect how the mind functions, which we see in the person's cognitive, emotional, social, intellectual, and behavioral functioning. The human brain is attached to the spinal cord in such a way that it's not fixed in one position, but it's flexible and can move around the skull. This means that any impact to the head will jog the brain and cause shockwaves to move throughout the brain, causing different types of brain damage. Furthermore, any impact will cause the brain to literally bounce off the walls of the skull, resulting in additional damage. There are many different ways this can happen, including car, motorbike and bike accidents, falls, war, and, of course, sports injuries. The subsequent damage is classified either as traumatic brain injury, shortened to TBI, or chronic traumatic encephalopathy, shortened to CTE, based on the type of impact. TBI and CTE have similarities and differences on the neurological, cognitive, emotional, and behavioral levels. Dr. Caroline is joined by Dr. Dr. Avery M. Jackson, III, a board-certified neurosurgeon, to discuss these differences. On the CTE side, prevention is really the key. It's really important to follow those traumatic-head-injury guidelines and prevention. Attitude is massive and really makes a difference. If they have the injury and there is a cognitive deficit, it's going to be important to really work on memory and there are a lot of memory techniques.

Today on the Dr. Leaf Show, Dr. Caroline Leaf asks the question: "If love is the most powerful force in the world, then why does communication between man and woman often feel more like war than love?" Nowhere is this more painfully evident than in the relationship designed to be filled with love, the bond between a husband and a wife. Divorce, separation, and ugly breakups leave lasting wounds that take time to heal, wounds that go beyond the man and the woman and impact the entire family as a whole. Because God created families as the foundation of society, it's not an overstatement to say that the future of the world depends on our ability to love and understand one another. Dr. Leaf and her guests, her husband Mac, and good friends, Mel and Desiree Ayres, discuss some of the challenges they experienced in their marriage as well as pearls of wisdom. Dr. Leaf explains that God has called us to help each other and that understanding male and female brain differences can help us to immerse each other in love.

Today on the Dr. Leaf Show, the topic is "Eating Disorders." Dr. Caroline Leaf explains that much research is focused on how negative, destructive emotions contribute to anorexia, bulimia, and other disorders. These are seen as emotional eating patterns. Yet, there's been a sore lack of research that could help gain insight into how positive emotions are distorted by those suffering with these life-threatening disorders, which have a death rate up to 12 times higher than all other causes of death combined for females between the ages of 15 and 24. Dr. Leaf is joined by her daughter Jessica and Pastor Desiree Ayres who discuss their experience going through eating disorders. Dr. Leaf shares that research shows the more you immerse someone in love, the more courage they have to actually face their issues and to look critically at the way they're dealing with the issue. An eating disorder is classified in the DSM as a disease. A disease implies that it is something that is biologically wrong and controls you and you don't have control; it is genetically in your genes. However, that has actually never been proven. Ultimately, Jessica and Pastor Desiree made the choice to overcome their eating disorder, with loving support and their faith in Jesus Christ and the power of His word.

Health	700 Club CBN NewsWatch #05022017	1:00:00	5:00	REC	PA/0/E	05/02/2017	2:00 PM

CBN News Reporter Lorie Johnson Reports: Hippocrates, the father of medicine, once said, "All disease begins in the gut." Now, 2,000 years later, that belief still rings true. Some of our latest medical breakthroughs focus on what's happening in our intestinal system. Bacteria, also known as bugs or germs, we assume they're all bad, right? Not so fast. Scientists recently discovered much, if not most, of the bacteria in our body is good for us. The key to good health depends on having enough of the right kind. We all have trillions of bacteria living in our intestines—hundreds of different species, each with different functions. Scientists call it our "gut flora." Neurologist Dr. David Perlmutter, author of "Brain Maker" is one of many physicians warning against disrupting this fragile ecosystem. Dr. Vincent Pedre, author of "Happy Gut," agrees. Unfortunately, when it comes to good gut bacteria, many of us are sorely lacking. After all, antibiotics kill bacteria--bad and good. Perlmutter says most people have no idea how severely antibiotics damage our gut flora. In addition to antibiotics, processed food can also disrupt the gut biome. Perlmutter says processed foods contain heavy doses of the wrong kinds of fat, like heated oils such as soybean, corn and vegetable oils. He also advises against consuming hydrogenated oils, also known as trans fats, which are common in processed foods. However, he points out not all fat is bad. Even babies delivered by Caesarian section can miss out on getting enough good