

www.opb.org/careers

OPB is hiring!

Currently open:

- Reporter/Producer, Bend Bureau

Coming soon:

- Host/Announcer, Weekend Edition
- Executive Producer, Think Out Loud
- Assignment Editor, OPB News
- Host/Announcer, All Things Considered
- Associate Producer, State of Wonder

Visit www.opb.org/careers to learn about our current job opportunities and to apply.

About OPB

We focus on news that matters. We are on the ground every day telling the most important stories in our region. We take the time to develop stories that shape community conversations about government and culture, urban and rural issues, the environment and the economy.

Our stories are illuminating, stimulating and offer rich experiences to our listeners and readers. Our dedication to digital media means that the news team has the opportunity to create content for many platforms including audio, video, text, photography and graphics.

We invite our audience to add their experience and expertise to our stories. The community respects our integrity and trusts that story will be told with fairness and accuracy. And trust in OPB means access for our journalists.

As the most-used public media service per capita in the nation, OPB's exceptional newsroom is widely recognized – most recently with a Peabody Award. OPB has received many other national, regional and local awards for our work on radio, TV and online, including an Alfred I. DuPont-Columbia University Award.

OPB News (opbnews.org) is a highly collaborative newsroom that comprises about 30 staff producing stories and programs for radio, television and online.

OPB is an Equal Opportunity Employer.