Host: Reed Pence. Guests: Philip Ackerman-Leist It's spring, and backyard gardeners are gearing up to plant the tomatoes, zucchini, lettuce and carrots. Wouldn't it be great if everyone could have a garden that would produce enough so they'd have fresh produce most or all of the year? And just imagine not having to apples shipped in from Australia and tomatoes from Mexico. We talk to two agricultural specialists about how to grow a lot of food in very small space, and how regional and urban farming – even in vacant city lots and around public buildings – could provide healthy, fresh food for much of the community, increase employment in job-starved cities, and help revitalize economies in depressed areas of the nation.

Host: Marty Peterson. Guests: Elizabeth L. Cline. Spring cleaning is here, and old clothes and shoes are often the items that end up in the charity bin. Why is it that Americans have so much clothing to throw away? What happens to the clothing and other items that go off to the resale store? And how does the consumerism of Americans affect the economies in emerging economies and Third World countries? We talk to an investigator and author who went inside the “fast fashion” industry for the answers to those questions, and discuss some solutions to the “clothing pollution” that plagues the world.

Host: Christopher Michael. Guests: Donald Katz and Judy Wicks. Even though the economy is looking up, there are still cities in the nation where the unemployment level is above average, neighborhoods are falling into disrepair, and schools are subpar. We talk to two business leaders – one from a large corporation and the other with experience in small business – about how companies can help transitional communities by locating there and investing in their residents.

6/9/2013

MN This Week

Moderator Curtis Beckmann. HOUSING Guest: Chris Galler, CEO, Minnesota Association of Realtors. He comments on recent reports that home values in Minnesota have increased sharply in recent months, as the state continues to dig out from under the housing market collapse of 2008-2010.

Education

Host: Marty Peterson. Guests: Weldon Long. It's still not easy to get a job these days, but for men and women coming out of prison, it's even harder. We talk to a former three-time convict who had a wake-up call while in prison and turned his life around. We discuss how he came to the realization that his problems were of his own making, how he changed his attitude and created a mindset to facilitate his ambition to make it in business – legally – and how anyone with perseverance and positive thinking can achieve their goals.

Host: Marty Peterson. Guests: Jeffrey W. Rubin and Emma Sokoloff-Rubin. Dads and their teenage daughters do lots of things together –go fishing, learn to drive, create school projects – but how many actually collaborate on their father's research and the book he's writing? We talk to just such a duo that went off to South America to talk to and videotape the women of rural southern Brazil who fought for equal rights for all women in their families, society and business. We find out how the two worked together, how they debated the issues and how the book would be written, and the unique perspective a young daughter brought to her father's academic work.

Host: Marty Peterson. Guests: Keith Devlin. We take our numbers and arithmetic for granted, and that's a good thing. However there was a time when it wasn't so simple to count, keep records of business transactions or do simple math problems because our numerals 0 through 9 weren't in common use around the world. We talk to a mathematician and author about the man who started the "arithmetic revolution."

Environment

5/05/2013	MN this Week	Moderator Curtis Beckmann. Guest: David Nicolai, Extension Educator, University of Minnesota Extension Service. The guest comments on recent rainfall and its impact on drought conditions on Minnesota farmlands. He reports that recent rains have virtually ended the drought for farmers in southeastern Minnesota.
5/19/2013	MN this Week	Moderator Curtis Guest: Keith Buttleman, Assistant General Manager, Metropolitan Council Environmental Services. He describes the decline in water levels in the underground aquifers that serve as reservoir for most Twin Cities suburban communities. The Met Council's recommendation to those communities is to take water from the Mississippi River for purification, as do Minneapolis, St. Paul and a handful of suburban communities.
6/16/2013	View Points	Host: Marty Peterson. Guests: Lauren Mandel . One of the pleasures of summer is to take a walk around town and look at people's gardens to see what they're growing and how they' tend their plots. However, some of the most beautiful and productive gardens are ones you'll never see on your walk, because they're located on rooftops. We talk to an expert rooftop landscape architect about the different types of rooftop gardens, how they are tended, and what an amateur gardener needs to know to start their own garden on the roof.
6/23/2013	MN This Week	Moderator Curtis Beckmann. Guest: J. Drake Hamilton, Science Policy Director, FreshEnergy, Minnesota. The guest lobbies on behalf of environment issues before the Minnesota legislature and discusses steps taken by lawmakers to advance on several environment fronts.

