KQAL's Robert Pack visits with this musician about her inspiration, what it's like performing on A Prairie Home Companion and more.
Thursday 14	KUMD Radio: Fear of Muslims. Fear of refugees. Fear of immigrants – we've heard it all and then some on the news in recent months, with wildly differing ideas of how to cope with that fear.
Friday 15	Side Line Reporters By Sports Department
Monday 18	Canadian Broadcasting Corporation: It was November 1967 and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was the featured lecturer at Canada's prestigious annual Massey lectures. King's title was "Conscience for Change." In the lectures, he talked about race relations, the war in Vietnam, youth and social action and non-violence as a tactic for social change.
Tuesday 19	Access Minnesota: Sondra Samuels, President and CEO of the Northside Achievement Zone, discusses Minneapolis's achievement gap and NAZ's work to end multi-generational poverty in the Northside community.
Wednesday 20	With Good Reason: Health in the Heart and Mind. Through genetic screening, a heart clinic is able to assess a patient's risk of inherited heart conditions that lead to sudden cardiac death.
Thursday 21	Ideasphere: Researchers are changing the way we experience our world. They're engineering scents that stimulate lost memories, they're searching for the elusive sixth taste, and they're building virtual realities that prepare soldiers for battle.
Friday 24	Side Line Reporters By Sports Department
Monday 25	KQAL Radio: On this episode of "Don't Cha Know" we visit with Tove Wigs about the upcoming Yoga and Art series at the MN Marine Art Museum. Then, Adam Wiltgen from Lanesboro Arts stops by to fill us in on the concerts, theatre productions, art shows and the Smithsonian project.
Tuesday 26	With Good Reason: An author says NASCAR reflects our culture and society. Also: Self-driving cars are becoming a reality.
Wednesday 27	KVSC News room: News Director, Mohamad Najafian sits down with St. Cloud State University Psychology Professor Chris Jazwinski about the international holocaust remembrance day and an exhibition about Ann Frank. Area Voices within Northern Community Radio: Through the month of January, the Wild Hare Bistro in Bemidji has the work of Eve Sumsky on display. Eve is a basketweaver, but her woven artwork has evolved into more than basketry alone. Eve uses deep, rich colors and sometimes even incorporates materials like deer antlers into her weaving.

Thursday 28	USCM: In this installment of the Untold Stories of Central Minnesota, Arts and Cultural Heritage Producer Jeff Carmack takes another trip into the depths of SCSU's University Archives. In this discussion, Archivist Tom Steman reveals a new project which originated with the WPA back in the 1930's, a connection between SCSU and Bugs Bunny, and a preview of the Archive's resources that are available to KVSC Trivia Teams everywhere.

April 2016 Features
Day of the Month	Feature
Friday 1	Student Government Update: College and At Large Senators talk about safety of buildings, election, Huskies Parade, and new president and vice president candidates next academic year of 2016-17.
Monday 4	Access Minnesota: Todd Krause, Warning Coordination Meteorologist for the National Weather Service discusses Severe Weather Week in Minnesota.
Tuesday 5	With Good Reason: Studies show that women in academia are often relegated to lower-ranked positions while their male counterparts ascend to the top. Khadijah Miller (Norfolk State University) says finding a balance between work and home life can be stressful. So she helped form the Sistah Colleague Circle to give women encouragement, support, and a collaborative work environment.
Wednesday 6	The Stearns County Pachanga Society is more than just a band; it's a community, and a rather well educated one at that! Mixing dance-able, Latin grooves with powerful, historical storytelling, the Stearns County Pachanga Society has been a live performance experience for all ages in central Minnesota for nearly fifteen years now. In this installment of the Untold Stories of Central Minnesota, there's more music in the air as Arts & Cultural Heritage Producer Jeff Carmack talks with band founder and SCSU Professor Mike Hasbrouck on the eve of their premier of a new project during SCSU's Global Goes Local Conference on Immigration in April 2016.
Thursday 7	Jo McMullen talks with two organizers of Tech Savvy, an event at SCSU that includes 100 girls in grades 6-9th grade—along with their parents/guardians—getting hands on experience and advice on taking STEM classes—and how to navigate the process from junior high through post secondary education. The American Association of University Women in St. Cloud is one of 22 groups hosting this event across the country this year.
Friday 8	Side Line Reporters By Sports Department
Monday 11	News Director Mohammad Najafian talks with Sociology Professor Stephen Phillion about the Global Goes Local Conference that is happening today and tomorrow. The second part of feature is from the Northern Community Radio. The host of the program, Heidi Holtan, speaks with novelist and poet Rachel L. Coyne about her new book. "The Patron Saint of Lost Comfort Lake." Rachel's book has recently been nominated for the upcoming Minnesota Book Award.
Tuesday 12	With Good Reason: As the premiere of Game of Thrones approaches, we trace the medieval roots of the hit TV show with Larissa Tracy. She discusses the influence of Tolkien and medieval literature on the popular program. And: Can a play written more than 400 years ago have something to say about Muslim-Americans? Some Shakespeare experts think so. In advance of Old Dominion University's Shakespeare 400 Years After event, Imtiaz Habib and Maya Mathur explore what Shakespeare's plays can reveal about life today. Plus: It's hard to find a nuanced black character written by 19th century white authors. But Gretchen Martin says she's found trickster characters (think Br'er Rabbit) in some 19th century classics.
Wednesday 13	St. Cloud residents attended the City Address at the River's Edge Convention Center last Tuesday. Mayor Kleis talked about core neighborhood driven

