Officials say Michigan deaths from the coronavirus rose 16% in the largest daily jump since the pandemic hit the state. The state reported 118 additional deaths related to the respiratory disease caused by the virus, raising the total to 845. The number of confirmed coronavirus cases rose 10% to nearly 19,000. Gov Gretchen Whitmer says "it's another tough 24 hours" in Michigan. In Detroit, Mayor Mike Duggan said the city will begin testing residents at nursing homes with a fast virus test used on police and firefighters. The city has more than 25% of Michigan's cases and deaths. (:30)

Governor Gretchen Whitmer extends statewide stay-at-home order to May 15th while relaxing restrictions so some businesses can re-open and people can participate in outdoor activities like golf and motorized boating. Measure designed to help combat the coronavirus pandemic that has resulted in nearly 3,100 deaths in the state. The governor's order says people are required to wear face coverings in enclosed public spaces such as grocery stores. Landscapers, lawn companies, nurseries and bike repair shops can resume operating. Big-box retailers no longer must close off garden centers and areas dedicated to selling paint and carpet. (1:30)

State lawmakers vow to curb Governor Whitmer's emergency powers. In special joint session at state capitol, Republicans in the House and Senate approved a resolution to create a committee to oversee the state's response to the coronavirus emergency. Committee will also take up bills designed to limit the governor's authority in times of emergency. Move comes in wake of growing criticism over the statewide stay-at-home order and protests to reopen the economy. We hear from Governor Whitmer, who says she won't sign any bill that would take authority away from her or any future governor, and that the powers of the executive are crucial in times of crisis where lives are on the line. Federal prosecutors file fraud charges against Detroit-area doctor who runs Allure vein clinic. Charles Mok is charged with submitting false claims to Medicare, alleged acts that preceded the coronavirus outbreak. But the government also says Mok's clinic has treated hundreds of patients, despite a state order that bans nonessential procedures during the outbreak. Mok is accused of submitting at least 98 claims to insurers for vitamin C therapies that were touted as COVID-19 treatments. The government says there's no approved vaccine or drug for COVID-19. (:45)

Family of man jailed in Oakland County for driving with suspended license fighting for his release after he's diagnosed with COVID-19. James Webb was arrested in February on five-year-old warrant and sentenced to 100 days in Oakland County Jail. Last week he was diagnosed with COVID-19. Family is concerned because he also has COPD. Webb's lawyer filed emergency motion for his release but was denied. Second emergency motion was heard by judge, and inmate will be released by 5pm Wednesday. (2:00)

The Democratic governor, who may be sued by the GOP-led Legislature, addressed reporters Friday hours after President Donald Trump said she should "make a deal" with conservatives who protested her restrictions at the Capitol. She denounced the protest as "disturbing," noting there were swastikas, Confederate flags, nooses and some people with assault weapons. She says she'll gradually reopen the economy using science and data. (1:30)

Detroit Mayor Mike Duggan says city reported lowest number of deaths in several weeks, as the number of new cases continues to decline in the former hot spot. Duggan credits city's aggressive testing for decline in cases. He also says he's encouraged to see employers, including auto companies, sending their workers to be tested as they get ready to reopen. Duggan also expressed concern over warmer weather this weekend, saying he fears large gatherings will put the city's progress in fighting COVID-19 at risk. Gov. Gretchen Whitmer's administration says hospitals and physicians have "broad discretion" to decide whether to delay nonessential procedures during the pandemic. The state issued new guidance Sunday amid pressure to let providers do more as the curve of coronavirus cases flattens. Dr. Joneigh Khaldun, Michigan's chief medical executive, says Gov. Gretchen Whitmer's remain in effect but is intended to be flexible and preserve clinician judgment. In-person contact should be limited as much as possible. But if physicians determine it is necessary, they should take steps such as asking patients to wait in their car until their appointment and requiring masks. (1:15)

Some workers and contractors for City of Detroit are back on the job today. Roseville woman facing multiple charges for allegedly spitting on police officers in St. Clair Shores. Police called on Sunday to Nino Salvaggio market on Harper Avenue just north of 11 Mile Road. According to prosecutors, it all started when store worker asked 33-year-old Kristin Hoff to leave because she wasn't wearing a mask. That's when she allegedly assaulted the employee and refused to leave. When officers arrived, they say Hoff attacked and spat on them before getting arrested. She's now charged with one felony count of assaulting an officer as well as assault and battery and refusal to submit to fingerprinting. (:45)

