Length: 90
Service: PBS

Series Title: American Masters
Version: SD-Stacked
Airdate: 7/5/2006 8:00:00 PM/502
Format: Documentary

Bob Dylan participates for the first time in an exclusive, full-length film biography. From his explosive arrival on the downtown New York City scene in 1961 - with a raspy voice, pounding guitar and stunning lyrics - through his near-fatal motorcycle accident in Woodstock in 1966, no one had more of an impact and no one changed the landscape of contemporary music more profoundly. Private, almost reclusive, disdainful of customary forms of publicity, Dylan has now agreed to make an appearance in his own story, illuminated in particular by this remarkable five-year period. Directed by Martin Scorsese, this intimate and incomparable film includes an archive of never-before-seen footage from childhood, from the road and from backstage, as well as unreleased interviews conducted over the past 15 years with other seminal figures from those times - some of whom, like Allan Ginsberg, are long dead. And, Dylan brings the rights to his legendary music with him - "Blowin' in the Wind," "Like a Rolling Stone," "Don't Think Twice," "Mr. Tambourine Man," "It Ain't Me Babe," "Just Like a Woman," "Positively 4th Street," "The Times They Are A-Changin'" - and on and on.

Service: PBS
Segment Length: 01:26:46

Essentially every American who has listened to the radio, or gone to summer camp, knows Woody's This Land is Your Land. The nation's signature folk singer/song-writer, Woody's music has been recorded by everyone from the Mormon Tabernacle Choir to the Irish rock band U2. Originally blowing out of the Dust Bowl in 1930s Depression Era America, he blended vernacular, rural music and populism to give voice to millions of downtrodden citizens. Woody's prolific music, poetry and prose were politically leftist, uniquely patriotic, and always inspirational. He joined music with traditional oral history and was central to generations of folk music revival. His is a complex story filled with frenetic creative energy and a treasure trove of cultural history - as well as personal imperfections and profound family tragedy.

A contributor in Aiken, South Carolina owns a remarkable collection of wartime home front memorabilia, including a pair of mysterious $5 certificates titled "Brethren Service Committee. The certificates are dated 1943 and state that the contribution is intended as an "alternate service to war. History Detectives heads to Pennsylvania and Maryland to gain a deeper understanding of religious and moral objection to military service. A South Carolina man has a beautiful eight-volume set of Edward Gibbon's "History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" that he acquired at a local library sale in Edgefield, South Carolina. The volumes are dated 1789 and are inscribed with the signature John Calhoun. The contributor suspects the books belonged to John C. Calhoun, the 19th-Century American political giant and intellectual architect of the Confederacy. History Detectives heads to South Carolina to uncover whether the books in question shaped the thinking of a politician who was nicknamed the "cast-iron man" for his staunch determination to defend the causes in which he believed. Popular history has it that Mickey Mouse was born from a drawing sketched on a napkin by Walt Disney during a train ride from New York to Los Angeles in 1928. A San Francisco toy collector, however, believes his small mouse figurine may turn the legend of Mickey on its ears. History Detectives heads to California, New York and Pennsylvania to trace the ancestry of America's most famous mouse and shed light on the bare-knuckle business fights in the toy industry.

In San Salvador, El Salvador, two thousand miles from Los Angeles's Eighteenth Street, a gang known as "18" governs its territory like an armed militia. In the mid 1990s, thousands of Salvadoran nationals living illegally in the U.S. were deported to their homeland. Some brought L.A. gang culture back with them to a country beset by poverty and awash in arms. Organizing support for gang members in need, meting out justice to those who would defy the gang's code and waging an endless vendetta against its enemies, 18 is helping to make El Salvador one of the most violent and crime-ridden countries in the world. 18 with a Bullet presents a chilling portrait of six months in the life of this notorious Central American gang.

 Long feared as an object of terror, sharks are now gaining a new reputation as a species who numbers are being decimated with unprecedented speed. This decline comes at a time when we are beginning to learn more about the complexity of their behavior and to dispel the myth of the shark as "a mindless eating machine." The Cousteau oceanographic team of divers and scientists travels to Rangiroa in French Polynesia and to South Africa to explore the role of this keystone species in the ocean and to other life forms, to study behavioral patterns, examine the complexity of their intelligence, and to seek out possible reasons behind the decreases in their population. Narrated by Pierce Brosnan.

