2:02 SEGMENT 1: ADDICTION, RELAPSE AND
CRIMINALIZATION 13:05

Synopsis: After criminal convictions, many people with substance use disorder are placed on probation with the condition they remain completely drug free. 2:02 SEGMENT 1: ELECTROSHOCK THERAPY
TODAY 12:11

Synopsis: Electroconvulsive therapy still has a stigma, with the reputation of being a painful, disturbing procedure that wipes out memories and, if movies are to be believed, even creates zombies. Experts explain the reality—that ECT is a quiet procedure that provokes a short brain seizure, releasing huge amounts of neurotransmitters to reset the brain in what is the quickest and most dependable treatment for severe and often suicidal depression.

Host: Reed Pence. Guests: Dr. Sarah Lisanby, Director, Translation Research, National Institute of Mental Health and Director, NIMH Non-Invasive Neuro-Modulation Unit; Dr. Dan Maixner, Assoc. Prof. of Psychiatry, Univ. of Michigan

2:03 SEGMENT 1: HEALTHCARE AND THE HOMELESS 12:12

Synopsis: Homeless Americans have a life expectancy of only around 50, and often use the ER for primary care at a huge cost. The lack of followup care for their illnesses and the mental health or substance abuse disorders common in this population add up to an enormous health burden. Experts discuss how doctors on the street can improve health for the homeless and lower cost for society.

2:01 SEGMENT 1: USING NALOXONE FOR DRUG OVERDOSES 12:22

Synopsis: The drug Naloxone has been hailed as a lifesaver, as it can reverse the effects of what would otherwise be fatal opioid overdoses. Expert panels recommend that more average citizens carry it, especially those likely to be in contact with drug users. However, obstacles including cost prevent even some first responders from having access. A new study also shows Naloxone may have unintended consequences, such as more drug use. Experts discuss.

Host: Reed Pence. Guests: Dr. Patrice Harris, Chair, Opioid Task Force and President-Elect, American Medical Assn.; Dr. Carl Latkin, Prof. of Health, Behavior and Society, Johns Hopkins Univ. Bloomberg School of Public Health; Dr. Jennifer Doleac, Assoc. Prof. of Economics, Texas A&M Univ.

2:03 SEGMENT 1: THE COMING “HOTHOUSE EARTH” 12:49

Synopsis: Rising global temperatures have produced effects such as extreme weather and a rising sea level. Climate scientists fear that if temperatures continue to rise, we may soon reach the point of no return. If the earth’s natural cooling systems start to fail, each could feed failure of the next, resulting in a hothouse with large portions of the planet uninhabitable. Authors of a major report on this phenomenon explain.

Host: Reed Pence. Guests: Dr. Diana Liverman, Prof. of Geography and Development, Univ. of Arizona; Dr. Katherine Richardson, Prof. of Biological Oceanography and leader, Sustainability Science Center, Univ. of Copenhagen; Dr. Kristina Dahl, Senior Climate Scientists, Union of Concerned Scientists

Synopsis: The second most common form of dementia is virtually unknown to most people. However, Lewy body dementia affects 1.4 million Americans, with symptoms commonly misdiagnosed as Alzheimer's disease. Additional symptoms such as hallucinations and uncontrollable shaking make diagnosis and caregiving more difficult, and treatments for Alzheimer's or psychosis can often be harmful. Experts discuss.

2:03 SEGMENT 1: SOLVING THE RECYCLING
CRISIS 12:07

Synopsis: For decades, the US has exported much of its recycled waste to China, an option no longer available to us by Chinese government policy. Now much of this waste may go to other Asian third world countries that are poorly equipped to take it. Experts say US consumers need to improve their recycling habits, but some advocates say we should aim for more—a “zero waste” lifestyle where a family of four can literally fit its annual trash in a pint jar. Experts discuss recycling options and how to reduce waste.

Host: Reed Pence. Guests: Amy Brooks, Univ. of Georgia New Materials Institute; Bea Johnson, author, Zero Waste Home and founder, zero waste lifestyle movement
