Happy Spring!

We have a great May lineup on TV and Radio for you this month, and I have a quick favor to ask of you.

After this long, snowy winter, May finally brings warmth and a desire to get outside and explore. Explore we will, with a tremendous new documentary featuring a fantastic couple from Custer. The Ups and Downs of Herb and Jan Conn follows two caving pioneers as they mapped Jewel Cave in the Black Hills. This empowering story is sure to inspire you on an adventure!

We would also like to invite you to explore Lead as the 25th season of Dakota Life draws to a close. This season has been one of the most viewed as we have featured nine communities across the state.

Now to the favor. SDPB is participating in Public Media Giving Days on May 1st and 2nd. NPR, PBS, and other trusted partners are leading this first-of-its-kind effort.

Public Media Giving Days is a nationally coordinated digital effort aimed at attracting new members. As audiences are dispersed among more and more channels, there are fewer opportunities to help them understand how important their support is. With your help, we can talk with them digitally, and grow our support among people who continue to benefit from our content on digital platforms.

I am asking you to please visit SDPB's website for shareable Public Media Giving Days content that you can post on social media. Nothing is as impactful as a peer-to-peer endorsement, and sharing your support for SDPB goes a long way. Adding new donors to the SDPB family is critical to help keep your public media station strong for generations to come. Of course, if you want to make a gift supporting this effort, we would appreciate that as well.

We hope you enjoy reading this issue as you ring in the new season! As always, we are so thankful for our readers.

CONNS, CAVING, & CLIMBING

HERB AND JAN CONN, THE BLACK HILLS LEGENDS

Originally from the White Mountains of New Hampshire, they traveled the West after Herb's WWII-era Army service. Soon they fell in love with the Black Hills, built an off-the-grid cave dwelling, and set out to establish the Black Hills as a climbing destination.

By 1959, having explored the surficial hills, they were lured into exploring Jewel Cave, where only two miles of passage had been documented. Twenty years later, they had mapped over sixty miles in what is now known as the third largest cave system in the world and helped locate and establish the popular Scenic Tour. The work they started continues. Over two hundred miles have been discovered.

Herb and Jan Conn inspired others in many ways beyond their pioneering work as climbers and cavers. The Ups and Downs of Herb and Jan Conn documents their ascents and descents, and the exploratory, literary, cartographic, artistic, and musical repertory they created -- all of which continue to inspire people with an itch to explore, beneath or above the surface.

Justin Koehler, producer of Ups & Downs, moved back to South Dakota last year after being out of the state for almost 20 years. Since partnering with SDPB, he has produced short films that capture the life of South Dakotans and the state's history.

"When SDPB approached me to edit the Conn documentary, I was a bit embarrassed to say that I never heard of their story before that day. However, it took about five minutes of research to understand why their story was worthy of the big screen." Justin continues, "I admire Herb and Jan's sense of adventure and fearless approach to climbing and caving; both sports in infant stages when they started. Even if the Conns don't want to be labeled as such, their peers view them as pioneers, and to be among the first to do anything takes a tremendous amount of courage— but it takes a lot of intellect, as well."

Herb and Jan did not want to be in the spotlight, but it is hard to ignore the feats that the couple achieved. For them, it wasn't about the competition but rather the adventure. Together, the duo, the engineer and artist, made history. Justin shares what he hopes the audience will take away from the film.

"Herb and Jan lived life on their own terms- no one else's. They pursued their dreams and aspirations regardless of outside judgments. They 'colored outside the lines' of what was considered a 'traditional life' in that time, and they did it not to seek fame or fortune, but to simply do something they loved and enjoyed," says Justin. "You can't help but smile when hearing them together, talking about their amazing adventures."

SDPB is hosting free screenings of The Ups and Downs of Herb and Jan Conn Wednesday, May 10th at 2pm at Westhills Village, 255 Texas Street in Rapid City, and Thursday, May 11th at 6:00 pm and 7:30 pm at the Custer Beacon, 351 Washington Street in Custer.

Watch it on SDPB TV Thursday, May 18th at 8:30 pm Central (7:30 MT).

SOUTH DAKOTA YOUTH JOURNALISM PILOT PROJECT

By Cara Hetland, Director of Radio and Journalism Content at SDPB

The Youth Journalism Pilot Project is a way to give a voice to teens in South Dakota. Twenty-five percent of the state's population is under the age of 18. Public media does a good job preparing our youngest learners for school, and we engage adults with news and entertainment. There is a disconnect between programming for and about teenagers. Research indicates that teens want the media to stop making assumptions about them and really see them as individuals. These are students who care about issues and want to impact change.

This pilot project has SDPB staff working with students from Sturgis Brown High School to tell a story in their voice about an issue that's important to them. The students selected isolation and where students find hope. We have met regularly since the end of January, working on interviewing, shooting interviews and b-roll, and writing their script. Brad Van Osdel, Jackie Hendry, and Krystal Schoenbauer are instrumental in lending their areas of expertise to this. Journalism instructor Teresa Froelich is key to working with the students and keeping them on track. The finished feature story is featured on this month's SD Focus followed by experts discussing the issues raised by the students. Mental wellness is an important topic for our youth and these students bring their peer's personal stories to light and also bring us hope.