What makes dogs so extraordinary? The unconditional love, acceptance, moments of joy and laughter that dogs share with humans is legendary -- a historic relationship that began when man tamed the wild wolf. With a unique combination of instinct and intelligence, dogs have enriched the lives of humans for centuries. This program explores how dogs provide loyal service to their owners by participating in mountain rescue missions, assisting the disabled, and even working in times of war. Dogs have become an integral part of people's lives, forming mutually satisfying bonds that are unmatched.

This episode examines the dangerous weather system that swept through Hawaii on January 28, 1998. Surfers from around the world came to the state's famous North Shore with hopes of riding some of the largest waves ever recorded. However, the Coast Guard deemed the storm so hazardous that all access to the water was officially denied. Eyewitness accounts are combined with unbelievable action footage of the storm itself, some of which was captured on 70mm IMAX film.

Still in Harm's Way - Rebuilding hurricane zones. Are your tax dollars paying for vacation homes for the wealthy? Man of Peace? - We follow up with Fawaz Damra, a controversial imam with alleged ties to terrorism who is awaiting deportation. STILL IN HARM'S WAY - Alabama's Dauphin Island has seen more than its share of nature's destruction. Five hurricanes have ravaged the island since 1979, including Katrina's devastation last year. Yet federal money - taxpayer money - helps reconstruct the island and other hard-hit coastal areas after each storm. NOW takes a trip back to Dauphin Island to take a closer look at the rebuilding that we're all paying for, just as a new hurricane season approaches. MAN OF PEACE? NOW follows up with Fawaz Damra, a U.S. Muslim leader who was first profiled by NOW in 2002. An outspoken figure who has apologized for anti-Semitic statements he made in 1991, the former Cleveland imam is now in jail awaiting deportation for his alleged ties to terrorism. He is also married and has three American-born daughters. Is he a man of peace or of terror?

In San Salvador, El Salvador, two thousand miles from Los Angeles's Eighteenth Street, a gang known as "18" governs its territory like an armed militia. In the mid 1990s, thousands of Salvadoran nationals living illegally in the U.S. were deported to their homeland. Some brought L.A. gang culture back with them to a country beset by poverty and awash in arms. Organizing support for gang members in need, meting out justice to those who would defy the gang's code and waging an endless vendetta against its enemies, 18 is helping to make El Salvador one of the most violent and crime-ridden countries in the world. 18 with a Bullet presents a chilling portrait of six months in the life of this notorious Central American gang.

"Einstein's Dream"--The first hour introduces string theory and shows how modern physics - composed of two theories that are ferociously incompatible - reached an impasse: one theory, known as general relativity, is successful in describing big things like stars and galaxies; another, called quantum mechanics, is equally successful in describing small things like atoms and subatomic particles. Albert Einstein, the inventor of general relativity, dreamed of finding a single theory that would embrace all of nature's laws. But in his quest for the so-called unified theory, Einstein came up empty-handed, and the conflict between general relativity and quantum mechanics has stymied all who've followed. That is, until the discovery of string theory. "String's the Thing" In the second hour, Greene describes the serendipitous steps that led from a forgotten 200-year-old mathematical formula to the first glimmerings of strings - quivering strands of energy whose different vibrations give rise to quarks, electrons, photons and all other elementary particles. Strings are truly tiny - smaller than an atom by the same factor that a tree is smaller than the entire universe. But, as Greene explains, it is possible - for the first time ever - to combine the laws of the large and the laws of the small into a proposal for a single, harmonious "Theory of Everything."

A contributor in Aiken, South Carolina owns a remarkable collection of wartime home front memorabilia, including a pair of mysterious $5 certificates titled "Brethren Service Committee. The certificates are dated 1943 and state that the contribution is intended as an "alternate service to war. History Detectives heads to Pennsylvania and Maryland to gain a deeper understanding of religious and moral objection to military service. A South Carolina man has a beautiful eight-volume set of Edward Gibbon's "History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" that he acquired at a local library sale in Edgefield, South Carolina. The volumes are dated 1789 and are inscribed with the signature John Calhoun. The contributor suspects the books belonged to John C. Calhoun, the 19th-Century American political giant and intellectual architect of the Confederacy. History Detectives heads to South Carolina to uncover whether the books in question shaped the thinking of a politician who was nicknamed the "cast-iron man" for his staunch determination to defend the causes in which he believed. Popular history has it that Mickey Mouse was born from a drawing sketched on a napkin by Walt Disney during a train ride from New York to Los Angeles in 1928. A San Francisco toy collector, however, believes his small mouse figurine may turn the legend of Mickey on its ears. History Detectives heads to California, New York and Pennsylvania to trace the ancestry of America's most famous mouse and shed light on the bare-knuckle business fights in the toy industry.