bacteria. So while our lifestyle choices really do a number on the gut bacteria that's so critical to our health, the good news is we can improve it with probiotics and prebiotics. Probiotics are the good bacteria we need and often lack. You can find these living, microscopic organisms in supplements as well as in cultured and fermented foods like kim chee, sauerkraut, yogurt, kefir and kombucha. Prebiotics are the food for the probiotics - they keep probiotics living and growing as they should. Just like good soil, they create a nurturing environment in your gut so your bacteria can thrive. You can get prebiotics in supplement form as well as in foods, like asparagus, onions, leeks, garlic and dandelion greens. Perlmutter says many people are only aware of the benefits of probiotics, but he stresses prebiotics are equally important. Not only can it help your mood — Perlmutter says even serious brain disorders, like attention deficit hyperactivity disorder, autism, even Alzheimer's disease can improve by increasing good bacteria. That's because they help make neurotransmitters and vitamins while at the same time aid in reducing harmful inflammation. And not just the brain. Scientists are now identifying specific strains of good bacteria that treat all kinds of problems, from skin rashes to the flu. That means a targeted probiotic could take the place of a prescribed drug. Pedre says that opens the door to a wide range of natural treatments. So if you want to boost your health, doctors say improve your gut flora. That means avoiding processed foods, even antibacterial cleansers and antibiotics when advisable. Then add good bacteria with probiotics and boost them with prebiotics, also available as supplements or in certain foods.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Daniel Roby with Austin Street Center. This organization started because of seeing private needs of people that we wanted to meet. We wanted to meet those needs. We always say one of our core values is kindness. (Inside Austin Street Center Roll-In) The spirit of Austin Street – it's a community and a lot of people coming together. It's a beautiful place; it's a magical place. One of my heroes, Mother Teresa, said homelessness is not just about houselessness; it's also about unwantedness. You need people who care for you and provide hope. It's not just about not having a home; it's about not being/feeling wanted. (This is Austin Street Roll-In) This could be a doctor or a lawyer -- you're a paycheck away. That could be my neighbor. Austin Street is there for them. A lot of times, the expectation is 'go out there and find a job and solve the problems you're facing.' But they forget the simple problems they face to get that done.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, V. Stanley Maneikis, MDIV., MA with Union Gospel Mission of Tarrant County. UGM started in 1888 because churches had to come together to take care of cowboys, and to spread the gospel. We've been at it for 128 years since the cowboy days. You need to be careful not to judge the homeless. Some of the reasons people are on the street is because of poverty, joblessness, mental illness, chemical dependency or they have taken care of an elderly parent and once the parent is gone they are now homeless. We are the only facility in North Texas that work with intact families. We give them a sense of normalcy. We provide housing for single-parent families, and for five single men.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Mike Myers with Beautiful Feed Ministries. Our name came about when we started looking and ministering at the Fort Worth Water Gardens. While we were out there, we were just intending on giving the Gospel and serving breakfast. The name comes from beautiful feet from Romans 10:14-15, "How beautiful are the feet of those who bring good news." We have the medical services you saw in the video. We have a wall at "The Feet," where a lady named Jenny comes and cuts hair every Monday. Talks about how they partner with different organizations. We salvage food from restaurants and grocery stores, but we also take bulk food from different sources. We're always using it to give to the poor and it goes through our kitchen. Prepping for a Sunday service takes a lot of people. We accomplish that by spreading out the body of Christ. We use a 2-prong approach. We're equipping saints to do the work. We started out as donuts and breakfast on Sunday morning and it has mushroomed into something much bigger. Now we have daily chapel services, breakfast/lunch, and medical services which are making a difference with the physical so we can also give them the spiritual. The physical does mean a lot to touch people's lives, drawing them closer to the Gospel. It helps because not everybody can cut hair, not everybody can be medical, not everybody can preach, though we should all be preachers. It's awesome because we see God's work with the inner city and the poor. But we partner up with people who make a difference through churches and people who want to volunteer their time. Out-of-state people are coming in too, and we can put them up for a week or a weekend and they help us out. (Cheri pitches Roll-In). Our volunteers come from all over the place -- different churches, schools, etc. Everybody that comes gets that message to get your serve on. We let people from all over come and serve. Right now, our next step is big. We're constructing a building that has a new gym, kitchen and dining room. It will enhance our services. We'll use it to expand our ministries.