Health

4/7/2013	View Points	Hosted by Dr. Nina Sacks & Bob Barrett. It seems like you can't turn on the radio or read a health blog anymore without finding something else that will eventually kill you. Sunshine, artificial sweeteners, natural sweeteners...there's no escaping it, they are all gunning for you. But according to a new book...it's even worse than we thought. On today's Health Show, a conversation with an author of the Encyclopedia Paranoiaca . Then we'll head to the Bronx, where work is being done to help people with asthma in low income housing. And we'll hear why making critical health care decisions should be a collaborative effort.
4/14/2013	Health Show	Hosted by Dr. Nina Sacks & Bob Barrett. About one in every 100 people in the US is living with epilepsy. It is a condition that most people have heard of...but don't really understand. And the way it's portrayed in the media often adds to the confusion. On today's Health Show, we have a program long conversation about epilepsy with a pair of doctors who specialize in the detection and treatment of people living with the condition.
4/21/2013	Health Show	Hosted by Dr. Nina Sacks & Bob Barrett. OK parents, I'm looking at you. How old was your child when you first started adding solid food to the little bundle's diet. According to a new survey, if you're like a lot of parents...you did it too soon. On today's Health Show we'll talk to a researcher from the CDC about their new findings. We'll also hear from the NIH about another problem that seems to be coming from our diet: a lot of us are becoming frail. And we'll hear about age-related Macular Degeneration and how you can take some steps that may help save your sight.
4/28/2013	Health Show	Hosted by Dr. Nina Sacks & Bob Barrett. The bombing of the Boston Marathon has a lot of people asking questions. Questions like why. Like who was involved. Like is the danger over. We're asking questions, too. Questions about the people injured in the bombing and what their lives will be like going forward. On today's Health Show, we'll talk to a doctor who served in Iraq about the traumatic injuries, treatment and future of the people injured in the attack. We'll also hear about a soldier who returned from war with injuries and how he dealt with those...and with PTSD. Plus we'll hear from a public health nurse who works in a run down urban area but refuses to give into fear.
5/5/2013	Health Show	Hosted by Dr. Nina Sacks & Bob Barrett. Sakeenah Francis was living a comfortable, successful life. A college graduate with a career and a young family...until schizophrenia tore that life and that family apart. On today's Health Show, we'll talk to Sakeenah and her daughter about life with her illness, the letter to her daughter...and the book they've written together. We'll also hear from a veteran national reporter about the state of parental leave opportunities for new parents in the US. Here's a hint: they're not good.

Host: Christopher Michael. Guests: Jeremy Jamieson and Philip Dalton. Why are people so afraid to give speeches in public? It's the cause of sweaty palms, headaches, nausea and weak knees, to mention only a few of the problems speakers experience. We talk to a psychologist and a speech educator about why anxiety builds when we have to give a public address, and how we can use this stress to our benefit. We also hear about some other strategies to lower the anxiety level and smooth out the experience of speaking in public.

Health Show

Hosted by Dr. Nina Sacks & Bob Barrett. Advances in medical technology have made it possible to screen children for a huge number of conditions by the time they are two. That's two DAYS. On today's Health Show we'll talk to a clinical geneticist about the advances in newborn screening for disease. We'll also hear from the N-I-H about screening for cancer in children and adults...and how they must balance the pros and cons of these tests. And we'll hear commentary from a young woman about a brave young member of her family with terminal cancer.

5/19/2013

Health Show

Hosted by Dr. Nina Sacks & Bob Barrett. I've often said to colleagues that if I want to get a lot of mail...and usually nasty mail...I need to a story on either vaccines or Lyme disease. So today let's go for broke. You may not remember this, but there is a vaccine for Lyme disease. The catch: no one makes it anymore. On today's Health Show the story of the vaccine your dog can get...but you can't. We'll also hear about a report on drug laws in New York State...and how getting treatment for offenders continues to be a problem...and we'll talk to a man who bid a melancholy farewell to his prostate.

