PUBLIC AFFAIRS TOPIC: Keeping Graduation Safe
GUEST: Health Dept.

When Livingston Academy's senior class of 2020 finally gets to have their graduation ceremony, it will be a different venue and different in many other ways.

Like the rest of life, the Covid 19 situation has school and community leaders focusing not only on when it will be safe to proceed with this year's graduation, but where, and what additional steps should be taken to insure the health and safety of not only the graduates, but also the many family members and friends who wish to attend the event.

This year's ceremony will be held in the open out-of-doors football stadium at Tennessee Tech. LA had in the past used the indoor Hooper Eblen Center for graduation but with the coronavirus threat, officials decided an outdoor venue would be better.

Staff from the Overton County Health Department will be on hand to check everybody entering the stadium for a fever, will route guests and grads into the facility by different routes, and will work to make sure adequate distances are maintained between spectators in the crowd.

Health Department assistance was welcomed by the school system and Health Department director Andy Langford was kind enough to appear on our public affairs programming to describe and outline what is being done to make graduation 2020 for Livingston Academy's senior class as safe as possible.

This feature aired multiple times in various segments of the morning, afternoon, and evening programming on both WLIV AM and WLIV FM. Our goal: to reach the largest possible number of listeners.