March travel at Detroit Metro Airport down 52%, could be worse in April due to ongoing fallout from coronavirus. Of DTW's 51 stores, 39 are temporarily closed and 46 of its 52 restaurants are temporarily closed, according to the Wayne County Airport Authority. Last March, around 3.2 million travelers passed through the Detroit Metro Airport. This March, passengers are down by more than 50 percent to only 1.5 million. (2:00)

Major U.S. automakers planning to start reopening North American factories in the next two weeks, after being shut down for two months due to the coronavirus outbreak. FCA says it will restart operations at most of its plants on May 18th, depending on easing of government restrictions. Michigan's shelter-in-place order in effect until May 15th. Ford and GM also said to be considering restarting production at North American plants later this month. Detroit's Big Three automakers employ about 150,000 factory workers in the United States along. They announced on March 18th that factories would temporarily close in order to protect workers from the virus. (:45)

Government/Politics:

Republican-led Legislature has sued Democratic Gov. Gretchen Whitmer, asking a judge to declare invalid and unenforceable her stay-at-home order and other measures issued to combat the coronavirus. The lawsuit, filed Wednesday, says a 1945 law giving the governor broad emergency powers governs local, not statewide, declarations like one in place since March. The suit also says a 1976 law gives Whitmer emergency authority only for a limited period that expired. Though Whitmer has gradually lifted restrictions to let some businesses reopen, Republican leaders say the Legislature should have input. Whitmer defends her moves as necessary to save lives. (2:00)

Gov. Gretchen Whitmer says auto and other manufacturing workers can return to the job next week. She further eased her stay-at-home order Thursday while extending it through May 28 amid the coronavirus pandemic. Whitmer says while the state is "not out of the woods yet," reopening factories is an important step forward to gradually reengaging the economy. Manufacturers can resume operations on Monday, which is key for suppliers ahead of automakers' planned May 18 restart. Plants must adopt measures to protect their workers, including daily entry screening and, once they are available, the use of no-touch thermometers. (1:30)

Crime/Fire/Safety:

Authorities charged a fourth person in the fatal shooting of a Michigan security guard who had refused to let a customer inside a store without a face mask. The prosecutor says Brya Bishop's alleged crimes occurred after the death of Calvin Munerlyn. Munerlyn was shot last Friday at a Family Dollar near downtown Flint. Bishop is charged with tampering with evidence, lying to police and being an accessory to a felony. Bishop is the sister of a man who is still at large in the guard's death. (:45)

Consumer/Economy:

Nearly 69,000 people filed initial claims for unemployment last week, bringing Michigan's seven-week total in the coronavirus pandemic to more than 1.3 million. The number of new claims dropped for the fourth straight week but still approached the weekly high recorded in the Great Depression, according to federal data released Thursday. The state Unemployment Insurance Agency has said more than 1.1 million jobless have been paid benefits. To expedite claims for people waiting in a queue for help, Gov. Gretchen Whitmer issued an order letting the agency review only an individual's most recent job separation to determine the benefit level. (1:23)

Government/Politics:

State regulators have suspended the license of a Michigan barber who insists on cutting hair despite an order to stay closed during the coronavirus outbreak. Karl Manke has pledged to keep his shop open "until Jesus comes." A judge declined the state's request to shut down his shop Monday without first holding a hearing. Regulators then took a different path by suspending his barber license and his shop license. Manke's attorney says it's an "abuse of power." Manke reopened his shop in Owosso on May 4, saying an extension of business shutdowns during the coronavirus had knocked him to his knees. (:30)

Crime/Fire/Safety:

Judge dismisses criminal charges against former Michigan State University President Lou Anna Simon arising from the Larry Nassar sexual assault scandal. Simon was ordered to trial last year on charges that she lied to police about her knowledge of a sexual misconduct complaint against Nassar. The former campus doctor now is serving decades in prison. But Eaton County Judge John Maurer dismissed the case against Simon Wednesday, saying the evidence wasn't sufficient. Simon resigned as Michigan State president in January 2018, hours after Nassar was sentenced to prison following days of wrenching testimony from his victims. (:30)

Hundreds of people angry over Michigan's coronavirus stay-at-home order protested in heavy rain outside the state Capitol. The demonstration Thursday was smaller than previous rallies. It was organized by a conservative activist group that has sued Democratic Gov. Gretchen Whitmer and organized or participated in several protests since early April. Although state attorney general warned protesters who flouted social distancing requirements could face arrest, there were no arrests at today's protest. A court will hear arguments Friday in Republican lawmakers' lawsuit challenging the governor's ability to extend an emergency declaration without their blessing. (2:00)