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Leann Rice with The Lord's Hands and Hearts Ministries. (Roll-In Overview). People have a preconceived notion about the homeless. But wouldn't you want a loved one to be taken care of? (Roll-In Testimony). It's so important for us to have that relationship -- with Him and with each other. That is our ultimate goal, to connect them with their Father. With Jesus, there's a new way. (Roll-In Evangelism -- ankle). It doesn't just stop at loving them on the street. It's a holistic path from homeless to whole. It's a commitment. How God planted this ministry in your heart: I was saved at 35-years-old in 2003. It was one of those radical salvations that I knew my life had been changed and I would do whatever He wanted. On Christmas in 2004, I was asking God what we should do with our time, and He simply said, "Feed the homeless." My heart leapt -- I knew what we were going to do. We took all our money for Christmas, bought food, and fed the homeless. Our lives changed that day. What we encountered was a group of beautiful people and I knew God put it in our hearts for these people. Many times, people want to turn the other way when they see homeless people on the street. But when you get to know them, they're just like you and I. They may have made a bad decision, depression overtook them, or whatever. Life slips away and a lot of them find themselves without anywhere to turn. When you spend time with them and look at them through the eyes of God, you see there's a person there that is valuable. God gave them His love. You can give them your love and God's love through you. It's a challenge for children of God to put those judgements aside and see them like Jesus does -- but for the grace of God, there go I. We've ministered to engineers, college graduates and people of all kinds. Homelessness can happen to anyone. (Cheri pitches Roll-In -- Jana's story). We loved her and encouraged her. She now is the personal assistant to my ministry leader. She's been working here for years. That's what we're about. We're committed to these people. We're here, week after week, building that relationship; that's what really stands out to them. That's how God made all of us. He wants us to have that relationship with Him. We were made for that connection. Feeding them is a very important need. They're not going to hear you if they're hungry. (Cheri pitches Roll-In -- ankle video). His joy is in that video. He was healed! When you start operating in the love of God and the truth of the Word, miracles happen. We've seen so many miracles. When you reach out, His power shows up. Signs and wonders are for the unbeliever. It's the purity of the love of God. That's how Jesus came, and this is why we go and do this every Saturday. Over the last 15 years we have seen that to be truer. The relationship is the key -- then we can help them off the street. As they get off the street, they can get into rehab, and when they get into rehab they can get reunited with their families. We set out to procure housing for them. The Lord provided $100,000 so we could buy an apartment building with 16 apartments to house men who we've been helped off the street through rehab, transitioning them back into a sustainable lifestyle. It's a holistic approach. It's a patch from homeless to whole. It's a commitment that takes the grace of God. You can visit the website. We have an ongoing need for the body of Christ to join with us. We're on the frontlines but we need the body of Christ to come alongside us.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Matthew Zibbell with The Men of Nehemiah. (Men of Nehemiah Roll-In 1). The unique opportunity I have is seeing a man come in beat up, totally hopeless, with no direction, not knowing where he's going to go, and that he's given up on life. I get to see that transformation; clean, renewed in his faith in God, employed, and restored to his family. I get to see it all happen. We take the military model of physical discipline and early morning exercise, plus the traditional model of counseling and cognitive therapy. Then we add the power of the blood of Jesus Christ, the power of the Love of God and His Grace and Mercy. If we're still here, God intended us to serve Him. I just gave up; and when you give up is when God can show you that it doesn't have to be like this anymore. Desperate and surrendered is all God asks of us. We don't have to be perfect to come to Him. I had just gotten out of jail for the umpteenth time, and I had a grandiose plan for what I was going to do when I got out. But the reality is you can only serve one master. The master I was serving took me back over for a few months. I don't know if it was a revelation or if I would just rather die than keep doing what I was doing. Tells story of himself in a hotel room when there is nothing left to give and nothing left to take -- that's when Jesus gives all. (Men of Nehemiah Roll-In 2). Testimony: The next day a friend of mine said there's a group of guys here with army suits. I asked them if they were cops and they said no they