5/26/2013

Health Show

Hosted by Dr. Nina Sacks & Bob Barrett. We hear an awful lot about "awareness" in health care. The breast cancer awareness campaign has, over the years, made a huge difference in the way the public views the disease...and how women look at their own bodies. But there's another condition out there...one that millions of people are at risk for but have never heard of. On today's Health Show, a look at Lupus. We'll also spend time with a family of care givers...and take a trip down the weight loss yellow brick road.

6/2/2013

Health Show

Hosted by Dr. Nina Sacks & Bob Barrett. Clostridium difficile is not only very difficult to say, it can be deadly. This gut infection has been in the news with outbreaks in hospitals and nursing care facilities in the US and Canada. And now there's a study that says if you are depressed, you have a much higher risk of getting infected. On today's Health Show we'll talk to the lead author of this study and depression and infection. We'll also hear a group of women speaking about their diagnosis of chronic fatigue syndrome...and what this controversial condition has done to their lives. And then commentary from a middle aged man juggling his doctor visits with the rest of his life.

Health

6/9/2013	Health Show	Hosted by Dr. Nina Sacks & Bob Barrett. What is it about Americans that makes solving the problem of drugs and addiction so difficult? Addiction to drugs impacts almost every other problem facing the nation, from education to crime to poverty to health care. What are the most effective ways to defeat addiction and how has the war on drugs made the problem worse? These are the questions being tackled by award winning journalist and author David Sheff. On today's Health Show, we feature an in depth conversation on the topic of addiction in America with David Sheff...and talk about some of the possible answers to the problem in his new book called "Clean - Overcoming Addiction and Ending America's Greatest Tragedy"
6/16/2013	View Points	Host: Christopher Michael. Guests: Dr. Frank Farley and Suzanne Young. Depression is a serious issue that many US teens and their families have to deal with. Depression can lead to risky behaviors such as alcohol and drug abuse, extreme dieting and other reckless activities. Combine that with peer pressure to undertake risky behaviors – even suicide--and you have a very dangerous situation. We talk to a psychologist and to a novelist who has written about the problem to find out why teens do it and what parents can do to help their children.
6/16/2013	Health Show	Hosted by Dr. Nina Sacks & Bob Barrett. If you had the chance, would you go back to being a teenagers again? Before you answer think back to just exactly what that meant. It wasn't easy. Now imagine living that portion of your life over with a parent who has cancer. On today's Health Show we'll talk to a father and daughter who co-wrote a book about that experience in the aptly titled book: "Cancer Sucks!". We'll also hear from some musicians who continue making music...even though they are hearing impaired.
6/23/2013	Health Show	Hosted by Dr. Nina Sacks & Bob Barrett. Almost decade ago, Dr. Richard Besser...the chief medical editor for ABC News lost his sister while she was having elective surgery. Since then he has been a vocal advocate for patients demanding information from their health care providers. On today's Health Show, we'll hear about the book "Tell Me The Truth, Doctor". We'll also hear about the health concerns being raised by the increasing popularity of raw milk cheese...and hear the story of two women dealing with breast cancer in two different worlds.
6/30/2013	Health Show	Hosted by Dr. Nina Sacks & Bob Barrett. In October of 2008, we ran a long segment with me and Dr. Janet Gargiulo about what was new in the field of breast cancer. Ironically, a year later Janet and I were both battling breast cancer. It was my second go around with the disease and her first. Once our health had stabilized, Bob got back together and we talked about the experience. I discovered my cancer during a breast self examinations and bob asked Dr. Gargiulo if that was unusual in this age of mammograms and MRIs. There are people who do great things and there are people who ask them questions about those great things. I fall into the latter category. Dr. D. A. Henderson is in the former. In 1967, was enlisted by the World Health Organization to rid the world of Smallpox. A little more than a decade later...Smallpox was history. In 2009 I spoke to Dr. Henderson and asked what it was about Smallpox that made it the target for eradication. In 2006 I sat down with three people who were in various stages of fighting cancer. Maureen Kearns was a retired elementary school teacher...Mark Burke was an electrician and musician...and George Lewis was a dairy farmer and manager of a roofing business.