Michigan summer tradition is being canceled because of the coronavirus. Officials decided Wednesday to call off the Labor Day walk across the Mackinac Bridge. Tens of thousands of people take part in the walk each year. It's the only time the nearly 5-mile-long span is open to pedestrians. The bridge links Michigan's Upper and Lower peninsulas and crosses the channel that connects Lakes Huron and Michigan. Mackinac Bridge Authority Chairman Patrick Gleason says bringing together so many people shoulder to shoulder for hours would be too great a health risk. He says the walk should resume in 2021. Gov. Gretchen Whitmer is further relaxing stay-at-home restrictions. She says a ban on nonessential health procedures will be lifted May 29, and groups of up to 10 people can gather socially starting Thursday, ahead of the Memorial Day weekend. Retailers can reopen by appointment only, starting Tuesday, as long as there are no more than 10 customers inside. Social distancing requirements remain in place. Whitmer says the stay-home order will likely be extended beyond May 28. Restaurants remain closed to dine-in customers, except in northern Michigan. Gyms, casinos and hair salons remain closed. (1:00)

Weather:

Authorities warn it could take days to assess damage from flooding that submerged houses, washed out roads and threatened a Superfund site in Central Michigan. Floodwaters from heavy rains that overtook two dams are retreating in some communities Thursday but continue to threaten others farther downriver. Gov. Gretchen Whitmer says she talked to President Donald Trump and hopes he'll sign a federal emergency declaration. The flooding forced the evacuation of about 11,000 people in the Midland area. Officials caution it could take days for the water to recede. Wixom Lake is nearly empty after the nearly century-old Edenville Dam failed. (2:00)

Judge rejects request for injunction that would have strengthened state's hand in keeping Michigan barber shop closed during the coronavirus outbreak. Karl Manke's shop in Owosso has been closed since last week when regulators suspended his license. But the health department was seeking an order in a separate action that would have further kept the 77-year-old out of business. Shiawassee County Judge Matthew Stewart said the health department failed to show that Manke's shop was a specific threat to public health. Manke resumed cutting hair on May 4, drawing customers from across the state who were inspired by his plea for freedom from a government shutdown. (:30)

Former Macomb Twp. public works official pleads guilty to extorting builders and contractors to buy tickets to his boss' political fundraisers or face consequences. Dino Bucci worked for Macomb County's elected public works commissioner, Anthony Marrocco. Marrocco had broad authority over sewer lines, water and infrastructure. Bucci admits he forced contractors to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars to fatten Marrocco's campaign accounts. Marrocco was public works commissioner for more than 20 years before losing re-election in 2016. He's charged with conspiracy, extortion and attempted extortion. (:30)

Gov. Gretchen Whitmer says protecting K-12 funding is her priority as Michigan seeks a federal bailout to avoid steep spending cuts during the pandemic. Her budget director says there's no way to complete the next budget by a July deadline. The state's facing a nearly $6.3 billion revenue hole over this fiscal year and the next one. Whitmer's hoping Congress soon approves another round of funding for states and gives them flexibility so existing aid can address budget shortfalls. (1:00)

Michigan appeals court orders barber who has been defying the state's coronavirus restrictions to close his shop. Karl Manke reopened his shop in Owosso on May 4 in defiance of Gov. Gretchen Whitmer's orders for certain types of businesses to close to help slow the spread of the disease. The 77-year-old Manke has become a symbol of resistance to the business closures. The appeals court ruled Thursday that Manke failed to rebut the state's claim that barbershops and hair salons pose a risk to public health. Manke says he doesn't care what the appeals court said and that he'll continue to cut hair. (:30)

State of Minnesota files civil rights charge against Minneapolis Police Department in wake of George Floyd's death. The state says it will investigate the department's policies and practices over the last 10 years to determine whether it has engaged in "systemic" discrimination against people of color. The complaint comes from the state Department of Human Rights, which enforces the state's human rights act. It targets a police department that has faced decades of allegations of brutality and other discrimination against African-Americans and other minorities including within the department itself. Gov. Gretchen Whitmer tells Congress that Michigan lacks supplies to fully ramp up testing for the coronavirus and says it's difficult to determine what the U.S. government is shipping. She says it's making planning "very difficult" and supplies could be allocated more quickly with better information. As of Sunday, about 13,400 COVID-19 tests were conducted per day over the previous week. That's near Whitmer's short-term goal of 15,000 a day but short of the 25,000 she said could be done. (1:00)

