Holliday was found guilty in circuit court for stealing nearly $14-thousand-dollars from the non-profit Northeast Arkansas Leadership and Business Council - money which he must pay in restitution along with other court costs.

Holliday was also found guilty for forging applications to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

He has been ordered to surrender to police by December 10th.

Holliday still faces felony wire fraud charges after allegedly embezzling millions of dollars from the county while serving as clerk.

That trial is scheduled for late February 2022.