were doing service work for the Lord and were just cleaning up. I knew it was a sign from God. They surrounded me and began to pray for me. I got into the program that day and my life hasn't been the same since. Ty's story is all of our story. There's not a stronger force on this side of heaven than men praising God together. It's emotional for me because that's what brought me through and that's what continues to bring me through. I'm an alumni of the program so I'm in transitional housing at Nehemiah. What's great is that I have a roommate that's also in the program. As an addict and a sinner he still thinks he knows best and he doesn't need anybody's opinion or input. The reality is that that isn't the case. He realizes he still has a lot of work to do, but his life now doesn't compare to what it was before. Cheri congratulates her guest on his choices and on his new life.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, John Ramsey with Tarrant County Hands of Hope. (Hands of Hope Roll-In 1). Initially I just attended a meal, saw one lady in need and I went to social media asking people to help. We were given several boxes of clothes and shoes and we ended up helping several others. I started talking to these people and I asked them, "What is something I could bring you that would make your lives easier?" One said a roll of toilet paper; then I wouldn't have to steal it. Just basic necessities is what we've found. One of the reasons we targeted that segment specifically is that they tried it and it didn't work for them, and they've just given up. Or they're not aware that services are available. Every person's story is different. They may have a part time job, may have lost a job perhaps through addiction. But if they haven't dealt with the addiction before then they probably haven't dealt with the addiction now. We help them make the connection through a detox program. All along the way we're sharing Christ's love. An unsheltered person's daily life: security; where's the next meal coming from; trying to get through that day; water. Whenever we provide water for them I'll say we want to make that permanent connection for them. Because we don't want to become that provider that enables them to stay there. (Hands of Hope Roll-In 2). Everything we do is about building a relationship with them. A good number of them have a cell phone. We partner with a lot of agencies depending on what their need is. Veteran Affairs comes out with us every Tuesday. If we run across a veteran we can make that direct connection and we can connect them with more resources. We don't want to over-provide for them. We would rather get them connected with someone and solve the root cause. We help them leave the street, not enabling them to stay where they're at. We're providing basic necessities up to the point that they need it, but not being their source. They can contact with us through our website, email or any social media. It's more from a standpoint of, I want you to realize you can help right here in your backyard. There are issues worldwide but there are also some in our backyard. We can help solve those. We have to do something and I'm glad that you all have access, obviously through social media.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Sgt. Rodney Hinkle with The Salvation Army. (Cheri intros video). The Salvation Army began in the East end of London by a Methodist minister named William Booth in 1865. He saw a need in that area regarding some of the same crimes we deal with today. He preached to them and they got saved. Then he sent them to other churches. When they weren't accepted by the church, Mr. Booth decided he would start his own church and call it The Salvation Army. There are 17 centers in the DFW area. The Salvation Army has a homeless program that helps people come off the streets, training centers for the working poor, a food pantry, and budget assistance. They operate a program with the Texas Dept. of Corrections to transition prisoners back into society (a half-way house). The program ranges from 30-90 days and helps the individuals to become productive members of society. This facility has been open since 1986 without a shut down, and since that time gov't facilities have closed so it has provided a stable transition for many people re-entering society. We have 5 core values -- passion, compassion, trustworthiness, uplifting each other and bravery. The foundation of the ministry is in their name -- Salvation! Church services are on Sunday but there are also services every day of the week, going on sometimes 2 or 3 times a day. We try to reach their spirit, mind and body, making them whole.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Nicole Hernandez with Bridges Safe House. (Cheri pitches video). Bridges Safe House has been around for 18 years in Cedar Hill serving the DFW metroplex and some outside the metro area. The program is a community effort and it was started by the community, and today is supported by the local churches and volunteers. Our goal is to go from homelessness to stability, so that when they leave our program they are either further in their education or further in their career. They come from different backgrounds. We provide a comfortable home-community-type of environment where the women in the home end up building relationships, encouraging each other and helping each other. A lot of people are afraid to volunteer thinking what they have to bring to the table isn't enough. But there is a place for everyone. It doesn't have to be something specific. We have volunteers that go grocery shopping, teach classes, hold babies, lead Bible studies, etc. -- it's just showing love.