Michigan's school superintendent says K-12 districts are confronting the possibility of staggering spending cuts amid the coronavirus pandemic unless Congress helps fill a nearly $2.4 billion revenue shortfall. Michael Rice said Thursday the largest reduction in per-student funding under the current finance system came in 2011, at $470. A $1 billion cut to the school aid fund would result in $685 less per pupil. He says the cut could be "substantially greater." Districts are facing a July 1 deadline to enact budgets for the coming academic year. (:30)

Under a disaster declaration, Whitmer said Monday she hopes to gain Federal Emergency Management Agency assistance as soon as possible to provide a wide range of service such as crisis counseling, road repairs and loans to homeowners. The nearly 100-year-old Edenville Dam in Midland failed on May 19, forcing 10,000 residents to evacuate their homes as flood waters raged through the area. (1:00)

Michigan regulators say Detroit casinos must ban smoking on their gambling floors and limit capacity to 15% initially when they are allowed to open by Gov. Gretchen Whitmer. The Michigan Gaming Control Board approved minimum reopening guidelines for the commercial casinos Monday, though they remain closed under a gubernatorial order. Many tribal casinos, which aren't regulated by the state, have already reopened or will do so soon. During their initial re-opening, Detroit casinos will limit capacity and keep poker rooms closed. They will check temperatures of everybody entering. Patrons will be required to wear a mask unless drinking or eating. (:30)

City of Detroit removes bust of Christopher Columbus from downtown spot after 110 years. Mayor Mike Duggan says bust placed in storage until its future can be determined. The move comes as cities the world over protect or remove statues and public monuments that celebrate people linked to the subjugation of minorities. The Detroit Columbus bust was a gift from the readers of an Italian newspaper in honor of the 400th anniversary of Columbus' death. By the 1990s, a new generation of Native American activists blamed Columbus for launching centuries of indigenous genocide. (1:00)

Head of the United Auto Workers will meet this month with the U.S. attorney in Detroit to discuss potential changes for the union following a wide-ranging corruption probe. U.S. Attorney Matthew Schneider has floated the idea of the government taking control of the union and has pushed for letting each member vote on its leadership. The government's corruption probe has been embarrassing for the UAW. Ten union officials and a late official's spouse have pleaded guilty since 2017, including former President Gary Jones. In a joint statement Monday, the two sides said current UAW President Rory Gamble will meet with Schneider June 30 in Detroit to start negotiations on changes for the union. (1:00)

Police officer who fatally shot Rayshard Brooks in the back after the fleeing man pointed a stun gun in his direction is going to be charged with felony murder and 10 other crimes. Fulton County District Attorney Paul Howard made the announcement about Garrett Rolfe during a news conference Wednesday. Howard said Rolfe kicked Brooks while he lay on the ground and that the officer with him, Devin Brosnan, stood on Brooks' shoulder as he struggled for life Friday night. Rolfe had already been fired after he fatally shot the 27-year-old Brooks. Brosnan had been put on administrative leave. Brosnan is being charged with aggravated assault and other crimes. ### Government/Politics:

Governor Gretchen Whitmer appeals a federal judge's ruling that allows indoor gyms in Michigan to reopen this Thursday. The appeal comes after an opinion published Friday by U.S. District Court Judge Paul Maloney, who said the state presented a "blanket 'trust us' statement that is insufficient to uphold a no-longer-blanket rule" in ordering gyms to remain open. Under the order, all gyms with indoor facilities in the state will be allowed to open on Thursday, June 25 at 12:01 a.m. It's not known when the court will rule on the governor's motion. (:30)

The fall term at the University of Michigan will open Aug. 31 with a mix of remote learning and in-person classes at the Ann Arbor campus. The school announced its latest response to the coronavirus. Residence halls will be open, but there will be an emphasis on boxed meals and fewer people at one time in dining rooms. Large classes will be held online. Small classes will meet in-person, and class sizes in the middle will be a mix of both. President Mark Schlissel is promising more details in the weeks ahead. Schlissel says there are few, if any, one-size-fits-all solutions. (:45)

Crime/Fire/Safety:

As cities grapple with how police departments should change in the wake of nationwide protests, questions are being raised about how troubled officers have been allowed to stay on some police forces, even when their own department doesn't want them. Through their union contracts, officers in Detroit and elsewhere are entitled to appeal terminations and other discipline to an arbitrator. Critics say it allows troubled cops to stay on the force and commit more bad acts. Police reform advocates say it's time that, at a minimum, departments challenge arbitration awards that bring troubled officers back to the force. (1:30)

Crime/Fire/Safety:

A 9-year-old girl has died following a fire at her west side Detroit home. The fire was reported about 3 a.m. Tuesday. The little girl's 6-year-old sister was also injured and is now in a coma at a hospital. Their parents suffered cuts and bruises. A 6-year-old boy was not injured. The cause of the fire was under investigation. (1:30)

