The Little Rock Board of Directors has selected a new city director to fill out the Ward 1 vacancy. Virgil Miller will serve out the remaining term of the late Erma Hendrix who died last month at the age of 91. Miller, who is 68 years old, is a community development official with Arvest Bank. At a special meeting held by the board yesterday (Wed), Miller honored Hendrix and talked about what he's looking forward to achieving in his new position.