Legal / Law

4/7/2013	MN this week	Moderator Curtis Beckmann. Guest: Jeff Anderson, St. Paul attorney who has led prosecution of religious groups that have sheltered preachers and priests who have sexually abused young people. He comments on the selection of Pope Francis and prospects for changes in the Catholic church that could lead to an end to sexual attacks on children in that church
4/21/2013	View Points	Host: Christopher Michael. Guests: Richard Winters and Robert Ney. the news is full of stories of elected and appointed government officials being caught in scandals from bribery to tax evasion to pocketing campaign money for personal use. What is it that makes some officials think they can engage in these kinds of activities? Why is it that some states have scandal after scandal, and others seem squeaky clean? And what can the government and we, as citizens, do to lessen or eliminate corruption? We talk to a researcher who has studied the subject, and a former congressman who went to prison for corruption.
4/28/2013	MN This Week	Moderator Curtis Beckmann. Guest: Jan May, Senior Special Agent, Minnesota Bureau of Criminal Apprehension. She and other agents on staff work tirelessly to identify, find and prosecute those who engage in Internet Crimes Against Children.
5/12/2013	View Points	Host: Marty Peterson. Guests: Robert Leonard and Lesley Blume. Slang is often thought of as being a lower-class way of speaking, although we use it all the time and it does make our language more colorful and vibrant. But how does it come into being? We talk to a linguist and to an author about why slang and jargon are part of our speech, who brings them into our language and why some slang falls out of favor – but should come back.
5/19/2013	View Points	Host: Marty Peterson. Guests: Irene Etzkorn. Keeping it simple is a real challenge these days – for individuals and businesses. Anyone who has applied for a credit card or taken out a car insurance policy knows that even those two everyday tasks come with page after page of language only a lawyer can understand. And what about the directions for setting up that baby crib or kid's bicycle? We talk to a specialist on simplicity about how and why things become so complex, who benefits when they do, and learn how anyone can cut through the gobbledygook to incorporate more simplicity into their lives and work.
5/26/2013	View Points	Host: Marty Peterson. Guests: Jeffrey M. Shaman and Ray Raphael. When Congress debates a constitutional point, or when the Supreme Court is considering a case brought before it, we often hear the question, “what did the framers intend?” How does anyone really know what people, who debated issues more than 200 years ago, really intended? We talk to two constitutional specialists about the issue, and hear how some Supreme Court justices approached an issue that is once again in the news.

Legal / Law

5/26/2013

MN this Week

Moderator Curtis Beckmann Guest: Lt. Art Saunders, commander, Hennepin County Sheriff's Water Patrol. The guest describes the county's winter months, when so many vehicles and snowmobiles crack through the ice and to the bottom of county lakes, particularly Lake Minnetonka. Laws that pertain to waterway public safety are essentially unchanged.

Host: Marty Peterson. Guests: Charles Seife. Statistics, demographics, percentages...it's never easy to wade through the data that advertisers, politicians and the news media throw at us every day. The numbers sound good, but are they really a true picture of what's going on in the world? We talk to a university professor and author who looked into the topic of numbers to find out how they can be manipulated to sound believable, but end up not describing reality at all.

4/14/2013

MN this Week

Moderator Curtis Beckmann. Guest Chuck Slocum, former chair, Minnesota Republican Party. He is questioned on any similarities between the post-Watergate Republican Party, when Republicans suffered from a declining party membership, to challenges the party faces today, in the wake of 2012 elections.

4/21/2013

MN this week

Moderator Curtis Beckmann. SOCIETY. Guest: Greg Owen, consulting social scientist, Wilder Foundation, St. Paul. The guest spearheads the thrice-annual survey of homelessness in Minnesota. In his new survey, taken from a single day in October of 2012, he notes a rise in the number of Minnesota children who are homeless.