SDPB IN THE COMMUNITY

We caught all of the action at the State Basketball Tournaments. Looking for pictures of your favorite teams? Check out flickr.com/sdpb.

SDPB's Education Team had a BLAST at the YFS Kids Fair in Rapid City. Thanks for joining the fun!

NEW EMPLOYEE!

Ryan Bozer is joining the SDPB team as the local Morning Edition host. Over the past ten years, Ryan has worked as an educator in classrooms and museums nationwide. As a SD Mines alumnus, Ryan is excited to return to the Black Hills.

UPCOMING EVENTS

Join us for the Downtown Sioux Falls Art & Wine Walk on May 5th. Stop by the SDPB Sioux Falls Studio and view art from Stephanie Arne and SDPB's Tim Davison.

Stephanie Arne, originally from Pierre, is the Director of Conservation for the Great Plains Zoo and the Butterfly House and Aquarium. She is also the former online host of Mutual of Omaha's Wild Kingdom. Tim Davison specializes in capturing animals in oils on canvas and wood panels. Since growing up in Wahoo, Nebraska, he has traveled to all 50 states while working with non-profits, zoos, and wildlife rescues.

Together, Stephanie and Tim have used film, art, and public speaking to support conservation and raise funds for wildlife conservation.

Watch premiere screenings of The Ups and Downs of Herb and Jan Conn, SDPB's newest documentary.

Wednesday, May 10th at 2pm at Westhills Village, 255 Texas Street in Rapid City, and Thursday, May 11th at 6:00 pm and 7:30 pm at the Custer Beacon, 351 Washington Street in Custer.

See page 4 for more info and an exclusive interview with the producer.

Dakota Life

25TH ANNIVERSARY

FLASHBACK

MI YOUNG LEE

We're celebrating 25 years of Dakota Life. Throughout this anniversary season, we have revisited some of the people we've met on the show over the years. In 2007, Dakota Life profiled artist Mi Young Lee of Sioux Falls, where she explained her career, her dreams, and her artwork. We recently caught up with her at her current home in Austin, Texas.

INTERVIEW BY BOB BOSSE,
FORMER DIRECTOR OF TELEVISION
AT SDPB

SDPB: The 2007 story was titled Painting a Dream. What is your dream in the current stage of your life?

Lee: I believe I have achieved my dream of becoming a professional artist. I have been fortunate to exhibit my artwork at many exhibits, and it has been rewarding to have my paintings cherished at many clients' homes, offices, and public spaces. I still participate with international exhibits and private commissions. In the current stage of my life, I am focusing on myself, traveling for fun, meeting people with different cultures, and enjoying playing pickleball at a local recreation center when staying at home.

SDPB: Tell me where your career has taken you since our 2007 story.

Lee: Since the story was aired and became available on YouTube, I have encountered more people who have recognized me and my art. As the story covered my young life as an art student and an early part of my career, many of my clients and friends were able to understand my background and connect it with my art to better understand my paintings.

SDPB: Has your inspiration or your point of view changed over time?

Lee: My source of inspiration always has been everyday life, the people that I meet and interact with, and the life events I experience. I try to pause at a juncture of certain life events, take a slice of feeling or emotions, and filter my interpretation on the canvas. The point of view that I maintain is that I make people happy through my paintings, and I try to deliver the message of energy and optimism.

SDPB: Has your symbolism changed over time, and if so, how?

Lee: The tools I use to express my feelings on my canvas are colors, gestures, and motions.

The fundamentals of my symbolism still remain unchanged. For example, childhood or growth is expressed in yellow, while energy is portrayed in red. Over time I have migrated from primary colors to mature colors where I even use the black color to depict positive mystery. As to symbols, I would use circles for connection, squares for the foundations of the current state and also for a passage from the past to future, and gestures done by brushstrokes for various emotions.

Tech Tips: All About QR Codes

QR codes are becoming increasingly popular to quickly and easily access digital content. QR stands for "Quick Response."

To use a QR code, simply open your smartphone's camera app and point it at the code. Your phone should automatically recognize the code and offer to take you to the linked website or other digital content.

Because QR codes can be used in a variety of ways, they are becoming more popular. You are seeing them in publications (including here in SDPB Magazine), on TV commercials and promotional announcements, at restaurants where you can access their menu, and even on TV cooking shows where you can see the recipe on your phone while watching the show.

FAMILIAR VOICES SAYING HELLO AND GOODBYE

Michel Martin recently became host of NPR's Morning Edition, joining A Martinez, Leila Fadel, and Steve Inskeep. A familiar voice, Michel has spent more than 25 years as a journalist, coming to NPR in 2006. Since 2015, Michel has been the weekend host of All Things Considered.

