Monterey has plans for a new city park. WLIV's Roger Ealey recently interviewed Monterey Mayor Bill Wiggins about this.

The Mayor, in his interview, – heard on our Focus On Community programming told of the plans to develop a 400-acre tract of land the city has had since the middle 1980's.

The new development will be called Meadow Creek Park and is expected to be a major asset to the town of Monterey when it is completed.

Mayor Wiggins said on our program that plans have been drawn up and include a large lake for added recreational benefits to the citizens.

In rural areas such as ours, new parks provide a better quality of life for residents of all ages. The park will be a destination for recreation and exercise activities, gatherings of all kinds, and many other activities over the years ahead

This interview was aired multiple times in the community interest by both WLIV AM and WLIV FM.