	initiatives among other issues. He says there is no city that can do well unless it has a strong core and neighborhood. The city has put significant amount of resources to find out what can be done to make the city more livable.
Thursday 14	Have you ever dreamed of wandering through the Great Library of Alexandria? Well, in today's installment of the Untold Stories of Central Minnesota, Arts & Cultural Heritage Producer Jeff Carmack gets to do just that, or something just as close in the modern sense. The Hill Museum and Manuscript Library at St. John's University was founded in 1965 as a means of protecting ancient manuscripts from a potential nuclear war. Today, they continue their work by not only saving and preserving the foundations of our modern cultures from extremists who are determined to destroy all evidence of the past, but also by opening up the library to classes and the public so that humans will know where we came from far into the future.
Friday 15	Side Line Reporters By Sports Department
Monday 18	This episode of Ojibwe Stories: Gaganoonididaa is the second of a two-part conversation with Justin Boshey, who shares with us knowledge about many topics, including many of the spirits that inhabit and guide the Ojibwe, the four parts of the Ojibwe identity (soul, spirit, body, and clan), the Ojibwe rock paintings, the grandfather teachings, and the significance of water at the beginning and end of the life journey. Justin Boshey is a member of the Lac La Croix First Nation, and is a traditional knowledge carrier, former chief and first speaker of the Ojibwe language. Justin is a talented musician, speaker, and workshop facilitator. He presently resides at the Northwest Bay (Naicatchewenin) First Nation with his family.
Tuesday 19	With Good Reason: Toms River was just like any other small town in America—except that children were dying at very high rates. For Earth Day, With Good Reason speaks with Pulitzer Prize winning writer Dan Fagin , whose 2013 book, Tom's River: A Story of Science and Salvation tells the story of how that small town fought against the pollution—and the polluters—killing their children. Fagin also discusses his current project, a book that follows the plight of the monarch butterfly as it tries to survive the very real changes that humans have brought to this planet.
Wednesday 20	Radio K: We're reading the headlines. We're shying away from the usual fun and frolic of arts and entertainment in the Twin Cities, to cover things more pressing. The problems that are affecting Minnesotans across the board. New legislation may jeopardize a large part of our northern tourism, and one of the most controversial stories in Minneapolis enters a new chapter. Also we hear the Word on the Street with Olivia Iverson, Participation points with Jackie Renzetti and the Radio K Weekly Release Spotlight.
Thursday 21	In this installment of the Untold Stories of Central Minnesota, Arts & Cultural Heritage Producer Jeff Carmack visits with Phil Lancaster, a musician and storyteller making the rounds through the Great River Regional Library system. He has a captivating performance and presentation about a strange and nearly forgotten piece of American history, the Orphan Trains. Running from 1854 until 1929 during a time before any of our modern social safety nets existed, the Orphan Trains brought over 300,000 children from New York and Boston into the

	Midwest for a better chance at life than what the city had to offer. While this would certainly be a terrifying experience for any child, many of the orphans thrived in their new environments, and now their descendants are beginning to come together to make sense of this shared history.
Friday 22	Side Line Reporters By Sports Department
Monday 25	News Director Mohammad Najafian talks with Steven Zilberg who is a graduate student in the Social Responsibility program. He has been nominated by the Libertarian Party of Minnesota to run for the Minnesota Senate district 14 seat (St. Cloud). He hopes to become the first Muslim Senator elected by the City of St. Cloud. Zilberg will also be the youngest elected person in the senate.
Tuesday 26	With Good Reason: In 30 years, organ transplants may be taking a back seat to a serum grown from the patient's own cells and administered to heal the damaged organ. And those who need new organs will be getting new biological parts from 3-D printers. That's the vision of Kenneth Brayman, who heads Transplant Surgery at the University of Virginia. Brayman discusses recent advances in organ transplantation. Also: Allergic reactions to everything from pollen to peanuts are making life miserable for millions. Lawrence Schwartz explains why our bodies over-react to these seemingly benign substances. Schwartz was named Outstanding Faculty of 2016 by the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia
Wednesday 27	Access Minnesota We discuss transgender and gender non-conforming rights and the rise of "bathroom bills" in the US with Aren Aizura, Assistant Professor of Gender, Women and Sexuality Studies at University of Minnesota.
Thursday 28	News Letters on the Air: We begin the celebration of Women's History Month with a tribute to Maxine Kumin, who died on February 6, 2014 at the age of 88. A former Consultant in Poetry to Library of Congress (now known as the US Poet Laureate), Kumin is best known for her straightforward and unflinching poetic verse that covered a range topics from skinny-dipping with William Wordsworth to her own recovery from a near fatal accident.
