Subject: New county services building construction begins

Construction on a new three-story county services building has begun just west of the Livingston town square.

The project includes a basement level for – among other things – county archives storage. The first and second floors will house county service offices . The second floor will also feature a large meeting room.

The new building will be far more convenient to citizens as well as far more easily accessible to everyone.

County Executive Danner explained to our listeners the overall plans for the new facility and how it will benefit the county both now and for generations to come.

Mr. Danner's interview was featured on our Focus On Community series and aired multiple times and multiple weeks to allow all listeners the opportunity to hear the feature and be better informed about this new seat of county government coming to their community.