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Sheila Miller with Family Promise of Collin County. (Collin County roll-in 1). This year in America more than 2.5 million children and their parents will experience homelessness. What's unique about Family Promise is that they keep families together, and they also give the family security and hope. Collin County is an upper class community so these people are more than the working poor. They are the working middle class who hit a huge pothole in life. They may have a medical issue, they lose their job, and they lose their salary. And they look just like you and I -- you would know them! It's very traumatizing on the teenagers going through this and trying to go to school. They are praying that no one finds out they are homeless. And that's what is so wonderful about the churches taking this responsibility of housing these families and giving them a place to live. They're the hands and feet of Jesus. (Family Promise of Collin County roll-in 2). What makes Family Promise unique is we provide hope; we have smaller groups to work with so it's very intense and we become very close to those families. The whole idea of a community coming together to serve is what's fantastic about the program. (Family Promise of Collin County roll-in 3). Many shelters separate kids from their parents and it's wonderful that we are all in one room. Another person has the option to go back to school. A third person was in the program around Christmas and the volunteers invited her to their home during the holiday so she didn't have to be alone. After the family is no longer homeless they transition to a "Live Well" program on a volunteer basis and Family Promise will support the family.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Janet Peery with Interfaith Family Services. There are a lot of families, particularly with children, who despite having wage-earners in the family struggle to get by. The working poor have a strong work ethic and they often work 2 jobs. It takes a lot of transportation time and wear and tear, and it requires a lot of daycare for the children. All of our families have a strong work history. If they are not currently employed we help them get back to full employment. Some families do not make a living wage, and for a single parent with one child in the Dallas area it requires $22/hour to live. On average, a 1 bedroom apt is $1000/mon. It was great walking into our apartment and all the things that were in there and perfectly in order and the games there just for my kids. Our whole model is stability. We have 26 fully furnished apartments. When you come in it looks like a home. We take great care to make sure that when the kids come in they see the cartoon characters they like so it feels like a home. We also have counseling on staff for adults and play therapy for children. We also provide a career services program. For those that are employed we ask them what they want to do long-term. Then we help them if we can get some kind of training, education or certification to meet that goal. We also train them in budgeting and finance.

CBN News Reporter Charlene Aaron Reports: The homeless population in Los Angeles County recently soared 23 percent over just the last year. According to the LA Times, the startling jump has touched every significant group, including youth, families, veterans and the chronically homeless. In 2015, Elvis Summers, who was once homeless himself, started tackling the problem, one tiny house at a time. It all started after he became friends with a woman named Irene McGhee, better known as Smokey. Irene had been homeless for 10 years, following the loss of her husband. That revelation moved Summers to build Smokey a place she could call home: a tiny home. It took five days to build the three-and-a-half by eight-foot house. Video of the construction went viral. Since then, Summers has raised more than $100,000 to build more of these house for people in his community. Although not officially recognized by the government, each of the tiny homes comes with its own personal address. Some local governments around the country are also using tiny homes to help their homeless populations. Tiny homes for the homeless are popping up from Chicago to Portland, Oregon, where the idea has grown to tiny house villages. But in Los Angeles, some officials see the small houses as nuisances with some saying they pose health and safety risks. Earlier this year the LA City Council moved to seize the homes without prior notice. Summers managed to move eight of them to Faith Community Church, but the people who lived in them were once again on the street. Tim Chambers pastors Faith Community Church. After months of backlash and media attention, the city said it is developing a process to work with non-profit groups, including Summers, to help those living on the streets. Meanwhile, Smokey recently passed away. He said that her memory motivates him to help others.