Still in Harm's Way - Rebuilding hurricane zones. Are your tax dollars paying for vacation homes for the wealthy? Man of Peace? - We follow up with Fawaz Damra, a controversial imam with alleged ties to terrorism who is awaiting deportation. STILL IN HARM'S WAY - Alabama's Dauphin Island has seen more than its share of nature's destruction. Five hurricanes have ravaged the island since 1979, including Katrina's devastation last year. Yet federal money - taxpayer money - helps reconstruct the island and other hard-hit coastal areas after each storm. NOW takes a trip back to Dauphin Island to take a closer look at the rebuilding that we're all paying for, just as a new hurricane season approaches. MAN OF PEACE? NOW follows up with Fawaz Damra, a U.S. Muslim leader who was first profiled by NOW in 2002. An outspoken figure who has apologized for anti-Semitic statements he made in 1991, the former Cleveland imam is now in jail awaiting deportation for his alleged ties to terrorism. He is also married and has three American-born daughters. Is he a man of peace or of terror?

James Dean has long survived his brief 24 years. September and October 2005 mark the 50th anniversary of both Dean's fatal automobile accident and the release of the film with which he is forever identified, "Rebel Without a Cause." A cinema figure of such iconic and mythic dimensions, it is said of Dean that he didn't just change the way people acted, he changed the way people lived. He was an original; he was a natural. Synonymous with adolescent angst, he also redefined the American male ideal, making vulnerable sexy and alienation desirable. There are only three films to his legacy - East of Eden, Rebel Without a Cause and Giant - crafted with three seminal directors, Elia Kazan and Nicholas Ray and George Stevens. Reality and art are closely linked in Dean and are seamlessly woven in this documentary - his film personae are all misfits, consummate outsiders, characters in search of identity and meaning, who echo the themes of loss and abandonment in his own life experience.

Director Mike Figgis' film examines the circumstances of the vibrant period in the 1960s, when the UK provided the fertile ground for a new kind of blues music -- entirely influenced by the authentic black blues of the USA, paying homage to the originators of the music and making a global audience aware of the likes of Robert Johnson, Muddy Waters, Howlin' Wolf, Freddie King, et. al. Figgis himself participated, albeit in a minor way, in this period of history, playing in a blues band with Bryan Ferry, a band that was the nucleus for the first Roxy Music. A series of musical interviews with the key players of the blues movement is augmented with a live session at the famous Abbey Road Beatles studio. Tom Jones, Jeff Beck, Van Morrison and Lulu all improvise around some classic blues standards -- accompanied by a superb band made up of younger and not-so-young musicians. In The Gray Whale Obstacle Course, Jean-Michel Cousteau and the Ocean Adventures team travel the length of the Gray whales migration, from the warm waters of Magdalena Bay in Baja California, Mexico, where the gray whales give birth, nurse their calves, rest and play before their long journey north, to the nutrient-rich feeding grounds of the Bering Sea in Alaska. The team searches for clues about this resilient, yet threatened species to gain a better understanding of the increasing challenges, both natural and man-made, that gray whales face along the way.

Everyone knew Walter Cronkite from the CBS Evening News, where he earned distinction as "The Most Trusted Man in America" during his 19 years at the anchor desk. Throughout his award-winning career - which began as a field reporter in World War II - Cronkite covered such historic events as the first trip to the moon; the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and Senator Robert Kennedy; the Watergate scandal; the Vietnam War; the Iran hostage crisis; and John Glenn's return to space. Through it all, he steadfastly adhered to a credo of fast, accurate and unbiased news reporting. After stepping down as anchorman almost 25 years ago, his story continued - Walter Cronkite still leads the life of a genuine Renaissance man - author, sailor, producer and patron, his public concern for, and commitment to, our world has never faltered.