4/28/2013	View Points	Host: Marty Peterson. Guests: Lisa Catherine Harper and Julia Pandl. When a family sits down to a meal, it's a special thing. Even if it's not a holiday feast, it's a time when people get to talk, catch up with each other and learn about food and table manners. It can also help nurture relationships. We talk to two authors about the connection between food, family and friends and how eating together --- and preparing food for others --- can strengthen the bonds between family members.
5/12/2013	MN this week	Moderator Curtis Beckmann. Guest: Donn Christy, Assistant Director, Fort Snelling National Cemetery. He updates listeners on the coming Memorial Day observance. The level of activity at the cemetery remains high...staff and volunteers continue to perform an average of 22 funerals at the cemetery per day.
5/19/2013	View Points	Host: Christopher Michael. Guests: Alex Hinojosa and Karen Leland. Everyone's on social media these days, including businesses of all types. But does it pay for companies to have a presence on Facebook, Twitter, Pinterest and other sites? We talk to two social media experts about how companies should present themselves on these sites, and some strategies they can use to maximize their presence.
5/26/2013	View Points	Host: Christopher Michael. Guests: Scott Taylor Smith and Lori Sackler. When a loved-one dies, it's a time of great sorrow, and often confusion. How do you attend to the deceased's funeral? What about their banking? Credit cards? Notifying everyone? And what do you do when the heirs start fighting over the estate? We talk to two people who are specialists in these areas about what should be done after someone dies – and long before – to make the situation less difficult for everyone involved.
6/2/2013	View Points	Host: Christopher Michael. Guests: Christine Reilly and Mitchell Wallick. Gambling is all around us, and most people can have fun at the track or casino without going broke. Pathological or problem gamblers are a different story. We talk to two specialists about what gambling addiction is, treatments for it and how families can help a loved one who is a pathological gambler.
6/2/2013	View Points	Host: Marty Peterson. Guests: Robert Thompson and Larry Tye. Superhero movies are doing big box office this year, with Batman, Ironman, Thor and the new "Man of Steel" Superman film, just to name a few. But why are these films and their characters so popular and long lasting? We talk to Superman's biographer and a professor of pop culture about the phenomenon.
6/2/2013	MN this week	Moderator Curtis Beckmann. Guest: Mark Haveman, Ex. Dir., Minnesota Center for Fiscal Excellence (the old Minnesota Taxpayers Association). He puts into context actions taken by Minnesota Governor Mark Dayton and the state legislature as the recent session ended. Lawmakers increased taxes on the wealthiest Minnesotans and increased state taxes on cigarettes to balance the state's budget for the coming biennium.

Miscellaneous

6/09/2013	View Points	Host: Christopher Michael. Guests: Michio Kaku. Science fiction is full of wizardry like phasers, invisibility, and time travel. It's pretty fantastical, but we don't think much about it really existing outside the pages of books or the movie screen. We talk to a renowned physicist who says that not only are these things possible; they're being worked on right now.
6/16/2013	MN this Week	Moderator Curtis Beckmann. Guest: Jon Cummings, Founder, Minnesotans for Safe Driving. The guest comments on recent efforts by law enforcement to crack down on drunk driving and speeding.
6/23/2013	View Points	Host: Christopher Michael. Guests: James H. Carrott and Brian David Johnson. Why must every smartphone or iPad look like very other one? Must flat screen TVs lack style and flare? And why do new, high-tech kitchen appliances have to be stainless steel and sleek? The answer is, they don't. We talk to two authors who traveled the country researching "steampunk" – a cultural, social and technological movement that turns back the clock on mass-produced goods, and brings back craftsmanship, uniqueness and humanity to 21st century technology, fashion, literature and life.
6/30/2013	View Points	Host: Christopher Michael. Guests: Ray Monk and Denise Kiernan. Everyone knows about the Manhattan Project that created the first atomic bomb, and the man behind the Los Alamos laboratory – Robert Oppenheimer. But did you know he knew Sanskrit? That he loved French literature? We talk to a man who has written a new bio of the famous physicist that reveals some things you didn't know about him Also, New Mexico wasn't the only center for A-bomb research. Oak Ridge, Tennessee played a pivotal role in winning WWII as well. An author talks about the women who worked at that installation, their jobs, their lives and their contributions to the war effort.
6/30/2013	View Points	Host: Marty Peterson. Guests: Steve Berry. Historic preservation isn't just for the big museums and art galleries. It's also the responsibility of small towns and libraries across the nation. We talk to a best-selling novelist about his historic fiction and how he helps small and large repositories of historical artifacts, books and even landmarks raise money to maintain their collections. He also discusses his new novel that holds a secret about Elizabethan England that could be more than legend!
6/30/2013	MN this Week	Moderator Curtis Beckmann. Guest: Carol Falkowski, Consultant, drug use and abuse trends in Minnesota and the Twin Cities. Her twice-annual survey of several factors that contribute to public understanding of those trends identified a sharp increase, once again, in the use of methamphetamine. The resurgence, however, does not include a decline in the high rate heroin use and abuse in the state.