CBN News Reporter Caitlin Burke Reports: The Catholic Church is known for its sacred traditions. Those traditions, however, can make the Church seem resistant to change. One Philadelphia parish challenged that perception when it moved to transform along with the neighborhood it serves. In the 1960s, the Mount Airy neighborhood was half Jewish, half Irish or Italian Catholic. Over the course of eight years that changed entirely and now it's completely African American. The synagogues left, but churches like St. Raymond of Penafort Catholic Church stuck around and welcomed their new neighbors. That may seem like typical neighborhood outreach, but culturally and historically, the Catholic Church doesn't offer much to African-Americans. Father Walsh wanted to change that. Walsh found it wasn't theology that needed to change, it was a congregation needing to convince neighbors that St. Raymond met their needs. Author Chris Lowney uses Father Walsh and St. Raymond as a prime example of how the Catholic Church needs to change. In his book, "Everyone Leads: How to Revitalize the Catholic Church," Lowney writes that to thrive in today's world we don't have to drink some 21st century cocktail. He writes that the church is facing its worst crisis in 500 years. Lowney offers what he calls an "EASTeR Strategy." That stands for Entrepreneurial, Accountable, Serve, Transform and Reach. Looking at St. Raymond as a model: It first established leadership teams to help manage operations, ministries and projects—much as a business would do. Then they gathered information about what people wanted from their walk with Christ and how the Church met those needs. After analyzing that data, they made any needed changes. St. Raymond serves the neighborhood with a Catholic school, which provides families a safe place for their children to learn. Philadelphia's public schools are some of the most violent and lowest performing in the country. Long-time parishioners felt St. Raymond once depended on "church welfare." Low attendance meant borrowing money to keep the doors open. Now, thanks to the cultural transformation, complete with music and decorations, people travel from other parishes to help pack the pews each Sunday. Pastor Walsh believes that when it comes to reaching Millennials, encouraging their involvement differs from past generations. Lowney points out that even the Pope is encouraging an attitude of innovation within the Catholic Church. Pope Francis recently appeared on screen as one of the speakers at the annual TED conference. As he talked to tech company founders, artists, and cultural leaders, he surprised his audience by using modern tools of the digital age to reach them. Lowney feels this strategy is universal and can revitalize any church, no matter the belief set or denomination. For it to work, however, he stresses it can't just be from the top down, even if it's the Pope who calls for change. It requires everyone to lead.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Susan Frank with Hearts for Homes. (Hearts for Homes Roll-In 1). Hearts for Home is a Christian-based, non-profit outreach that provides no-cost home repairs for low income elderly. Cheri loves the idea of Susan having a vision for the ministry when Susan didn't think she was one of those people who received visions. The average income of the person we help is $600/month. Many of them may have family but they are not able to help financially but they are available physically. You have some elderly people whose family doesn't help them and/or don't care to help. Those are very hard to see because once we get involved we're very relational. We continue to help until the senior dies or moves in with family members. Our goal is to provide them with a home that is safe and comfortable to live out their years in. As we know, if you own a home there is always going to be a need for home repairs. (Hearts for Homes Roll-In 2). In 2011, Denton County population was projected to double by 2030 but it tripled by 2015. It's growing exponentially. One of our ongoing challenges is our need for skilled volunteers such as plumbers, electricians, roofers who can donate their time. We're going to have to start marketing in order to get the volunteers we will need for the demand we see for the future. (Hearts for Homes Roll-In 3). We tend to fall in love with these seniors and they fall in love with us. Their needs are so much greater than just home repairs. We provide Christmas baskets. They tell us that the food we provide for them lasts 2-3 months. Last year we started doing Christmas decorations. One lady was so excited she said this was the first time she had a tree since 1989 when her husband died. When you change their living environment it's so much more than that.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Greg Ambrosion with Adult and Teen Challenge at the Azle Campus. (Cheri pitches to video). In 1958 David Wilkerson felt called to minister to street gangs in New York City. Many young gang members came to Christ and he felt the need for a place for these young men to turn their lives around and to be mentored. Today Teen Challenge has 200 centers in the US and 1000 in 90 countries. Greg became involved with Teen Challenge because it was the most effective way as a Pastor in Ohio to deal with people in the addictive process. He came to Texas 5 years ago to join Teen Challenge full time. Teen Challenge has 8 campuses around the Houston and San Antonio areas. They are divided between men, women, women with children, and children. During the program the participants go through different phases including getting a job in the local community. The jobs serve a couple of purposes in the 12-month recovery program -- they raise funds for the program, therefore they don't turn anyone away because of a financial issue; it teaches discipline and gives them a trade. According to the campus they make different craft items such as candles or crosses or jewelry. The men's unit does more service work i.e., fence work, yard work, composting, brush removal, welders, carpenters, etc. What makes it different is the Jesus factor. We're teaching people about the great Love of a Heavenly Father -- they can trust Him as little children despite their hurts, and forgive the past and move on to what God has for their future.