PUBLIC AFFAIRS TITLE: Rural Fire Departments
SUBJECT: Importance to local communities

Overton County is fortunate to have a number of active, trained, and responsive rural volunteer fire departments.

Each department primarily responds to calls within their community (such as Hilham, Allons, Rickman, Fairgrounds, Alpine, Hanging Limb, Monroe, Taylors Crossroads, Timothy, etc) but assist each other when the need arises and additional manpower and equipment are needed due to the size of the fire.

Some of the fire departments had sought out WLIV AM & FM help in promoting their fund-raising events. We were glad to promote this for them but also realized these departments deserved being honored with more information being broadcast as to the roles they play in keeping each of their individual communities safe.

WLIV's series saluted and recognized each department and it's many volunteers for their selfless service to their fellow man. The series featured each department and also referred back to how each not only protects their community but also looks to the community for financial support which is achieved through various fundraising projects during the calendar year.