The Middle East showdown... Is the United States weighing in too soon, or too late? Tonight on "Washington Week." The Israel/Lebanon conflict veers out of control. U. S. Ambassador to the U.N., John Bolton: "It is just not appropriate to talk about a ceasefire if that is the alpha and the omega of the situation." Meanwhile, the United States searches for a diplomatic solution. "What we're seeing here in a sense is the growing - the birth pangs of a new Middle East," says Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice. But who will stop this war? Back in Washington the president produces a pair of firsts: appealing to the right by vetoing a stem cell bill - President Bush said, "And I'm not going to allow it." - but leaning to the left at the NAACP convention. Bush continues, "And I understand that many African-Americans distrust my political party." (Applause.) In the second hour, Greene describes the serendipitous steps that led from a forgotten 200-year-old mathematical formula to the first glimmerings of strings - quivering strands of energy whose different vibrations give rise to quarks, electrons, photons and all other elementary particles. Strings are truly tiny - smaller than an atom by the same factor that a tree is smaller than the entire universe. But, as Greene explains, it is possible - for the first time ever - to combine the laws of the large and the laws of the small into a proposal for a single, harmonious Theory of Everything.

"Welcome to the 11th Dimension" -- The third and final episode of "The Elegant Universe" shows how in 1995 Edward Witten of Princeton's Institute for Advanced Study, aided by others, revolutionized string theory by successfully uniting the five different versions into a single theory that is cryptically named "M-theory," a development that required a total of 11 dimensions. Ten...eleven...who's counting? But the new 11th dimension is different from all the others, since it implies that strings can come in higher dimensional shapes called membranes, or "branes" for short. These possess truly science-fiction-like qualities, since in principle they can be as large as the universe. A brane can even be a universe - a parallel universe - and we may be living in one right now.

At the heart of "The Sinking of the Andrea Doria" are four essential questions: Did the Stockholm ram the Doria with a sudden and dangerous maneuver, as the Italians claimed? Or did the Doria cut across the Stockholm's path? Did the young officer on the Stockholm misread his radar, causing him to misjudge the distance between the ships? And what impact did speed and fog have on the collision? Now, in a new examination of the 50-year-old maritime disaster, SECRETS OF THE DEAD combines archival footage, survivor accounts, crew interviews, long-buried reports, and a startling insurance company cover-up to lay bare exactly what happened that fateful night.

In his first primetime interview on American television, a former detainee, British citizen Moazzam Begg, tells a disturbing story alleging kidnap, torture and murder. Taken suddenly from his home one night in Pakistan, Begg was imprisoned for three years in Afghanistan and Guantanamo Bay without any charges pressed against him. Begg gives viewers a rare insider's perspective on the secretive prisons in the 'war on terror.' David Brancaccio travels to Begg's hometown in Birmingham, England to find out how a Muslim man from a British upbringing ended up entangled in militant Islamic politics. Begg, who is a husband and father of four, says he did not participate in terrorism. But the U.S. is adamant that his detention was justified.

The Middle East showdown... Is the United States weighing in too soon, or too late? Tonight on "Washington Week." The Israel/Lebanon conflict veers out of control. U. S. Ambassador to the U.N., John Bolton: "It is just not appropriate to talk about a ceasefire if that is the alpha and the omega of the situation." Meanwhile, the United States searches for a diplomatic solution. "What we're seeing here in a sense is the growing - the birth pangs of a new Middle East.", says Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice. But who will stop this war? Back in Washington the president produces a pair of firsts: appealing to the right by vetoing a stem cell bill - President Bush said, "And I'm not going to allow it." - but leaning to the left at the NAACP convention. Bush continues, "And I understand that many African-Americans distrust my political party." (Applause.) We look at this busy summer week with the reporters who have been covering these pivotal events. Andrea Mitchell of NBC News; Martha Raddatz of ABC News; David Broder of the Washington Post; and Alexis Simendinger of National Journal.

Format: Documentary

WIDE ANGLE's cameras are on location in Morocco as history is made. In May 2006, an imam academy in the city of Rabat holds a graduation ceremony. But the class of 2006 is no ordinary group of students. Side by side with the male graduates are 50 women pioneers, among the first contemporary group of women to be officially trained as religious leaders in the Arab world. Empowered to do everything that male imams do, except lead Friday prayer in a mosque, the women will fan out across Morocco to work as spiritual guides in mosques, schools, hospitals and prisons, even hosting their own television and radio talk shows.