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Obie Bussey with Adult Rehabilitation Ministries. ARM has been in existence for 28 years and we've been serving men for that amount of time. Last year we started serving women. (ARM roll-in 1). We serve the population in the urban communities where a lot of people can't afford to go for treatment. Treatment is $1000/day and we treat our people at $10/day and then search for sponsors. We do a full service treatment center for people even if they can't afford it. ARM comes into play to bring hope. We measure success by looking for a complete transformation. Addiction completely destroys people that are at the lowest point in their lives, not only as individuals, but their families as well. We measure success when we see our clients come in and they become fully functioning, and we see their families restored as well. We believe that the church is the change agent. There are a lot of great programs around our country but we believe that having Christ and Biblical principles as a base for the program is what makes us have our success. 78% of those that entered the program completed the program. The national average is 2%. We contribute our success to the grace of God. (ARM roll-in 2 – testimonies). Our program is in 3 phases. For the first phase, they don't leave the facility. During the second phase, they're given more freedoms. We have them serve in the choir at church, get involved in the church, etc. Finally, we have a system in case they relapse. They can come back and we can reassess to find out where they're at.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Michelle DeGrate, LMSW with Christian Community Action. (Christian Community Action Roll-In 1). The mission of CCA -- before anything, we definitely want to be a beacon of hope, alleviating suffering and changing lives. It's also a connection to service and loving our neighbor. It starts where it's a tangible thing; you can see it. Many people are in the area are not seen and living paycheck to paycheck. They have a job but they are underemployed. They have to get through the pride of having to ask for help. They are greeted by us with a smile, and treated with dignity. We have a food pantry that understands beyond client choice and provides nutritious food that they would have at a normal grocery store. (Christian Community Action Roll-In 2). There are so many different layers in CCA's outreach, from groceries to the resale shop, plus the educational part that helps with the employment. To address the poverty in our community is a multi-dimensional thing, so it's often a lot of things connected. If we can't meet the needs of our families we can connect them to organizations that can. We work together to create a strong collaborative. When people come in they don't have to do it alone. We don't just give them a map -- we give them support throughout that path. (Christian Community Action Roll-In 3). We would like our families to be able to provide for their families without assistance. We believe every person has an inherent desire to take care of their kids. Our family groups look after each other like neighbors. We have families that are single mothers/parents due to changes in family status.

CBN News Reporter Caitlin Burke Reports: Personal trainers at Inner City Weightlifting (ICW), are considered some of the best in Boston. Trained by world class instructors, they're sought out by some of the city's top business men and women. For them, a career in personal training isn't what they anticipated, but it's a job that's saving their lives. Just about all of the trainers at ICW have spent significant time behind bars. At the ripe young age of 31, Lemon has been shot, seen friends die and been arrested for things he's done and things he hasn't. He says the violence from his old life wasn't as much a choice, as it was survival. When it comes to getting off the streets, plenty of programs offer, help, but not a real way out. ICW founder Jon Feinman shares little in common with someone like Lemon but he has a passion for disrupting the system that Lemon says could have destroyed him. Feinman started ICW in 2010. One of the early challenges was figuring out how to reconcile the dream of changing lives through weight-training, with the realities of life on the street. Still, the ICW team moved forward—knowing they had a lot to learn. By listening, they discovered ways to improve their program. First, they learned people wanted a true sense of community. Second, many people on the streets lack hope. That's where weight training makes a difference. Not only does it offer community, ICW also provides a career-track in personal training. In 2016 nearly 400 ICW clients trained with a student-trainer. While Sarah Downey originally came for the workout, she told CBN that her perception of the world changed as she got to know her trainer. That moved her to use her network to bring her trainer other clients and provide him with odd jobs to make extra cash. As communities and networks become inclusive, opportunities become endless.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Rev. Dorothy Moore with Reconciliation Outreach. (Reconciliation Outreach Overview Roll-In). Founded in 1986 as an outreach to children, it strives to give a foundation for children, a second chance to adults and a safe place for families during transition. A long time ago we found there was a lot of anger against society. Reconciliation Outreach was designed as an outreach to bring people to God. We are not designed to be the judge of what you're doing or how you behave. I'm there to lead you to Him and help you find a new way to live. The purpose of what we do is to give them that new life that can only come through Christ. The kids just need to know that the Lord loves them and they can love Him back. These are somebody's children. If we just all saw the homeless community that way, there's so much we would change. (Reference to her book, "Lady in the Hood"). What happened to the neighbor in the hood? We left him out so let's put him back. The consistency gives them the stability that the kids don't have. The kids that figure it out say they can be part of the answer instead of part of the problem. (Reconciliation Outreach Values Roll-In). It's really beautiful the change you can make in someone's life. I'm excited about a lot of things. I'm already seeing in the future. It's exploding with young people, with high school, the ages that need to be there that get it now and want to make a difference. Our tomorrows are looking very hopeful. We're seeing a lot of growth in South Dallas. We're having a lot of fun with growing a veggie garden.

