Prosecutors say Cronk was behind the wheel of red Camaro on December 22nd, doing donuts in the middle of I-94 in Detroit. Cronk turned himself in to Detroit Police and received a $100 cash bond. Next court date is TBD. (:45)

Local school district cancels classes after cyber-attack. Ransomware virus hit district's servers over the holiday break, demanding $10,000 from school officials. No ransom paid, impacting critical services like heating, ventilation, phones, and classroom technology. Police and FBI now looking into origin of attack, not believed to be local. School says no personal info of 1400+ students was affected. (1:30)

Environment:

Crews with EPA and EGLE back in Madison Heights to try to stop toxic chemical from spreading in Metro Detroit. Bright green substance first seen oozing onto shoulder of I-696 nearly two weeks ago. It was later confirmed to be hexavalent chromium, a known carcinogen. Today, crews are drilling deep into the ground in the surrounding area, taking soil samples to determine exactly where the contamination has spread. We hear from environmental officials who say testing will show where the chemical has leaked and where it's flowing right now. EPA estimates clean-up will cost $2 million and take more than four months to complete. (1:15)

Retailers sell $6.5 million in recreational marijuana in Michigan's first month of legalized sales. Sales came through 9 locations, generating more than $1 million in taxes for the state. State also collected more than $1 million in licensing fees for various marijuana businesses. Numbers are expected to keep rising as more recreational pot shops open their doors. As of January first, state regulators approved total of 26 retail licenses. (:45)

Crime/Fire/Safety:

Detroit Police say homicides in the city increased last year, while overall violent crime was down. Chief James Craig released end-of-year statistics that show 273 homicides committed in 2019, up from 261 the year before which was the lowest number in Detroit in 50 years. Detroit's 767 nonfatal shootings last year were more than the 755 in 2018. Robberies also were up in 2019: 2,337 to 2,309. But Craig said a 21% decrease in carjacking's in 2019 is "probably the most contributing factor" in the city's 4% drop in violent crime. (1:00)

Federal environmental officials under scrutiny over 2017 cleanup job at Electro-Plating Services plant in Madison Heights after hexavalent chromium leaked onto shoulder of I-696 in late December 2019. Before and after pics show inside of plant shutdown by state in 2016. Green ooze allegedly came from water flushing through pit dug in basement. EPA says it drained it, flushed it twice, then filled it with gravel. We hear from EPA's on-site coordinator, who gets defensive under questioning about how thorough EPA was during initial cleanup. Southfield woman whose disappearance last fall led to searches in northern Michigan died from a drug combination. The medical examiner in Benzie County pointed to the effects of methamphetamine and Diazepam, an anti-anxiety drug. Cold weather was also a factor. Body of Adrienne Quintal was discovered outdoors in December near a family cabin. She had traveled to the northern Lower Peninsula two months earlier. Relatives said Quintal had called a friend on Oct. 17 to say she was involved in a shootout with two men. (:30)

Jury convicts ex-MSU gymnastics coach Kathie Klages of lying to investigators when she denied that two teen athletes told her of sexual abuse by sports doctor Larry Nassar in 1997, nearly 20 years before he was charged. Kathie Klages was found guilty Friday of a felony and a misdemeanor in a Lansing courthouse where Nassar was sentenced more than two years ago. She faces up to four years in prison. She's the second person other than Nassar to be found guilty of charges related to his serial molestation of young women and girls under the guise of medical treatment. (1:15)

Federal judge rules Michigan legislature must bring portions of its sex offender registry law into compliance with constitutional requirements. U.S. District Judge Robert Cleland wrote Friday that his order could be effective 60 days after a final judgment is entered and that if the state does not bring the law into compliance it no longer can enforce it against people on the registry with offenses before April 12, 2011. The ruling is part of a class-action lawsuit filed on behalf of people listed on the registry. The Associated Press was awaiting a response Friday from the state Attorney General's office. (:30)

Government/Politics:

State lawmaker from Detroit is taking the push to free Kwame Kilpatrick from prison straight to the top. State Rep. Sherry Gay-Dagnogo is at the White House today to attend a black history month event. While there, she says she plans to lobby President Trump to grant clemency to the former Detroit mayor. She says she's taking a letter signed by Detroit caucus members and elected leaders in hopes of hand-delivering it to the president or members of his staff. Gay-Dagnogo argues that the former mayor's prison sentence was disproportionate to his crimes. Kilpatrick is currently serving a 28-year sentence in federal prison. He was convicted in 2013 of racketeering, mail fraud and wire fraud. (1:00)

First legal sports betting in Michigan to begin next week inside Detroit's casinos. The Michigan Gaming Control Board plans to give final approval Tuesday. The three commercial casinos are expected to go live Wednesday at 1 p.m. While physical sports books will be open, online and mobile sports wagering will not start sometime in 2021. Onsite sports betting at tribal casinos is not regulated by the state. They will announce their launch of sports wagering individually. Michigan legalized sports betting and online gambling late last year. (:30)

Getting Around Metro Detroit (GAMD):

Starting this month, people getting around Metro Detroit will have new option for traveling between Detroit and Ann Arbor. A proposed new bus line will begin service between the two cities on March 16, providing hourly trips for 16 hours a day during the week, with limited service on weekends. The D2A2 line will run from 6am to 11pm between Grand Circus Park in downtown Detroit and the Blake Transit Center in Ann Arbor. One-way fares start at $8, with discounts available for seniors and riders with disabilities. (:30)

Detroit residents who have had their water service shut off due to nonpayment of bills can have it restored under a plan that aims to prevent the spread of the new coronavirus. Officials announced Monday that the Coronavirus Water Restart Plan will be in effect for the duration of the virus's global outbreak. A water department spokesman says close to 3,000 households have had service disconnected. Several thousand others have been notified this year of pending shutoffs. The state will cover the costs of re-connection for the first 30 days. Customers then can have service restored or keep their water on for $25 per month. (1:30)