Education:

State of Michigan unveils its "MI Safe Schools Roadmap" that gives school districts recommendations and requirements for schools to implement safety practices as kids return to classes in the fall. The plan restricts all in-person instruction when cases are very high. As the bulk of the state stands today, there are a number of restrictions that would have to be put in place, including teachers and students wearing masks at all times, desks six feet apart, all meals must be eaten in classrooms. Strict measures may be mandated in densely populated areas like Metro Detroit, while they will be simply recommended in less populated places where the virus is less active. (1:00)

20/20

Friday, April 3, 2020 (9:00-11:00PM ET)

Terrorized

A former Uber driver, Jason Dalton, from Michigan, terrorized a city for eight horrific hours in 2016 killing six people and seriously injuring two others. Dalton received life in prison with parole. 20/20's Matt Gutman reports on Dalton's crime spree and features interview with surviving victims and relatives of victims.

Friday, April 10, 2020 (9:01-11:00PM ET)

The Dropout

After a three-year investigation by ABC News correspondent Rebecca Jarvis, "20/20" and "Nightline" reports on the captivating story of Silicon Valley star Elizabeth Holmes and her technology company, Theranos. Once the youngest self-made female billionaire, Holmes' company and its nearly $10 billion valuation came crashing down amid accusations of massive fraud. Jarvis chronicles the twists and turns of Holmes' rise and fall. (OAD: 3/15/19)

Friday, April 17, 2020 (9:01-11:00PM ET)

Siegfried & Roy

"20/20" features a rare interview with Siegfried Fischbacher and Roy Horn. The famous duo, known as Siegfried & Roy, captivated audiences from all over the world for decades with magic and exotic animals in Las Vegas. But on the evening of Oct. 3, 2003, their act came to a crashing halt when Mantacore, a white tiger regularly featured in the act, mauled Roy almost killing him and causing brain damage. Siegfried & Roy open up about the infamous attack. Correspondent Deborah Roberts reports.

GENETIC DETECTIVE

Tuesday, May 26, 2020 (Premiere)

The Case of the Missing Lovebirds

Moore works with Seattle's Snohomish County Sheriff's Office and takes a look on her first-ever cold case as a genetic genealogist – the double homicide of Jay Cook and Tanya Van Cuvlenborg. The young couple disappeared in 1987 after taking a ferry from Vancouver to Seattle and were later found miles apart, gagged, bound and brutally murdered. With a smattering of clues, but no real lead, the case was cold for 30 years. The episode includes interviews with Jay's parents, Gordon and Leana Cook; Tanya's brother, John Van Cuvlenborg; Snohomish County law enforcement retired Sherriff Rick Bart and Detective Jim Scharf, and radio reporter Hanna Scott.

Tuesday, June 2, 2020

Hunt for the Runaway Killer

CeCe Moore works with the New Madrid County Sheriff's Department on the 1998 murder of Sherri and Megan Scherer, a mother and daughter from Missouri. The investigation uncovers the identity of a previously unknown serial killer and with the killer's daughter.

Tuesday, June 9, 2020

Who Killed Angie Dodge?

Police in Idaho have spent the last 23 years trying to solve the case of Angie Dodge murdered in her apartment in 1996. They turn to CeCe Moore, but no genetic genealogist has ever solved the case using degraded DNA. Despite the challenge, Moore is able to identify the potential killer. With assistance of Idaho Police Department, suspect is tracked, DNA collected and matched. Moore's findings helps exonerate Chris Tapp, wrongly accused of Dodge's murder.

Tuesday, June 16, 2020

The Deadly Playdate

The killer of 8-year-old April Tinsley taunted police for decades in Fort Wayne, Indiana, leaving notes and threats with viable DNA samples, but they still couldn't catch him until now. Interviews featured in the episode include April's mother, Janet Tinsley, and cousin Kristina Snyder; Fort Wayne Police Department's Detective Brian Martin and retired detective Danny Jackson; coroner Chris Meihls; retired forensic scientist Linda McDonald; reporter Jamie Duffy; and Parabon NanoLabs' founder Steve Armentrout and director of bioinformatics Ellen Greytak.

Tuesday, June 23, 2020

The Phantom of Ramsey Street

From 2006 to 2008, a series of unsolved rapes haunted residents in Fayetteville, North Carolina. Investigative genetic genealogist CeCe Moore works on the case with the Fayetteville Police Department while she attends CrimeCon, an annual true crime convention held in New Orleans. The episode includes interviews with