Our host Cheri Duckworth introduces our guest today, Noble Crawford, Jr. with H.O.P.E. Farm, Inc. (Hope Farm Roll-In 1). Boys without fathers tend to get into drugs more often, commit suicide more often, end up in prison more often, and drop out of school more often. There's not a whole lot of good that comes out of a boy not having a positive male role model. Because He loves us and he wants us to do better, He knows we're capable of doing better than that. This burden was developed while I was in law enforcement. I saw these young boys locked up in holding cells. I looked at stats of how early they die when they're involved in criminal activity. Law enforcement is not rehabilitative -- it's for public service. That was the catalyst behind starting Hope Farm. They get a break when they first get here because they have been in school all day. Then on a rotation they do homework, get a hot meal and a couple days a week they receive reading tutoring. Many of them do not read at grade level. Some of the boys get piano lessons because we offer a music program. (Hope Farm Roll-In 2). We try to teach these boys to not just be men, but to be Godly men. The reality of these boys hearing that they are loved by a man is profound because they go to bed at night without having a father to tell them that they love them. The first guy to complete the program is now married, lives in Atlanta, and pastors a church. Another young man just graduated and is signed to play football for Trinity University in San Antonio. It's an incredible incentive to keep doing what we're doing and increase our capacity. We're getting ready to build a new building in Fort Worth. (Hope Farm Roll-In 3). We want to work with the boys right in the face of everything they deal with every day. We want to be able to help them move past the tragedy and move on to triumph. They get to attend activities that they would never get to attend; basketball games, football games etc. When they first come into the program, our biggest item is that they partner with us. This is not a drop off program; it's a leadership program. We're not the head of the household; they're the head of the household. They must be committed to this and to us. We want to come alongside them to help them raise their sons. We're here to help them.

CBN News Reporter Mark Martin Reports: Author and activist Erin Merryn is on a mission to protect children from being sexually abused. With millions of victims in the United States alone, the Illinois woman is taking her fight to all 50 states and beyond. People magazine named her one of 15 women changing the world. With a bubbly baby girl, supportive husband, and infectious personality, you'd never guess Erin Merryn has endured tragic, unimaginable acts. This vibrant 30-year-old is a survivor of sexual abuse. Merryn said it started when she was just 6 years old at her first sleep-over. She said the uncle of her best friend sexually abused her during the night. The first time. Merryn never told anyone, and she says until she turned 8 and a half, when her family moved from the area, the man repeatedly sexually abused her. He even brutally raped her just weeks shy of her seventh birthday. She said he continued to threaten her to keep quiet, and she complied. Even after she and her family moved to a new neighborhood, sexual abuse continued. Merryn said this time the perpetrator was an older cousin, someone she had viewed as a brother figure. Merryn wrote about her despair in her childhood diary. Merryn finally broke her silence when her younger sister told her that she, too, was being sexually abused by the same cousin. The two told their parents who believed them 100 percent. The next step was telling their story to a forensic investigator at The Children's Advocacy Center of North and Northwest Cook County. More than 900 of these non-profit centers exist around the country. The room where Merryn found her voice has a two-way mirror. As she shared her story with a trained therapist, behind that mirror investigators listened, collecting information to build a case against a perpetrator. Merryn said her cousin confessed to the crime, was sentenced to seven years probation, and put in a sex offender treatment program instead of receiving jail time. However, her early childhood abuser was never prosecuted. What Merryn and her sister went through is by no means isolated. Merryn eventually went on to become a social worker at a counseling agency. But God had different plans for her to help children and teens on a national and international level. He used her childhood diary to spark a new idea. At that, Erin's Law was born. The law requires age-appropriate personal body safety and sexual abuse prevention curriculum for pre-kindergarten through 12th grade students in public schools. It educates kids on safe touch, unsafe touch; safe secrets, unsafe secrets; how to get away and tell. Merryn is on a mission to find either a state senator or representative in each state to sponsor the bill, draft it, and introduce it to lawmakers for an eventual vote. Erin's Law is spreading like wildfire, even drawing the attention of celebrities like Oprah and Katie Couric, and magazines like People and Glamour. In a little more than four years it's passed in 21 states and pending in 22, with seven to go. It's a legacy she'll leave for her baby girl and millions of other children who, because of a law, will be protected from the grip of sexual abuse.
