"THINGS TO KNOW WHEN USING KEROSENE HEATERS"

Winter weather brings on heating concerns for local residents. Safe and reliable heating sources are the top priority of residents.

A favorite heating method in the Livingston and Upper Cumberland area has become the use of Kerosene heaters. These are standalone portable heating units that use refillable and affordable kerosene fuel that is readily available from a number of sources locally.

Because these seemingly trouble-free and affordable heaters are so widely used in our area, WLIV AM and FM aired a public affairs/public service series on the proper use of Kerosene Heaters.

Our series educated the public on: Choosing the right Kerosene heater, Proper distance to place heaters from other items, Proper ventilation, Kerosene Heater safety around young kids, Dangers of fire and/or explosion, Pollution from your heater, Fresh air, Properly refilling your heater, Storing heaters in the off season

Our series was scheduled to air when homes are first beginning to think about their heating source for the colder nights ahead.