In reflecting on her new role, Michel notes, "NPR has both intimacy and reach. Our reporters are all over the world, and we're bringing you stories wherever you are. We all appreciate the trust the audience places in us. I've always wanted to work on a morning show, and I am so excited to work with Steve, Leila, and A to be a part of the great legacy of this program."

As we welcome Michel to a new role, we sadly bid another familiar person farewell. After 41 years, Sylvia Poggioli is hanging up her headphones.

The longest-serving reporter on the International Desk is an NPR icon. Sylvia's wide-ranging, hard-hitting interviews, and rich storytelling helped NPR distinguish itself in its early years as a news organization with a deep interest in the wider world. Her work helped build the foundation for what is today NPR's award-winning International Desk.

Over her career, Sylvia has been honored with many awards. They don't mean as much as the people she has met. "I'm so thankful to have been part of the lives of so many listeners over the years. It has been an honor and a privilege."

MATT CARDA

SUPPORTER SPOTLIGHT

"I'VE BEEN WATCHING AND LISTENING TO SDPB FOR QUITE A LONG TIME, SINCE I WAS A KID. AS I'VE GROWN OLDER, I'VE GAINED AN APPRECIATION FOR THE THINGS THAT MY MOM LISTENED TO."

A range of things can remind any one person of their mother. We might remember our mother when we see a specific flower, favorite blanket, or a family recipe. For Matt Carda, SDPB serves as this reminder of his mother. A Sioux Falls resident, Matt lost his mother, Mary Ray, in October of 2005. Every year Matt makes a donation to Friends of SDPB in her honor.

"As I've grown older, I have gained an appreciation for the kinds of things my mom listened to, and I think they are important. In honor of my mother, I choose to give on her birthday every year because she helped foster my love for SDPB," says Matt. "I get the satisfaction that I'm helping maintain SDPB and the quality that's included in that. And then, of course, it's a nice tribute to my mom and elicits fond memories of her when I do it."

Matt goes on to say he and his mother shared their love for SDPB over similar things, like quality programming, shows, resources, and more. Like his mother, he finds value in programming and information he can trust.

"It's a trustworthy news source. The programming is quality, and the hosts and content they have on the program are quality. I think that we both probably would think the same thing about it." Matt says, "If you partake in listening to shows, news, or watching anything on TV, I think it's especially relevant then to make SDPB a recipient of a donation."

This May, we are so thankful for all of our mothers, like Matt's, who fostered a love for SDPB from the start. We are also grateful for members like Matt, who partake in the generational relationship with SDPB.

Duke Kahanamoku's stardom extended beyond the water and into Hollywood, where he pursued an acting career. Waterman examines Duke's experience in 1920s Hollywood and the racial discrimination he faced. Duke was only cast in bit roles – most of them racist stereotypes, and many of which went uncredited. Follow the story on American Masters Waterman – Duke: Ambassador of Aloha.

History Winston Churchill's War

A story of how one man, tied to a defining moment in history, became a giant. Without the second World War, Winston Churchill would today be considered a mere footnote: a poor strategist, a disastrous chancellor of the exchequer, and an unreformed Imperialist. The series revisits his early life, explores his speeches, and illustrates the war through rich archival materials and expert interviews.

Masterpiece Marie Antionette

Marie Antoinette is just a teenager when she leaves Austria to marry the Dauphin of France.

At Versailles, under the complex rules of the French court, she suffers from not being able to live her life the way she wants, under pressure to continue the Bourbon line and secure the Franco-Austrian alliance.

PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

AFROPOP THE ULTIMATE CULTURAL EXCHANGE: REWIND AND PLAY

Alain Gomis's exposé of the glaring disrespect shown to legendary jazz musician Thelonious Monk during a 1969 appearance on French state television while the iconic pianist was in Paris for the end of his European tour.

SDPB2: Monday, May 1, 7pm (6 MT)

DOCWORLD GANDEN: GARDEN OF JOY

Likened by Buddhists to the Vatican City, Ganden is considered the most influential monastery of Tibetan Buddhism. Monks lived in the monastery for more than 500 years before a brutal invasion drove them to India. GANDEN: A JOYFUL LAND is a look at the lives and remembrances of the remaining generation of monks to have studied at the monastery in Tibet where the Dalai Lama's lineage began.

SDPB2: Sunday, May 14, 9pm (8 MT)

LOCAL, USA ASIAN AMERICAN STORIES OF RESILIENCE PARTS 1 AND 2

A Filipino daughter struggles with depression and reunites with her COVID survivor father after 14 months apart. A Cambodian American refugee lives under the specter of deportation for a 20-year-old mistake. A Sikh community grapples with the aftermath of a deadly mass shooting. These and other true stories of tribulation and perseverance are the slice-of-life subjects featured in two episodes of Local, USA: Asian American Stories of Resilience and Beyond, a special for Asian American and Pacific Islander Heritage Month.
