The Town of Livingston recently began an effort to make the town more eye-appealing by removing junk and unused cars and trucks.

To better explain the new city ordinance, our Focus On Community program interviewed Livingston Mayor Curtis Hayes – giving him the opportunity to update the community and to quote directly from the official ordinance to explain the new city policy.

The time limits, who pays for removal, what is acceptable as far as how to hide vehicles from public view if owners choose to have such vehicles and other related information was presented.

This informative feature on an issue of concern and some opposition was aired beginning January 16, 2019. Airings will continue on both AM and FM until such time as we believe the public has had sufficient opportunity to hear the Mayor's words on our Focus On Community public affairs feature.

Placed in the public file January 28, 2019.

This first quarter, 2019 program material was carried on:
